WASHINGTON, April 25.—If there was to be an equal division of property in the United States, each man, woman and child would receive $1,039 as his or her share, according to the valuation of the real estate and personal property in the census returns. The total value of all property in 1890 was $65,030,091,197, which was an increase of 49.02 per cent over the returns of 1880.

In 1850 the total valuation of property in the country was a little over $7,000,000,000 or $308 per capita. In 1890 it was $16,000,000,000, or $514 per capita. In 1870 it was $30,000,000,000, or $780 per capita and in 1880 it was $43,500,000,000 or $870 per capita.

Rules to Follow in Conversation.

Raillery is the finest part of conversation; but, as it is our usual custom to counterfeit and adulterate whatever is too dear for us, so we have done with this; and turned it all into what is generally called repartee, or being smart; just as when an expensive fashion cometh up, those who are not able to reach it content themselves with some paltry imitation. It now passeth for raillery to run a man down in discourse, to put him out of countenance, and make him ridiculous; sometimes to expose the defects of his person or understanding; on all which occasions he is obliged not to be angry, to avoid the imputation of not being able to take a jest. It is admirable to observe one who is dexterous at this art, singling out a weak adversary, getting the laugh on his side and then carrying all before him. The French, from whom we borrow the word, have a quite different idea of the thing, and so had we in the politer age of our fathers. Raillery was to say something that at first appeared a reproach or reflection; but, by some turn of wit, unexpected and surprising, ended always in a compliment, and to the advantage of the person it was addressed to. And surely one of the best rules in conversation is never to say a thing which any of the company can reasonably wish we had rather left unsaid; nor can there anything be well more contrary to the ends for which people meet together, than to part unsatisfied with each other or themselves. —Dean Swift.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.

For bad legs, bad breasts, scorbutic and scrofulous sores this is a genuine specific. The grateful and earnest gratitude of thousands who have experienced its unrivalled power over these complaints, and who have been raised from prostrate helplessness and a condition loathsome to themselves and others, renders it quite unnecessary to enlarge in this place upon its extraordinary virtues. The parts effected should be bathed with lukewarm water, and when the pores are thereby opened, the ointment should be well rubbed in, at least twice a day. It is always advisable to take Holloway's Pills in these disorders, as this much assists the ointment's action. The pills check the fever, purify the blood, and eject all morbid matter engendered by these diseases.
