LOVED BY A PRINCE.

The Virginia Belle Whose Photograph En-

snared a Colouns. Miss Eleanor B. Moran, who is reported to be engaged to Prince Fabian Colonna of Paris, is a genuine Virginia beauty who is widely known and admired in exclusive social circles. Since she made her debut, about four years ago, she has been a belle at White Sulphur Springs, at Narragansett Pier, at Newport and in New York. She is the younger of the two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Moran. Her father is the son of the late Charles Moran, a wealthy Wall street broker, who left a handsome fortune on which his son retired. The Morans have a mansion in Charlottesville, but will soon settle permanently in Richmond.

On her mother's side Miss Moran is a member of one of the oldest and most aristocratic Virginia families. She is a consin of Mrs. Arthur Kinsolving of Brooklyn, who was a Miss Bruce of Richmond, and she is also a cousin of Mrs. Elisha Dyer,

Mrs. Moran belongs to one of the most distinguished families in Virginia. She was a Miss Blackburn of Rippon Lodge, and is descended from an old Scotch family that traces its ancestors back for several centuries. They were persons of means long before the Revolutionary war, and they spent a large part of their fortune in the struggle for independence. The Blackburns were closely related to General George Washington. Through this relationship Mount Vernon was for years in the possession of their family

TO DAWSON FOR NEWS.

A Managing Editor Who Goes to Alaska For Facts, Not Fortune. With a camera in one hand and a notebook in the other Mr. A. A. Hill has start-fortune, but facts. Of all that vast crowd which will soon be surging through the Alaskan passes he will be probably the Association, and he has left his desk to lead into the frozen north the expedition which that concern has sent out to learn and write the exact facts about the tremendous rush for gold which before many weeks will be at its height.

Mr. Hill is well equipped for the task. He is handicapped neither by the inexperience of youth nor by the physical disabilities of age. In the prime of life and possessed of health, energy and courage, he goes prepared to face as many hardships in his search for information as does the prospector in his search for gold. His newspaper training began in boyhood, and he has occupied every position about a printing office from that of "devil" to managing editor. But the chief thing which he has acquired during those years of experience is the ability to write facts, to tell things as they are.

Before he was called to exercise his excentive ability he became noted for the clear, simple style in which he wrote of the events of the day. So when he draws a picture of the great conglomerate army of argonauts who are struggling with the difficulties of the Chilkoot or depicts the photograph, in which the reader will see incidents and details stand out with satisfying vividness.

Before starting Mr. Hill spent several weeks in making careful proparation. He provided bimself with the best outfit to be procured, his suit being one of those which were prepared for Lieutenant Peary's latest arctic trip. He carries a hand camera of the lightest and most improved model, ness. Mrs. Hill was formerly a newspaper woman and will prove a valuable assistant. The expedition which Mr. Hill heads is now at the threshold of the Yukon and will proceed toward the gold camps as soon as the rush beggins.

the Presbyterian board of home missions. They were Rev. S. Hall Young and Dr. W. . McEwen. For months nothing was heard of them, but the other day they sent back an encouraging report accompanied by a photograph of the pioneer house of worship in the gold regions.

The two missionaries started out last August and reached Klondike City just before the winter set in and before all means of traveling bad been closed. On their journey they had been robbed of the greater part of their provisions. Their first good assortment of Cutlery. step was to rent a hall in which to hold services. They leased a small house for seven months for $350, payable in advance. The upper floor was divided into six 8 by 10 rooms, which were let very readily for $20 a month in advance. After the first service had been held, however, one of the lodgers came home drunk and set fire to the building. The house was totally destroyed.
