Sir Mackenzie Bowell's retraction of his reflections on the bona fides of his late colleagues was also evidently inspired. It was better policy to assume that Mr. Foster and his colleagues were honest until they show by their actions that they are not on the ques-

He Did Not Canvas. Deputy-reeve E. Milton, of the township of Pittsburg, ascribes his defeat for the reeveship in the recent elections, to the fact that he did not canvass a single vote. He has been a worker in the township council for many years, and has been a member of the county council for some time. He never shirked a duty, but worked for the best interests of the township. He is not a believer in the principle of canvassing, and determined not to ask a single elector to support him at the last contest. His opponent, on the other hand, thorough
