The Government Entitled to Great Credit -A Dangerous Parrot Cry-Election Promises Kept-Presto, Change!-The Holiday Season-A Note of Warning,

- PAST SESSION.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Ottawa, June 23.—The session which has now become a matter of history has been one which the Liberal party throughout the country has no reason to be ashamed of. During the first two sessions of their term of office, the first of which was entered upon when they had only just assumed the reins of power, the Government was fully occupied in getting its bearings and picking up the threads of administration, readjusting the machinery to suit the new and improved methods being introduced, cleaning up, weeding out, and generally discovering where they were at. To assume control after 18 years of Opposition, especially following in the footsteps of a party in which, according to one of its greatest exponents, was COMMENCING TUESDAY, JUNE 14TH, was no small undertaking, and until cursiders will leave here Daily, except Monday. Going Easi 4:30 a m. Going West 3:00 rent events can be impartially and dispassing. sionately reviewed in the light of history we probably shall not fully appreciate the ability, tact, and consummate skill and foresight with which the great work has been so successfully carried on. Surrounded by tried men of legislative and administrative acumen from every section of the Dominion, Sir Wilfrid Laurier has accomplished much already, and the indications are abundant in every direction of much more in the near future that will still further redound to the credit and advantage of our fair Dominion.

A Dangerous Parrot Cry.

At the beginning of the session it was a frequent incident to hear Conservative From Quebec. members of the House taunt the Govern-... Yorkshire... July 16th, 6 p.m | election promises. This was started by July 30th, 6 p.m | the leaders and taken up by the rank and part of the set speech of every third and fourth rate orator to the left of the chair. As the weeks rolled by and measures of reform were brought up one by one those who followed events with intelligent observation dropped the Shibboleth as undesirable and even dangerous. They realized that it was unwise to direct publie attention too emphatically to the progressive legislation being pressed forward by the Government.

> Election Promises Kept. The repeal of the costly and unworkable Franchise Act of 1885 and the substitution of a simple, cheap and equitable Quebec 6 p.m. system in its place; the radical reform of June 18th | the Civil Service Superranuation scheme; the Postal Reform measures, the Prohibition Plebiscite bill, the various measures for opening up and developing the Yukon, the steps taken to improve transportation facilities by land and water in every part of Canada and to generally develop the conditions of trade and commerce, were all substantial evidence not only of the good intention of the Government but of its actual ability and set determination to put through the necessary reform legislation in the face and in spite of most determined opposition in the Commons and malignant obstruction

"A more ardent tribute to their popularity could hardly have been anticipated or desired by their best and most enthusiastic friends. There on the floor of the Senate Chamber, surrounded by the foremost representatives of the people, they received every evidence of sincere appreciation and of warm affection. Every eye was moist as Lord Aberdeen referred in his own true, sympathetic manner to their coming departure, and as Lady Aberdeen, in a most beautiful and touching way, thanked the gentlemen of the Senate and the Commons who so gallantly presented to her with loving wishes a very handsome hand painted Canadian dinner service as a souvenir of their regard and appreciation of her labors and good work in Canada, the tears would overflow, etc., etc.''

Oh what a change, my masters! The Holiday Season.

Ottawa is rapidly emptying and the drowsiness of vacation time is settling over the capital. Five Cabinet Ministers have gone to England, others have left for various points on this continent, not a corporal's guard remains in the city. Mr Lanceley's Farewell.

London Advertiser. Last night Rev. E. B Lanceley, who has for four years officiated with much accepbance as pastor of Dundas Centre Methodist church, bade farewell to his flock. The congregation was urged to support their pastor at every point, and thus increase the usefulness of the church. It was wrong to listen to anonymous detractors, who sometimes wrote letters to the newspapers and to individuals, endeavoring to injure the influence of a pastor. I had only received one such missive, the writer of which complained be talked too loudly, but he had paid no attention to it. Rev.
