Fine Dental Rooms.

Dr. Sparks has the finest dental parlors in central Ontario. They are on the second story, next to Polson's drug store, and the visitor on entering is struck with the comfort and elegance displayed in the surroundings. There are two operating rooms and the workers converse with each other and the different departments by means of tubes. The rooms are equipped with the latest and most improved instruments and machinery necessary for the care of teeth. There are toilet rooms for ladies and gentlemen convenient to the operating rooms. The work rooms where the hardest and most scientific part of dentistry is done are at the rear and contain benches, tools and materials necessary for crowning and fitting up teeth. One of the striking features of the rooms is the convenient way in which they have been laid out. While at the Chicago fair Dr. Sparks purchased improved machinery which enables him to do his work more skilfully and more easily than before.

...read from J. ... cars running on ... aiming that it was so ... would run close to the ... ment houses owned by him ... out people from renting them. ... would be in favor of cars running on other streets, Fyled.

There was a great deal of discussion and certain propositions were agreed to. Mr. Folger was present and said the company would agree to deposit $100 that it would put the streets in repair and keep them in a proper state after the tracks were laid.

Permission was given the company to run down Front street from the city limits to the Forty-Foot road. On public holidays, fair days, or on any anniversary or public demonstration the street car service between the city and village must be as regular as on quiet days. Having due regard to public safety extra precautions will have to be taken in running the cars at a reduced rate of speed down grades. Rate of speed to be fixed by the council.

Mr. Folger objected to the clause in the agreement providing for the erection of a number of electric lamps along the route of the track. Powers to expropriate the Powers building at the centre of the penitentiary hill, in the way of the track, were granted the company.

The council was willing to allow the company to run over the streets for forty years, but would not agree to a perpetual charter and it was on this rock the agreement split and the council adjourned, but it is certain this difficult will be overcome.

R. Baiden said that if Mr. McLeod's property was injured by the electric railway he would be sorry and would rather the cars ran on another street, but the residents of other streets might object to the cars on the same grounds as Mr. McLeod.

The reeve said the council of 1893 was willing to allow the company to run its cars on the back road, or between Mr. Cameron's property and Hogan's blacksmith shop. The company wanted to run the cars on Front street and the council was now willing to grant this privilege.

A. Cameron owns a building situated about the centre of the penitentiary hill and he objected to the cars being allowed to run on the side of the street. He would not object to the cars running in the centre of the street.

The reeve said it was the intention of the council to ask the company to run the cars on the side of the streets.

Mr. Folger said he did not care whether the company was compelled to run the cars on the side or centre of the street.

The reeve said he was willing to have the street car track laid four feet from the walks.

Councillor Atkins did not think the streets were wide enough to permit the cars running in the centre of them.

Mr. Folger said he preferred running the cars on Front street, and he did not care whether they ran in the centre or on the side.

Councillor Simmonds said it would be in the interest of the village if the cars would run along Main street and come out on Front street at Wishart's corner.

Mr. Folger said if the company could get a right of way through the asylum property the company would not object to accept Councillor Simmonds' proposition, but the right of way could not be secured. If the cars did run on this route they would not be convenient for people living on the opposite side of the village. Front street was more central than any other street.

Councillor Simmonds said that if the cars ran along Main street a manufacturing establishment might be erected on Gunn's property which is at the extreme end of the highway.

Mr. Folger said he tried to get a man to erect a factory on Gunn's property, but the scheme fell through He would like to see a factory in Portsmouth and would do all he could to promote the interests of the place if the railroad was laid down.

A motion was carried to run the cars from the city limits to the Forty-foot road. Councillor Simmonds voted against the proposition.

In answer to the reeve, who asked what rate of speed the cars would be run through the village, Mr. Folger said this matter would be left with the council to decide. The company wanted to run the cars on Front street, but would not pay anything for the privilege. The company would grade the penitentiary hill, cut it down four feet at the top and raise it at the bottom opposite the town hall eighteen inches. The company would not run tracks around the village.

Councillor Baiden said he was surprised the company could not give anything for the use of the streets. He thought the company would have a snap in getting the streets free.

Mr. Folger said the village would be benefited thousands of dollars by the railway running through it. House rents would go up and property would be increased in value fifty per cent. The company would be doing a great deal for the privilege of running down Front street in improving it and keeping it in repair.

Councillor Simmonds contended the railway would not increase the value of property in the village. The only thing that would do this would be the establishment of factories and the employment of people.

The councillors wanted the company to provide electric lights along the line of the track free, but Mr Folger refused to do this. Neither would the company agree to build the track unless a perpetual franchise of the street was granted. To get the charter amended to a forty years' franchise the city had to give away privileges worth $50,000. If the council agree to have the railway he would give a good service and spend $1,000 in grading the penitentiary hill. Or he would give $100 a year to the council or any individual who would agree to cut down the hill and keep the street over which the tracks run in order. The company could get $3,000 per mile in the city if the cars were run on certain streets. If an agreement is not come to with Portsmouth the company will run the cars in the eastern part of the city where a bonus would be given for the convenience. If the offer which the company makes is not satisfactory to the council then it was their privilege to refuse and the railway would not be built.

Mr. Matheweson, a heavy ratepayer, said he was willing to grant Mr. Folger's request. He thought it was absurd for the council to be haggling over the matter.

The councillors withdrew all their objections, and said they would give privilege to run over the street for forty years but would not agree to a perpetual lease.

Mr. Folger would not agree to take a franchise of forty years. He wanted a perpetual lease or nothing, and the meeting adjourned at ten o'clock.

Not the Shadow of Any Evidence Was Brought Against Him—Apologies For Having Put the Innocent Man to Trouble.

NAPANEE, Jan. 23.—The adjourned trial of John Davern, charged with the murder of Angus McLeod, came up for hearing before P. M. Daly, in the council chamber, to-day. No interest was taken in the proceeding there being only twenty-five people present. Mr. Morden said that, as far as he was concerned, he was not calling any witnesses as it was his opinion that Mr. Davern should have been discharged at his preliminary trial.

The first witness called by Mr. Deroche was Frank Blair, who swore as follows: "I live in Napanee, was subpœned as a witness at the former trials, but could not attend owing to illness. The reason I was subpœned was, I guess, that somebody told Vancoughnet that I was an eye witness of the affair; don't know who told him. I know nothing about the McLeod murder. I was not subpœned against King."

W. Burns, the other crown witness, was not present, but Mr. Morden was of the opinion that it would be unnecessarily to call him as he knew nothing about the matter further than that he was present when an examination was made of the hat found at the McLeod residence on the morning of the murder.

Mr. Deroche asked that the hat be produced and tried on Mr. Davern. After some delay the hat was produced and tried on Mr. Davern and proved altogether too small for him.

Police magistrate Daly said he was pleased to acquit John Davern. Not a tittle of evidence had been adduced that would in any way connect him with the matter, and that as far as this case was concerned he left the room without a stain on his character. He did not think anyone would think any the worse of him for having been suspected for this matter.

Mr. Morden said that he wished to offer an apology to Mr. Davern's family for the part he had taken in this matter. He had acted under a mistaken sense of what he ought to do as an officer of the crown, and as far as he was concerned he would make what reparation lay in his power for the injury he had unwittingly done them. He was free to say that not a jot of evidence had been produced against Mr. Davern.

Mr. Deroche said that no one found fault with Mr. Morden; he had simply done his duty. He was pleased that his client had been so honorably acquitted. He did not think that either now or hereafter the finger of scorn could in anyway be pointed at John Davern for his connection with this matter.

This brought the now famous McLeod murder trials to a termination.

...LETTERS.

Letter Sent to the "Mail" by Order of the Archbishop.

Walkem & Walkem, on behalf of the archbishop of Kingston have sent a letter to the Toronto "Mail" for the publication "of a very scandalous libel against the Roman Catholic archbishop and bishops of the province of Ontario in general, and against himself in particular, over the signature of 'Ontario Priest,' on the 18th inst." The letter proceeds:

"Although his grace takes no notice ordinarily of anonymous revilers, he deems it right to call attention to this attack upon him as being directed, not only against himself personally, but against the character and prestige of the episcopate.

"The ex-priest who figures as your correspondent makes several charges which the archbishop declares to be notoriously false, calumnious and derogatory to his sacred office, and you appear almost to emulate him in the desire to injure the archbishop when you head his letter with the extraordinary language which you have used, and which certainly justifies the archbishop in regarding you as conspiring with the writer to reflect upon his character, and the administration of his sacred office.

"On behalf of the archbishop we warn you that should you publish any more libels against him he will, in his own time and in such manner as he may think fit, take such legal action against you as he may be advised."

The "Mail" says in reply: "Judging by archbishop Cleary's view of the question, his grace must entertain the opinion with regard to the relations of the press to the ecclesiastics which prevails in the province of Quebec. There it is a scandal to criticize a bishop, and an offence to decline to assent to his decrees. Here, his grace must remember, the conditions are different. We are neither in Quebec nor in Ireland. All men are entitled to be free, and the press is at liberty, not to calumniate or slander, but to discuss matters affecting any class of subjects with the utmost liberty. The announcement by the archbishop that he will take action against the "Mail" should libels be issued against him in its columns is an unnecessary warning. All men are entitled to defend their characters from false and malicious attacks. But it must not be supposed that a threat such as this is going to gag the "Mail." This journal will exercise the right appertaining to a newspaper in Canada. It will open its columns to free discussion, but not to libellious charges, uninfluenced by threats from Kingston, or even from Rome. What is more, it will help the oppressed in such manner as it can, whether the complainants be Protestants or Roman Catholics, in the full hope that its services will tend to the advancement of the liberty of the individual and the good of the people."

A PUBLIC MEETING.

The Select Knights Had a Gathering Last Evening.

Kingston Legion No. 10, Select Knights of Canada, held a public meeting in the Oddfellows' hall last night, when T. L. Broderick, of Toronto, installed the officers for 1894 and delivered a very able address on the "Aims and Objects of the Order." This society, purely Canadian, offers many advantages over some older ones in that improvements have been made on the older systems. No society in Canada has increased in the same ratio as the Select Knights during the past year. During the evening a programme was presented. Miss Gibson and Miss Lake were particularly happy in their selections and in good voice acquitted themselves in fine style.

After a vote of thanks had been tendered to those who took part and to the speaker of the evening the meeting closed with the national anthem. Mr. Broderick is stopping at the British American hotel and will remain some days in the city.

The officers for 1894 are: Commander, D. M. Spence; V.C., John Ilett; L.C., W. J. Arnie; rec., W. H. Godwin; col., R. Aiken; treas. T. D. Minnes; aide, W. Sherbino; I.S., C. Smeaton; O.S., W. Stewart; P.C., J. Massie.

THE ONTARIO P.P.A.

The Association is Not Anxious For Any Publicity.

HAMILTON, Jan. 23.—The Protestant Protective Association met in convention this afternoon. Delegates to the number of about 450 were here from all parts of Ontario, but nearly all registered at the hotels under fictitious names, and they threaten to sue newspapers for libel should they publish the names of delegates. To-day's session will be taken up principally by examining credentials of delegates, and this work is being done very carefully and systematically so as to prevent the possibility of the admittance of spies. The executive committee of the association has been in session here since yesterday, but refuses to give any particulars of the business being transacted. It is understood that all politicians, who are in any way bound to either conservative or liberal party, will be weeded out of the association, as they are not to be trusted. The business proper of the convention will begin tomorrow morning, by which time it is expected there will be fully 700 delegates here.

JUVENILE CRUELTY.

A Lad With an Ungovernable Temper Abuses His Brother.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—A story of juvenile cruelty was brought to light in the police court this morning. It appears that John Bailey, a boy fifteen years, is possessed of an ungoverable temper. On one occasion his four-year-old brother related to the mother something the elder had done. For this the child nearly smothered the child in a lot of bed clothes. About Christmas time, in a fit of rage, he seized a red-hot poker and burned his brother's cheek in a horrible manner. It was for this offence that he was charged to-day with aggravated assault. The parents stated that he was unmanageable and wanted him sent to the reformatory. The magistrate could not send him there, but would have sent him to prison had his parents so asked. He was allowed out on suspended sentence, Col. Denison giving the lad a severe lecture.

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—Speaking of the dams at Sheik's Island, in the St. Lawrence, near Cornwall, Mr. Schrieber, deputy minister of railways, says that they had been in place some two months and no appreciable alteration of the currents had resulted. "Of course," he added, "we have not had any spring freshets yet, but I have no doubt that when they do come the effect of the Cornwall improvement dams so far from giving the serious results that seem to have been anticipated will not make the slightest difference in the height of the water upon the American side of the St. Lawrence."

CARRIED UNDER THE ICE.

THE TERRIBLE DEATH OF JOSHUA SEDORE, OF NEWBURGH.

Precipitated Down the Ice Bank of a River He Ran Head Foremost Into the Water and Was Drowned—Body Not Secured.

Joshua Sedore, a middle-aged man, a resident of Newburgh, was drowned last night. He was a laboring man and lived in a house near the bank of the river. He went out about five o'clock to attach a clothes line to a tree, and while thus engaged slipped and was carried down the icy bank to the river's brink. In his descent he struck a stone, was thrown completely over and plunged head foremost into the rapidly running river and carried under the ice. His body had not been recovered up to this morning.

Mr. Sedore was a widower, his wife having died very recently, having been taken home from the Kingston hospital, where she had undergone an operation.

Not Found Yet.

NEWBURGH, Jan. 23.—Last evening Joshua Sedore went to hang up some clothes and fell in the river. He was seen going under the ice and, although a large number have been working, they have as yet been unable to find the body.

Another Drowning Accident.

Special to the WHIG.

DESERONTO, Jan. 23.—Last night about eight o'clock Irvine Clapp, of Adolphustown, was drowned near Grassy Point. Mr. Clapp left this town about seven o'clock with a horse and cart and proceeded home on the ice, and not being informed where the cracks were drove into one where a place about twenty feet square was open. His cries were heard by some farmers who reside near where the accident took place. They were soon on the spot, but only recovered the robe. Mr. Clapp had on a fur coat and was so weighted down he could not help himself. The body was recovered this morning. Mr. Clapp was about fifty years of age, was a prosperous farmer of Adolphustown and leaves a wife and seven children to mourn his untimely fate.

OUT OF THE SERIES.

A Lively Hockey Contest Between Limestones and Athletics.

The Athletics have been fairly beaten and the boys are now out of the junior series altogether. The match occurred last night and the score was no little surprise to friends of the Athletics, who had hoped the latter would hold the Limestones down and possibly beat them. This was out of the question, and those able to judge of the individual or team play of either club knew well that with good ice the Limestones would mow them down. The Limestones were as far ahead of the Athletics as are Queen's firsts compared with the cadets' seniors. Figures of twelve to one should pretty nearly tell the story alone. The Limestones only defeating the Athletics by one goal the last time inspired the latter, while the Limestones were made all the more determined. It is to be hoped that the rivalry existing between the two teams is nothing more than the result of friendly competition. Rockwell and Thompson were spoken of in the last game as fighting like bulldogs in order to get supremacy; last night Rockwell was in the better condition, and skated all round his check. McRae played with his old time vigor, and did brilliant work, while Irwin, at point and Walkem in goal were impassible. Rigney was solid for the Athletics, but has not had the experience that makes perfect. The teams were:

Limestones—Walker, goal; McRae, point; Irwin, cover point; Kinghorn, McKay, centres; Rockwell, Low, wings.

Athletics—Savage, goal; Rigney, point; Metcalfe, cover; Robinson, Dunlop, centres; Thompson, Wilmot, wings.

G. F. Weatherhead, referee.

Telgmann and Taylor, goal umpires.

E. Sears, time-keeper.

George McKay scored the first goal in about two minutes after the puck was faced by a pretty shoot from a pass. Rockwell got the second; McRae the third and Low the fourth when half-time was called. The Athletics had not got through the stakes during this time. The second half was the best exhibition of hockey and "shinny" was, comparatively speaking, dropped for the remainder of the game. The Limestones had eight more goals to score up; Kinghorn got the first one, Rockwell the next three, one after the other, by combination play; next Kinghorn, then McRae, McKay and Kinghorn pushed through one each. In the meantime the Athletics had scored one goal. The only thing the Limestones are afraid of now is that Queen's seconds will play all first team men against them for the junior championship.

THE EXTRA PERFORMANCE.

The Poor Will Certainly Be Helped Quite An Attraction.

Considering that the newness and uniqueness of the entertainment had passed away, that there had been already four productions of it, the Kirmess was a great attraction last night. The attendance was very large, all the seats in the parquette and dress circle being occupied, and most of the seats in the gallery. The poor, therefore, will be considerably benefited by this extra performance of an extra deserving event. The programme was given in all its elaborateness, including the very remarkable exhibit of Prof. Melville, his dexterous and graceful dancing, blindfolded, among watches and eggs. All the dances were cleverly executed, and the children, in all their parts, were generously applauded by the audience. The little Hudons pleased everyone. The May-pole, Highland, gypsy, scarf, minuet, navel, Irish and other company events were characterized by the expertness that comes from long and devoted practice. Some of the movements of the older dancers were exceedingly pretty. Of course the specialists, Misses Kathleen Harty, Moore, Herchmer and Mucklestone, were the centre of interest and were generally recalled, to receive from admirers the flowers in bouquets and baskets which marked the public appreciation of their efforts. The fun-makers were the two Topsies of whose caricaturing the audience could not get enough. Altogether it was a gratifying performance, though kept a trifle late for old and young. The sacrifice of time and labor was, however, in the interest of a worthy cause, and the poor of the city will have reason to thank those who arranged the Kirmess, and took part in it, and merited such consideration from the people as to be able, to give of their bounty to the needy and indigent.

Prof. Melville will put on the Kirmess in Ottawa next. He left for there to-day and will lose no time. The entertainment will be under the auspices of one of the English churches there.

It Is Illegal.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—City Solicitor Caswell, this morning, gave the mayor a written opinion on the council's resolution reducing the salaries of civic employees. He find the resolution illegal on various grounds. The salaries for the month of January, which are paid at the end of the month, will, therefore, be paid at the old figures.
