When military or naval officers were, in days gone by, ordered on active service the extra premium demanded by the insurance offices was a very serious consideration. As instances of the sums demanded Gen. Henry Brackenbury had to pay £21 for every £100 insured at the outbreak the Ashantee war, and Sir Garnet Wolseley had to pay £25 for every £100. These war risks were not then based upon any known statistics, but elaborate calculations have since been gone into as to the risks of officers from a life insurance point of view, and the board of the Gresham have adopted a set of premium rates within easy reach of officers.
