> It was the great-great-grandfather of the commodore, John Thomas Schley, who founded the town of Frederick. John Thomas was a German. He came from Rhenish Palatinate in 1745 first to Pennsylvania, then to Maryland.

John Thomas Schley was in prosperous circumstances when he left the fatherland for religious and political reasons. He had been a man of considerable influence in his native country, and when came to America he brought a considerable number of immigrants with him, and he started them to making silk. John Thomas Schley built the first
