A Convincing Reply. Hon, Mr. Dryden, in reply, said there was no objection to give any of the partienlars asked for in the motion. Government had no wish to keep back I formation connected with the discovery this disease in the dairy department at the Agricultural College. The discovery having been made, it was manifestly the Government's duty to pursue the investigation further in order to find all possible information for the people of this country All the noise and difficulty that had taken place occurred simply because instructions were given for the matter to be investigat-1 ed. The disease having been definitely ascertained to exist, orders were given Dr 4. Raid, veterinary surgeon at the college, to make experiments with Koch's lymph. He (Mr. Dryden) did not know whether it was understood that it was impossible, even by the most expert veterinary surgeon, to tell anything about the disease being present of these animals, except in the earlier stages and by the use of the fluid he had mentioned.
