ASPHALT WALKS AND STREETS.

The council should build no more wooden walks, especially of lumber, which ought to be culled before it is used and so relieved of all defective material. The city has reached a state, too, when permanent walks should be made as far as possible. Those of artificial stone are decidedly too expensive for the residential parts of the city, and it does not pay to lay asphalt walks without the facilities which permit of this being done expeditiously. Therefore one of the first acts of the board of works should be to decide what is to be done in the way of laying asphalt walks and street surface, and if it is desired to go into the work provide efficient equipment for the same or give out the work by contract as in Montreal. Let tenders be taken for an outfit of appliances, and for supplies, and let the city officials figure out what the work can be done for by corporation labor. At the same time let tenders be taken for the service from those who make a business of asphalting the walks and streets, who are already stocked with all the necessary machinery, who buy their asphalt in wholesale quantities, who have men skilled in manipulating it, and whose calculations for work can be readily procured. The contract system is not the best system in public works. This fact has been established to the satisfaction of the people of Toronto, but it is difficult to handle corporation our day labor to advantage, and the experience of Kingston in this respect has not been altogether without profit. Moreover the purchasing power of the city is not always economically directed. Repeatedly accounts are presented for articles the selling price of which to the city is higher than it is to the private individual. Why should these things be?

THE BARLEY QUESTION.

Mr. Larke, one of Canada's commissioners to the World's Columbian exposition, has returned to Ottawa from Washington, where he had gone in the interest of certain Canadian manufacturers, who are said to be losing some valuable trophies through an alleged revision of the awards. Mr. Larke was said to have been sent out as an emissary of the Canadian government to ascertain all he could about the American tariff reform, in the interest of tariff reform at home, but he denies this. He had not a commission to watch tariff legislation, but having lots of leisure on hand he seems to have given it his special attention, and he loaded up with the idea that Canada "was not in it at all." That was a few days ago.

On Saturday the papers contained reports of the debate on the barley question, and they began with the observation that "this was Canadian day in congress." The reports went further and contained the admission of Mr. Lockwood, of Buffalo, that the duty should be lowered on Canadian barley because it is no wise compared with American barley. He was contradicted by Mr. Tawney, of Minnesota, who showed that under McKinleyism his state had, from 1890 to 1893, increased her production of the grain from 8,000,000 to 15,500,000 bushels, while Canada's exportation, in this same period, had decreased from 12,000,000 to 2,000,000 bushels. Mr. Tawney contended that before the McKinley bill became law there was a difference in price in favor of the Canadian barley, but that to-day the farmers of Minnesota, and Wisconsin, and North and South Dakota are raising as good barley as is raised in Canada.

The reply of Mr. Lockwood, one of the best known authorities in the United States on the subject, is especially significant: "There is not a spot in the United States where you can raise barley equal to the Canadian barley. There cannot be raised in the state of New York, or in any other state, barley in quality and character to the barley raised in Canada. My statement cannot be disputed, that Canadian barley does not come in competition with any American barley, and has not affected the price of the American product." This gives the assurance that the Canadian article will always be in demand, always have a market, though greatly curtailed and limited by tariff restrictions. Mr. Larke tells the astonishing story that the Americans are proceeding with their revision without regard to Canadian interests! Of course their congress is not legislating for Canada. It might do something in that direction if our government would only get a gait on them, and honestly seek a reciprocity in trade. This is the time it should be in order when the Americans are overhauling their tariff and the Canadians are being compelled to revise theirs. The longer reciprocity is put off the worse for Canada, and the barley debate proves this. The heavy duty practically shuts out the Canadian product, the best in the world for malting purposes, and the great brewers have to do without it. Mark the result, as now announced in the press:

"At the present time the great brew-men, the [illegible] all with the west.

"It is announced by [illegible] bers of the ways and means committee that that committee has consented to the amendment asked for by the western men and that thirty per cent. will be the rate fixed upon by the house before the bill comes to a vote."

Canada is suffering a great loss in the barley trade. The United States is not being encouraged to take our barley, and it cannot be profitably shipped to England. The attempt to grow two-rowed barley for English use was a magnificent failure.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Judge McDougall, of Toronto, has decided that the gas company's mains are as much a part of the plant as the retorts and should be taxed. Mr. Gordon will, no doubt, make a note of this.

The college of pharmacy is again attracting attention by its absurd regulations. It is bound to reorganize the trade so far as it concerns pills, powders and patent medicines. And some of these days the trade may turn and proceed to reorganize the college.

McGreevy threatens to hand his papers over to the liberals unless he is released from jail. The government is between the devil and the deep sea. If it refuses to act on the petition presented by McGreevy's friends the whole record of the party will be given away, and if it acts the governor-general may call his advisers to account. According to Bro. Stead he is waiting a chance to open fire upon some one.

Toronto has been agitating for the appointment of a purchasing agent in connection with corporation offices. The "World" does not think much of the scheme. It urges the aldermen to increased watchfulness, and says: "Every servant of the city should be given to understand that any incompetence or jobbery in the purchase of even a broom will lead to his dismissal." The same remark should apply to Kingston's officials.

On dit that during this year the contracts for publishing school books will end, that plates of the matter will be sold to all desiring to buy them, and that there will be no limit upon the publication thereof. Competition in trade leads to a cheapening in price. But what if the publishers should make a combine? They couldn't do so under their arrangement with the government. They can do as they like when that arrangement ends, and the tendency of the age is towards monopoly.

The New Dance Won't Do.

Every hostess has experienced the difficulty of getting men partners enough at dancing functions and of persuading some men to do more than to drink her wines, eat her salads and stand about in the door of the ballroom, laughingly watching the few ambitious young fellows, in the enthusiasm of their first season, dancing most of the time. Now, there seems to be a chance of obviating this difficulty, if the girls do not think the remedy worse than the disease. The Russian valse, now so much in vogue in Paris, is a spirited form of the waltz, in which one man dances with several partners instead of keeping to one. Twelve young ladies instead of one secure each a waltz, and the only drawbacks are that when the dance is over the gentleman cannot take the twelve young ladies into the conservatory with any degree of pleasure on their part, cannot sit out the next waltz with the twelve young ladies on the stairs, and in the present frail condition of the exotic young man in society the result of scrambling for ices for twelve young women might prove fatal.

The Automatic Telephone.

Hamilton Herald:

Automatic telephones, by which every man was supposed to be his own central office and sweet "hello" girl, are going out of fashion. The experience of a Seaforth man is that the instruments require to be looked after constantly to be kept in any kind of order, while it is said that even with best of care it is not once in five times that proper connection is secured. Hamilton manages to jog along very comfortably with a model Bell telephone exchange, and there is not much room here for instruments of the automatic variety, until they work more satisfactorily than they do to-day at any rate. The Bell telephone may have its drawbacks, but probably it is the best and most reliable telephone that mortal men will have the privilege of using this side of heaven.

Death Of Mrs. Joel B. Guess.

There died at Forest, Loughboro, on Jan. 8th, Ann Featherstone, beloved wife of Joel B. Guess, aged seventy-nine years and five months. She was born in Dublin, Ireland, in 1814. She crossed the ocean with her parents when a small child, and settled in Kingston when it was but a small town. She married James McLaughlin for her first husband. To them was born one child, Mrs. Edward Townsend, who now resides at Granby, Que. She was married to Joel B. Guess in 1838, and, therefore, had enjoyed fifty-six years of married life. She was a great sufferer for many years, but bore her sufferings with great patience and christian fortitude. She leaves a husband, three sons and three daughters to mourn. The remains of a devoted wife and mother were deposited in Sydenham vault.

Prevention Is Better

Than cure, and those who are subject to rheumatism can prevent attacks by keeping the blood pure and free from the acid which causes the disease. You can rely upon Hood's Sarsaparilla as a remedy for rheumatism and catarrh; also for every form of scrofula, salt rheum, boils and other diseases caused by impure blood. It tones and vitalizes the whole system.

The Latest Wedding Freak.

At a recent New York fashionable wedding the ceremony of cutting the bride's loaf was performed the night before, at a festivity participated in by the immediate wedding party only, bridesmaids, ushers and the like. This is a revival of an old-time custom. The origin of the wedding loaf is to be found in an old English rite of sprinkling wheat over the head of the bride, as typical of the abundance and prosperity which were hoped for. The first bride cakes were made of wheat, like bread, but gradually evolved into the elaborate and toothsome wedding cake of to-day. When first used as a loaf this was broken over the head of the bride, and the pieces shared only by the near relatives and attendants.

[illegible] the world's Columbian exposition [illegible] vicinity, since its closing Oct. 31st.

Then the locality was thronged by hundreds of thousands of people daily, the sight-seers at the fair. Every street and avenue from 53rd street south to Grand crossing, covering a territory from north to south of over two miles, was crowded with strangers from morn to eve. The lines of transportation by steam, cable, electric and elevated railway cars were filled with expectant passengers, and it seemed as if this city had become the Mecca of the world, bringing to its shrine the Hindoo, Arab, Laplander, Egyptians, Dahomeans and the dwellers of the islands of the sea. But a change has come over the spirit of the dream, and, presto, the illusion has vanished, as quickly as the rising sun will dispel the morning mist of Lake Michigan, for now the streets and avenues are as quiet as any residence street anywhere. The great hotels are closed and deserted. They loom up many stories above the suburban residences that were builded before the fair, and present a forlorn appearance enough. Many of them appear as useless as if located upon an open prairie, far from other habitation. Some of them are adapted for "flats" and are so labelled "for rent." But the greater part of them are vacant, and so what available use much of this hotel property can be adapted is a question that bothers the brains of the "receivers." This refers to permanent structures built of brick and stone. Others of a temporary construction built mainly of lath and plaster upon leased ground, were built to be pulled down and will soon be made to disappear.

Within the park and until Monday night last the changes were but few. None of the exposition buildings proper have been torn away, but sad havoc is now being made with the buildings of the states and foreign buildings.

South Dakota and the Minnesota buildings near the 57th street gate have been demolished. Work has been commenced this week taking down the fine and expensive Pennsylvania house, while the New York building is already a magnificent ruin. The resplendent frescoes and art decorations are fast being demolished. The windows have been taken out, the statuary taken down, the rampant lions that guarded the grand stairway and entrance have disappeared and gone to their lairs.

It seems as if dire destruction had possession of the beautiful house that was the pride and joy of every son of New York. The house of Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Louisiana, Kentucky, Virginia and others upon the centre have not yet been attacked. The interior decorations, even of the Iowa building, still remain much as they were, while the Pompean structure of the state of Vermont is now more thoroughly destroyed than homes of its prototype upon the Mediterranean sea.

Of the more prominent foreign state buildings yet untouched are the German, Sweden, Spain, English, "Victoria house," the Haytian, India and two or three others, while the Canada building has been razed to the ground. The elegant building of Brazil, only completed in July last, with its fine lines and handsome dome and turret, that was so much admired, now looks as if it had met with the usage of buildings at the Rio, in the country that the beautiful building at the fair represented. It has the appearance now of a bombardment, as if stricken from roof to basement with shot and shell.

Demolition has commenced upon the fine building of France. The colonade south of the main building and fronting the lake is fast coming down, and lath and plaster litter the fine courtyard and its portiers. The Ceylon building, builded of timber, has been carefully taken down, to be removed to Lake Geneva, Wis., there to ornament the summer home of a Chicago man.

In the Plaisance havoc reigns supreme. Such structures as the panorama of the Alps have been taken down, while active work of destruction is taking place in Old Vienna and the German village.

The cane, bamboo and thatched huts of the Javan village are being denuded by curiosity hunters who carry away stuff by the armful.

The taking down of the Ferris wheel is under way in a leisurely and systematic manner. The cabs have been unshipped and removed, leaving the great circle a skeleton frame that looms up over all the surrounding locality. The hub of the wheel is much above in height the tallest spire of the university of Chicago close by.

The destruction by fire of the Casino, the Peristyle and music hall on Monday night, of course, has been fully published to the world. The reflections from the blaze illumined the whole section of the Jackson Park district from six p.m. until after midnight. The fine colonade, surmounted with statuary, the grand portal to the lake and pier, have entirely disappeared, and nothing remains but a few charred foundation timbers, blackened stumps of piles and bent and twisted iron work.

The golden statue of Liberty, standing in close proximity, sustained no damage. Those who looked upon the Peristyle and court of honor would be impressed with the missing palace at its eastern end with its perfection vanished. Still the place has as a back ground the blue expanse of Lake Michigan, and if the debris of the ruins were cleared away the effect from the administration building would be natural and fine. Upon New Year's day Jackson Park was again opened free to the public, after more than two years of admission fees, as stated in one of the city papers. In the afternoon the sky was clear, the sun shone brightly, and the White City presented an appearance that was full of mid-winter activeness and charming beauty. Its deserted streets, bare shrubbery, empty buildings, and impressive quietness form a wonderful contrast to the stirring scenes witnessed there on many glorious afternoons last summer. Hereafter the gates will be wide open. The last of the ticket sellers and ticket takers have lost their occupation. Only a few guards for the buildings and grounds will be kept on duty for a short time.

At midnight of the last day of the old year a solitary guard stood alone on the lagoon bridge leading to the west entrance of the manufacturers' building. The great domes and spires of the exposition palaces stood out boldly in the darkness, and amid silent surroundings grander than a poet's dream the old year took its leave of the White City and a new year had been ushered in.—J. L. HOTCHKIN in Watertown "Times."

FOOLED THEEE WIDOWS.

One He Married and Promised to Marry the Other Two—All Three Swindled.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 22.—William Henry Stegner has within a week in this city married one widow, promised to marry two others and swindled all of them. Monday last he married Mrs. Elizabeth Hamm, milliner, and secured $60 from her. Tuesday he left her and met by appointment Mrs. Belle Moulton, whom he offered to marry and secured $11. Wednesday, Mrs. Sallie Gresham was engaged by Stegner to do house work, and he suggested marriage as a future possibility. He secured a small sum from her also. By accident the two last victims met and compared experiences. They went to the prosecuting attorney together to secure a warrant, where they found the first victim had preceded them. Nothing is known of Stegner's antecedents or where-abouts.

A BUG IN HIS STOMACH.

An Indiana Boy Dies From an Extraordinary Cause.

MUNCIE, Ind., Jan. 22.—Local physicians report a remarkable case which has come under their observation. A few days ago Samuel, the seven-year-old son of John Lennox, died. The symptoms were very peculiar, and the attending physicians were much puzzled at the case. The boy was sick for some time, but his case was different from any other. A post-mortem examination revealed that a part of his heart had been eaten away by an insect, causing death. Nearly a year ago, while the family resided at Hartford City, the boy drank water from a brook and swallowed a water bug. The bug ate its way into the boy's stomach, and began devouring the heart, the boy bleeding to death.

Rushing In The Timber.

DONALDSON'S MILLS, Jan. 21.—Mundell's school was filled to overflowing Friday night, Santa Claus, who, by the way, seems to be a trifle late, was in our midst. He had many presents for old and young, and all went home pleased with the evening's enjoyment. Proceeds, $18, for the minister. There is talk of a great revival here soon. The last one, well, nearly everyone took it in, but it did not seem to affect them more than the grippe, and in some cases not as much. We hope this will be an epidemic and more lasting. Some uneasiness is being felt, owing to the soft weather, and people are rushing in their timber as fast as possible. Donaldson's yard is being filled more quickly than ever before. He expects to have out about 1,500 cords of shingle wood and probably 1,000 logs to be manufactured at his mills; has sixteen men in the shanty besides several jobbers. D. Toner is around again, after having the grippe. Miss Mary Amey has returned after a visit to Dead Creek. The circulation of the WHIG is as ten to one of all the other journals combined reaching this office. E. H. Newsom is suffering from the grippe.

Gored By a Cow.

A fine colt belonging to Peter Lindsay, of Nixon, Ont., was badly hooked by a cow. Two bottles of Hagyard's Yellow Oil cured it. This invaluable remedy should be in every house. It cures cuts, sprains, bruises, burns, and all pains and aches in man or beast.

Montreal Matters.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—Hon. F. Levy, the New York Jewish philanthropist, was to have been here, yesterday, to install Aberdeen and Victoria lodges of the Sons of Benjamin, but was prevented by illness. These two new lodges are formed for the purpose of assisting and settling destitute Hebrews in the country, as well as bringing Russian Jews into this country. The lodges also propose to form a Jewish colony in the north-west.

Hon. Edward Blake will address a public meeting here on the Irish situation on Monday evening next. Subscriptions will also be taken up for the cause of home rule.

MARTIN MATTERS.

MARTIN, Jan. 22.—J. Bell, who has been very ill with grippe, is able to be out again. Our school is favorably progressing under the able management of E. Emberly, Yarker. Mrs. N. Asselstine has moved to Sydenham. The literary meeting at J. Shibley's, on Tuesday night of last week, was very much enjoyed by all. Mrs. J. Martin, very poorly for some time is still on the sick list. Skating is the order of the day. Master Roy McLean, who accidentally broke his arm while climbing over a fence, is slowly improving. Visitors: Miss L. Reid, at R. Redden's; Miss Ida Rogers at A. Wallace's; Mrs. W. J. Lake and family, Murvale, at Mrs. J. Lake's; Mr. and Mrs. J. Freeman, Hartington, at Mr. McQuade's.

Conway Cullings.

CONWAY, Jan. 22.—The ladies' aid of Sillsville furnished an excellent programme on the 16th. Rev. W. B. Tucker lectured on "The Conditions For Success." E. Clark made an excellent chairman. The Presbyterian entertainment on the 19th was a success. Heavy rain on Sunday morning; roads quite bare; excellent wheeling. Miss B. Mills, London collegiate institute, has taken up her position as teacher at No. 1. Mrs. Tucker and children took up their abode in the new parsonage on Friday. Glad to see Mrs. M. Switzer so far covered as to be out driving. John Phippen's family have been down with grippe.

Frankville Items.

FRANKVILLE, Jan. 22.—Mrs. Charles Leehy, attacked with paralysis three weeks ago, died on Thursday night. She never spoke after the attack. She was buried on Sunday last. Walton Daily was the guest of James Gallagher from Saturday till Monday. Ezra Ireland is very sick with little hopes of recovery. There was hail, rain and snow here on Sunday morning. Logs are coming in pretty fast to the mill. Charles Budd is recovering from a severe attack of the grippe.

We had seven or eight doctors, without the least shadow of benefit. When Kitty had taken half a bottle of

Hood's Sarsaparilla

She was better, and when she had taken [illegible] bottles she was perfectly cured and has shown

No Sign of Salt Rheum

For almost four years. Her skin is now as fair and clear as any child's in town." WM. FOX, Williams Slate Mantel Works, Fair Haven, Vt.
