CONCESSIONS GRANTED

Britain And Germany Able to Work Together.

BALFOUR'S STATEMENTS.

A GOOD HARVEST FROM TWO MONTHS' NEGOTIATIONS.

Great Britain Seized Wei-Hai-Wei to Balance the Seizure of Port Arthur by Russia—Britain's Offers to Let China Alone Were Refused—China May Collapse and Fragments May be Snapped Up by Various Powers—England Desires to Maintain the Integrity of China.

LONDON, April 6.—The house of commons was crowded yesterday with people anxious to hear the statement of Arthur J. Balfour, the acting secretary of state for foreign affairs, on the subject of the situation in the far east. Mr. Balfour, who was loudly cheered on rising, enumerated the concessions obtained by Great Britain, namely, that the region of the Yang-Tse Kiang should not be alienated by any foreign power; that the successor of Sir Robert Hart, as director of the Chinese imperial maritime customs, is to be an Englishman and that acces to the inland waters is to be had by ships of all nations. A fourth concession, Mr. Balfour continued, only occurred a day or two ago, namely, the opening of three new treaty ports, Funing, Yechau and Chin Wang. This, according to Mr. Balfour, was a considerable harvest for two months' negotiations.

Relative to the German acquisitions of railroads, Mr. Balfour said that wherever they were constructed they must be a benefit to British commerce. He preferred railroads and differential duties to no railroads and no duties.

Later, Mr. Balfour said he believed neither Germany nor Russia had any intention of depriving Great Britain of any of her treaty rights in China. Germany, he further informed the house, had given assurances that the country acquired by her would be open to the commerce of the whole world. The interests of Germany and Great Britain in China were identical and he believed the two countries would be able to work hand in hand. Russia, Mr. Balfour then said, had also given assurances, but he was bound to admit that the form of these assurances had changed Still assurances had been given that no British treaty rights had been abrogated by the recent acquisitions.

Touching upon Wei-Hai-Wei Mr. Balfour said that Russia, having secured Port Arthur, on the maritime approach to Pe-kin, Great Britain had secured Wei-Hai-Wei to balance matters. The speaker explained that had Russia confined herself to obtaining an ice free commercial port as a terminus for her railroad, no complaint would have been made, but unfortunately Russia determined to obtain control of Port Arthur, which was not and could not be made a commercial port. So soon as Great Britain heard of the negotiations she laid her views clearly before Russia and expressed her sense of the evil they were bringing upon China.

Continuing Mr. Balfour said: "We offered, if they would abstain from taking Port Arthur, our-selves to give a corresponding pledge to take no port on the gulf of Pe-Chi Li. But our offer was not accepted, so on March 20th we informed Russia that we should hold ourselves to take the necessary steps to safeguard our interests, and Great Britain has since obtained a lease of Wei-Hai-Wei on the same terms as those by which Russia secured Port Arthur. Wei Hai-Wei is the only port on the gulf of Pe-Chi-Li which might balance the possession of Port Arthur. While Port Arthur is stronger, the accommodation at Wei-Hai Wei is inestimably greater and by taking Wei-Hai Wei under our protection we prevent the gulf of Pe Chi Li from falling under the maritime control of one power, and thus defend our interests. The negotiations have already borne rich fruit in the interests of our conference and the maintenance of our prestige at Pekin."

Relative to the security of the future, Mr. Balfour said it could not be denied that the indications were that China might collapse and with further delay, fragments might be snapped up by various powers. But it would be a mistake to allow Great Britain's policy to be governed by remote contingencies, adding: "We desire to maintain the integrity of China so far as possible, but it must be recollected that the future will probably have strange surprises in store."

In conclusion Mr. Balfour said: "The balance of power in the far east may be very different when the disintegration of China has occurred. The time may come when the great powers will say that China shall not fall into the hands of any one power and to embark upon a new, difficult and costly enterprise in order to ward off a remote and doubtful danger would be political folly. Her majesty's government asks the country to endorse this policy with more confidence because we know that Great Britain has the sympathy of the great commercial community throughout the world (cheers). I believe the time may come when the great commercial powers will join in an alliance to prevent China falling a prey to any exclusive influence and I am convinced that Great Britain, by continuing her present unselfish policy of opening to all what she secures for herself, will build up in Europe, and not the least in America, a body of public, international opinion which will be more powerful than any hasty action Great Britain may take at the present moment."

Mr. Balfour said the government thought Russia had pursued an unfortunate course in taking Port Arthur, which, as Russia herself said in 1895, when Japan proposed to occupy it, would, in the hands of any foreign power, constitute a menace to the capital of China.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the liberal leader in the house, replied to Mr. Balfour. He spoke satirically of the policy of "open door," and asked the reason for the change of policy. He said the treaty of Tien Tsin gave British ships the right to use any port in China and he expressed the desire to know specifically whether that right was to be infringed. Continuing the liberal leader asked for an explanation of the "remarkable change of policy upon the part of the government," in taking a lease of Wei Hai-Wei and "setting up a rival port, with rival interests."

He added that a military occupation of part of China may be necessary, but it could not be expedient and it was impossible to believe that the occupation would be confined to the present modest limits. The liberal leader concluded with calling for information regarding the intentions of Russia, Germany and France and as to the relations between Great Britain and Japan in view of the former's lease of Wei-Hai-Wei.

The morning papers generally express themselves as satisfied with Mr. Balfour's statement but are uneasy as to the relations between England and Russia.

The Standard says: "In some quarters it is believed that the government will arrange for garrisoning Wei Hai Wei with Japanese troops, assisted by British marines and under control of English officers." The Standard says also it is expected that lord Salisbury will resume his duties at the foreign office in a few weeks.

YOKOHAMA, April 7.—Great Britain's action in regard to Wei Hai Wei has caused a great sensation here and a large section of the press and public urge the government to adopt an active policy.

PEKIN, April 6.—It is understood that China has conceded the demands of France. They differ, it is added, somewhat from the first demands.

LONDON, April 6.—According to the statements made yesterday by the duke of Devonshire, lord president of the council, in the house of lords, and George Curzon, under secretary of state for foreign affairs in the house of commons, there is to be no opposition from Japan to Great Britain's action at Wei Hai Wei.

A MOTHER'S SACRIFICE.

Has no Protest to Make Against War, Although She Lost Her Son on the Maine.

CHICAGO, April 6.—Side by side in the Tribune appears the letter from Mrs. Ellen M. Henrotin, of this city, who, on behalf of the women's clubs of the United States, wrote to president McKinley urging him to take the way that leads to peace, and a statement from Mrs. Shillington, mother of Harry Shillington, who went down with the Maine. Following Mrs. Henrotin's letter is a statement by her in which she upholds the stand she took in her letter and repeating that the general federation of women's clubs will give to president McKinley "our moral support in all that he does or in all that he leaves undone, for humanity's sake."

Mrs. Shillington was shown Mrs. Henrotin's letter and asked if she thought it spoke for all the mothers of America. Mrs. Shillington could not read any further than "on us war will fall the heaviest, for we must give up our sons."

"I've already given up one of mine" she said, "my Harry, but with one boy buried in the mud of Havana harbor and another on board a United States cruiser that may be the first to be sunk in case of war, I have no appeals to make to the president for peace. I am a mother and have suffered as perhaps not many of the mothers who have joined in Mrs. Henrotin's appeal have suffered, but I do not shrink at the notion of war. We must think of our own, and heaven knows no one could have thought more of her boy than I did of the one who died on the Maine, but there are mothers in Cuba to be thought of—mothers who have seen their little ones starve to death by their sides.

"I have no criticism to make on the women who have joined in Mrs. Henrotin's petition. They want to be spared the loss of their loved ones, and I pray God that they may be. But if He should let them suffer as I have suffered, if it is for the sake of the dead and dying in Cuba, if it is for the sake of our country and her flag, and for the sake of the boys who were killed on the Maine, I can only say to them as I say to myself a hundred and a thousand times a day, 'It had to be; it had to be. There was no other way.'"

THE PRESIDENT'S REVIEW.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson's Resume Of Grand Trunk Affairs.

LONDON, April 5.—Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, president of the Grand Trunk railway of Canada, in a speech at the shareholders' meeting to-day said the principle which the present board had always followed was to seek the maximum amount of business at the minimum cost. He congratulated them upon the results of this policy, which he said was best illustrated by the fact that the road during the last half year had hauled 23 4 freight cars per train, compared with 22 8 freight cars per train during the preceding half year.

The president said that January 1st 1898, was the first time since 1890 that the Grand Trunk railway had been free from debt. But while this was satisfactory, the shareholders must be prepared for an expenditure from the capital account, owing to the necessity for strengthening the line in order to haul heavier loads. This would begin on the Portland division and they would in June begin saving £8,000 yearly by a reduction of interest owing to the redemption of the six per cent. bonds. The expenditure from the capital account would be spread over a series of years, so as not to cripple any particular year. The president also said the Montreal bridge was progressing satisfactorily. He expressed the belief that an agreement with the government in regard to international running would soon receive statutory sanction.

CANADIAN PACIFIC'S NEW MOVE.

Competitor For The Hawaiian And Australian Trade.

HONOLULU, March 20, VIA SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 5.—The Canadian Pacific railway in all probability will in the near future be a competitor for Hawaiian and Australian trade. The news comes from Victoria, B.C., and evidently is well confirmed, that the line is negotiating for the purchase of the crack Atlantic liners New York and Paris, with a view to placing them in the trade between Vancouver and Oriental ports, replacing the two fastest Empress liners. The latter will be placed in the Canadian-Australian trade, probably replacing the steamers Miowera and Warrimoo of the Canadian-Australian line. The news was confirmed by H. W. Jones, Chicago, one of the general officers of the Plano Harvester company, who passed through here a few days ago on his way to Australia. His firm has a large Australian trade and Mr. Jones is in a position to know of any such move as that mentioned above.

THE FAKE ADVERTISEMENT.

HOW UNSUSPECTING PEOPLE ARE THEREBY CAUGHT.

Some of The Advertisements Are Only Semi-Fake Ones—The Boys Were Much Disappointed, But Learned A Lesson Worth More Than Their Expenses—Careless Chirography No Barrier To Joining The Artists' Association.

By C. N. Hood in Printers' Ink.

IF SICK send a lock of your hair, name, age, sex, and four cents postage, and I will diagnose your case and tell you what will cure your ailments. Address ——— Medical Institute.

The writer found this advertisement in one of the so-called family papers of low subscription price and alleged large circulation, and a jealous feeling for the army of regular physicians who are not skilled enough to make a correct diagnosis from such a meagre showing of symptoms, induced the making of a test of the matter, inasmuch as the price was so low. A very handsome lock of glossy black hair was cut from the coat of a favorite Newfoundland dog of the name of Friar Tuck, and inclosed with four cents in stamps and the following letter:

"Inclosed find lock of hair for diagnosis. Name, F. Tucker; sex, male; age, middle age."

The answer came back with businesslike promptness on an imposing letterhead, as follows:

Dictated by Dr. ———
Scientific diagnosis of F. Tucker:
Your liver is not active and your tongue is coated, and you have faulty digestion and dizziness and headaches, and at times rheumatic symptoms. Also nervous debility and weak condition of the kidneys and sexual system. . . . Our magnetic powders and sexual pills will cure you. The cost of the medicine for one month is $3. This diagnosis is free. Return this letter with your order for medicine. Yours truly,

Dr. ———.

There was one symptom that I have always suspected that the dog had, but as most other dogs seem to manifest the same, I have never worried about it. The other symptoms do not seem to be well developed, at least I can't seem to get Friar Tuck to take any interest in the treatment.

It reminded the writer of an experience years ago when as an exceedingly callow youth this advertisement was discovered:

RACY PICTURES.—"A Little Peep," "The Bridal Chamber," "Home, Sweet Home," "The First Night." Send twenty-five cents for one, or fifty cents for the whole four.

The low wholesale price seemed so attractive that a half dollar went by mail, and the pictures were promptly received. They were four of the most harmless pictures which could possibly have been selected. Crude wood cuts, each about the size of a postage stamp. "The First Night," represented the Garden of Eden shrouded in darkness. Evidently a poor copy of one of Dore's pictures. "The Little Peep" was a picture of a newly-hatched chicken; "The Bridal Chamber" showed a picture of a very handsomely-furnished bedroom, evidently copied from a furniture dealer's prospectus, and nothing more, and "Home, Sweet Home," represented a very jolly family of frogs in a marsh. The lesson was worth what it cost to the two youths who contributed twenty-five cents each from meagre savings.

Some of the other advertisements recently investigated were only partly fakes:

"Remedy Mailed Free" for a serious disease brought, on application, the name of the remedy and about a half pound of laudatory circulars.

A GENTLEMAN who had been a sufferer from consumption would, for the benefit of suffering mankind, send, free of charge, the prescription which cured him.

The prescription came all right, but on showing it to an experienced pharmacist it was found that some of the drugs mentioned were unobtainable in any ordinary pharmacy, and if found would be almost prohibitive in price. A postscript on the benevolent gentleman's circular was then noted, in which he stated that for the benefit of those who were not in a position to have the remedy compounded at a reasonable price, he had purchased, at wholesale, a stock of the drugs, in response to repeated requests, and would be willing to send the medicine at a cost of $3 for one-half dozen bottles, which would barely cover the cost of the ingredients, but the benevolent gentleman would be willing to do this favor in gratitude for his own recovery.

DETECTIVE.—Man wanted in every county to act as private detective under instructions. Experience unnecessary.

An application brought the information that for $2 a certificate of membership in the —— detective agency would be sent, together with a handsomely engraved nickel detective's badge and a book on how to capture thieves and other criminals. Any work which the agency should chance to have in the correspondent's section would be promptly turned over to their representative. This would undoubtedly have proved true. Just think how enticing the possession of such a badge and the secret knowledge of connection with a national association of detectives must be to a green farm boy with ideas of detectives gleaned from thrilling romances, and who has $2 saved up for the next celebration of the 4th of July.

FIVE DOLLARS per 1,000 for distributing circulars, etc. Inclose four cents.

As the standard rates of the representative billposters and distributors of the United States range from $1.50 to $3 per 1,000 for this class of work, this offer looked enticing, and the four cents were enclosed. For a remittance of $3.50 the correspondent's name would be entered as a member of the —— advertising association, and 500 circular letters to be sent to advertisers would be furnished, and a list of 1,000 prominent American advertisers would be sent. There was also some vague intimations of immense distributing contracts within the hands of the association, but nothing was promised except that whenever a job was sent out from headquarters the money would be sent with it. This was undoubtedly true.

WRITERS WANTED to do copying at home.

A postal card written in an intentionally miserable hand, and with grossly illiterate wording, brought a response which stated that the correspondent's handwriting had been passed upon and accepted for membership in the association of pen artists of the United States. On receipt of $1.50 a certificate of membership in the association would be sent, with an appointment as special managing member for the correspondent's vicinity, together with a shading pen and instruction for using the same.

A dozen advertisers offer to buy lists of names of acquaintances, paying $50 per 1,000 for them. Others advertise to buy all sorts of newspaper clippings at about the same rates. There is a hitch in the same—where you pay—however, before you become a member of the "agency," and that ends it.

ELGIN EPISODES.

Many Deaths Recorded—Rev. L. A. Betts Conducted Services.

Elgin, April 5.—When has there been a March before without a flake of snow? Mrs. J. Stuart and daughter, Smith's Falls, attending the funeral of her grandfather, H. S. Davison, have returned home. Rev. L. A. Betts, Brockville, spent the week with old friends. They are pleased to see him so hale and hearty. J. Dorman, Seeley's Bay, and daughter, Mrs. (Rev.) Myer, Quebec, were guests of relatives L. N. Ailyn, Smith's Falls, made a short visit to friends last week. Mis Mary Coen, Almonte, is the guest of Miss Laura Stevens. Martin Pennock, California, visited relatives after an absence of over eleven years. Invitations are out for the wedding of one of our fair ladies in the near future. S. Pennock and Mr. Gibson, Gananoque, spent Sunday the guests of Mrs M. Pennock. Mrs J. Topping still on tinues on the sick list, but is improving. Elgin creamery commenced operation on Monday.

On Thursday the funeral of Mrs Crip was conducted in the Methodist church by the Rev. A. G. Robertson Delta. The deceased lady had been a sufferer with consumption during the past winter. By her death a husband and three small children have been deprived of a christian wife and mother. Rev. L. Connelly has recovered from a severe cold. M. Halladay, Deloraine called home last week owing to the fatal sickness of his mother, arrived only a few minutes after her spirit had passed to the reward of the faithful. The funeral of Mrs. R. L. Halladay was conducted from her late home on Saturday afternoon to the Methodist church of which she was a consistent member, followed by a large cortege of mourning friends. Besides a husband she leaves two sons and three daughters, Malcolm of Deloraine; Henry, Mrs. H. S. Davison, Mrs. H. Coon and Stella Elgin. The funeral of the late H. S. Davison, Forfar, was followed by a large concourse of friends and relatives to the Methodist church, where Rev. L. A. Betts, Brockville, conducted services, assisted by the pastor, Rev. L. Connelly, and Rev. Mr. Clendinnen, Newboro. Master Elmer Wright still continues under the doctor's care. Death has again visited our midst, claiming as its own the loving husband and father, Fuller Stevens. Deceased had been in poor health for the past year and confined to his bed for the past week. The bereaved widow and daughter have the sympathy of a host of friends.

ANDRESSBURGH NOTES.

Movements of the People—May Open Up Mines—Going to Detroit.

Andressburgh, April 4.—Gideon Scott, Maitlerytown, was lately calling on friends here. Mr and Mrs. John Root, Yonge Mills West, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Guild on Sunday. Miss Pansy Vanstone, Poole's Resort, is visiting at her uncle's, Norman Haws'. Two of our young men intend to take their departure for Uncle Sam's domains next week—unless the war breaks out. Walter Salter has bought a section of land in Bravo valley, known as the "Cattle Meadows." It was purchased from Miss Clary Guild for $160. Mr. Salter is engaged in digging the cellar and will erect a fine residence during the summer. P. W. Andress has his sugar bush running in full blast. W. Buell, Caintown, was recently calling on his sister, Mrs. C. O. Guild. Joseph Fox passes through this place twice a week purchasing eggs for the Brockville market. He pays the highest cash price for the much-demanded product of the hen. G. W. Downey is on the sick list. Dr. Beeman, who is in attendance, thinks an amputation of a toe may be necessary. Mrs. Cherry White has recently returned from Lyn, where she has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Kelly, who is very ill.

Timothy Guild has engaged Thomas Hodge, Riverside, for the coming season. John Buell intends leaving for Detroit, Mich., in a few days to visit his brother, Charles, an enterprising young lawyer of that place. Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Guild were calling on T. Franklin, Junetown, a few days ago. We understand that Bennett Dixon, Detroit, but formerly of this vicinity, has leased all the mineral lands through this section, as far east as Jones' creek. He is representing an American syndicate, which intend opening up the mines in the spring. They have taken samples from Wilson Mallory's mine, which they claim to be very rich in mineral. Stephen Woods has been calling on his many friends on Main street. Miss Hattie Hodge, Pleasant Point, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Andress a day or so ago. Several of our enterprising farmers will tender for the stone to be crushed here for the township council. Henry Ruttle has just completed his contract of supplying wood for the school house. John F. Tackleberry, agent for the Massey-Harris company, has done a better business this year than any other agent.
