MEDICAL.

The rich man who sits down to a table loaded with the good things of this world and dare not eat them is to be pitied. But what about the many poor men and women who must daily earn their bread suffering with this terrible life-draining complaint—DYSPEPSIA? Some day, unless cured, the nervous, muscular and mental systems will be forced to give way, and then—Well, why not cure it? It can be cured, as we have shown in thousands of cases. You have no doubt tried drugs and failed, but don't let that discourage you. Nature has a remedy for every ailment, and we believe in Dyspepsia Electricity is the remedy. For applying this wonderful agent there is nothing made to equal DR. SANDEN'S ELECTRIC BELT, which is a complete galvanic body-battery, and if you are a sufferer you are neglecting the opportunity of you life in not investigating it. It will cure you and only costs a trifle. Read this letter from one who has tried our Belts.

DR. A. T. SANDEN, Dear Sir—I write to tell you of your Belt in my case. The pains from which I suffered at the small of my back, have entirely disappeared, and I feel much better in every way since I began to wear your Belt. When I commenced to use the Belt, I was troubled with dyspepsia, but it has now disappeared, and when I eat, my food, which formerly lay heavily on my stomach, now digests readily. This is all I have to say, but I hope it is such as to recommend the belt to people who need it. I know your Belts are all that you claim them to be.

Yours very truly, PATRICK KELCHER, Duke Street, West End, St. John, N. B., Can.

A GOWN FOR THE HOME.

HINTS ON THE MAKING OF A CHARMING INDOOR DRESS.

It Is a Wool Challie of Lovely Design—Made in Walking Length, This Gown Is Admirable for Street Dress—Ideas in Trimming.

By following the hints here given, one of the prettiest dresses conceivable may be wrought from the appended design. It is a house gown of the loveliest sort, and for women who like such construction in their dresses it may be shortened for street wear. Lavender wool challi, having a clover leaf design in olive green, is here stylishly trimmed with olive satin. The revers, sleeves, collar and sash are of satin, lined with the challi, while the sleeve caps are of the challi, lined with the satin. The sash is finished with deep silk knotted fringe in a combination of the two colors. The gown is in "princess" shape, fitting the figure smoothly, and falling in ripple-like folds around the skirt. Made in walking length, this model, is a favorite for a street dress with ladies who like the weight of their gowns to depend from the shoulders. The style is also a desirable one for dresses of silk or woolen fabrics. Gimp braid, insertion, etc., can be used for trimming.

Pedestrianism a la Mode.

For once fashion has dictated a craze whose indulgence is calculated to strengthen wind and limb in the devotee. A new style in walking has been introduced, and if girls will only go as crazy about it as they usually do about a new thing in sleeves or skirts the chances are their parents and guardians will bless the day that saw the fad set agoing. To be strictly in style the up-to-date girl must walk with the body inclined forward from the hips, the shoulders thrown back and the elbows bent at a sharp angle. The gait is a swinging, easy stride, the arms being kept in unison with the movement, the hands well up and the elbows back. A Michigan avenue physician who saw the new walk for the first time the other day grudgingly acknowledged that once in a great while fashion moved along the lines of common sense. "That walk is well enough as far as it goes," said he, "but the girl must abandon French heels and corsets if she expects to get the full benefit of such exercise. Anyway, as it is, it's too sensible to last."—Chicago Herald.

About Cushions.

An exchange comments severely upon the over-elaborate and too numerous cushions. Among other things, the writer says, we think artistic and elaborate are synonomous terms; have too little knowledge and appreciation of color harmony, and think that embroidery, good, bad and indifferent, is ornamental, and it would be well if every householder could read and remember the words. Elegance and simplicity frequently, if not always, go hand in hand. Over-eloboration is vulgar, and above all things cushions too fine for use should be abolished from our homes. Within these few days past some delightful, big, square pillows, covered with figured corduroy, were seen, and it is a thousand pities such things cannot take the place of senseless finery. They are quiet and simple in the extreme. The good color of the cloth is the only decoration. There are neither frills nor ribbons nor puffs, but only handsome, sturdy material, in excellent design without, and the softest of down within.

It Is Well To Remember

That a box in the kitchen, or drawer or shelf in the cupboard will hold paper bags, also the strings, and they will be found useful many times.

That one use is to slit them open and line the cake tins.

That another use is to cover each jar of canned fruit to keep out the light.

That newspapers should be saved for kitchen use, to wipe the stove off, to polish the teakettle, to wipe the flatirons, doubled to place under a hot kettle or hot dish we wish to place on the table.

That two or three spread on the floor in front of the table, stove, sink on baking day, saves the floor, and they can be burned up when through with, taking the dust with them.

That a handful of iron tacks are good to clean out bottles and fruit cans with; half-fill the jars with soapsuds, then add the tacks and shake.

That it is safer to use them than shot, as the latter may leave a poison deposit.

That if one cooks in hot summer weather, one should dress as cool as possible.

That a dress made of five cent challie is surprisingly cool, and will wear longer than one would suppose from the thin nature of the goods.—Good Housekeeping.

Frosting Without Eggs.

One cupful of granulated sugar, five tablespoonfuls of milk. Boil four or five minutes till it threads from the spoon. Flavor as desired. Stir till right thickness for spreading. This is fine grained, white and delicious.

Creamed Codfish.

Melt a generous tablespoonful of butter and stir into it a tablespoonful of flour; add a half pint of rich milk—cream is better. Stir into it half a pint of fish, shredded very fine, and two well-beaten eggs. Cook a minute and serve redhot.

Last Will And Testament.

The last will of the late John McLennan, Lancaster, Ont., has been registered. He bequeaths his dwelling house, "By the Lake," etc., to his widow during her lifetime. After some other bequests he leaves to his son, Duncan, one-third of the remainder; to his nephew, Francis McLennan, advocate, Montreal, $5,000. Deceased's brothers, Hugh McLennan, of Montreal, Alexander McLennan, Lancaster; his son Duncan, and his nephew, William, Montreal, are appointed executors.

SALAD MAKING.

How to Serve With the Simple French Dressing—A New Salad.

Many housewives are deterred from having salads often from the impression that a mayonnaise is indispensable. In fact, preference is generally given to a simple French dressing, which any one can learn to make with a little practice. The usual proportion for this is three parts oil to one of vinegar. Aside from lettuce, there are many salad herbs, such as water cress and peppergrass, escarolle, endive and dandelion leaves. Dandelion, however, is only fit for a salad when its leaves are tender. All of these herbs must be washed carefully, leaf by leaf, and allowed to stand in cold water until firm and crisp.

At the table dress the salad by pouring over it first three or four tablespoonfuls of good oil and toss well, turning it over and over until each leaf is well coated with oil. Now put into the salad spoon a saltspoonful of salt, a liberal allowance of pepper and fill the spoon with vinegar, mixing the salt and pepper well with the fork before pouring over the salad. Toss as before and serve.

In the absence of other green vegetables cabbage makes an excellent salad, but it must be cut in very fine shreds and crisped in cold water and dried thoroughly. Use plenty of oil and four tablespoonfuls of vinegar and serve with crackers and cheese, advises Harper's Bazar, which also furnishes the following:

To make a new salad select large ripe tomatoes, cut a circle from the stem end of each one and take out the pulp with a sharp knife, being careful not to break the skin. Chop up the pulp together with a fresh cucumber peeled and a slice of onion. Season with pepper, salt and a little nice oil and set in the icebox with the skins to get quite cold. Make at the same time a thick mayonnaise and set that also in a cold place. Just before serving time fill the skins with the chopped mixture, draining off all superfluous liquid, and put a large spoonful of the mayonnaise on top of each one. Arrange some crisp lettuce leaves in a circle on a low platter, set the stuffed tomatoes in the centre and serve as a separate course at luncheon or dinner, passing with it delicate crackers and cheese.

TRAVELS OF A CAT.

Accomplishing a Long Journey to Reach Old, Familiar Haunts.

The big, black cat whose picture we give was born and reared in one of two semi detached houses on a hill overlooking the well-known and historic racecourse, the Carholme, of Lincoln, England. This house has been occupied by a medical man and his family for the last six years, and the cat became so great a favorite that last December, when its owner removed to Forest Hill, London, puss was taken to the new home, being conveyed, like the rest of the family, by train and cab. For about a month the cat seems to have been contented and happy, but it was noticed it ate largely and slept much, and as a consequence it became fat and looked sleek and well-to-do. Towards the end of the month, after this careful training, the cat disappeared, and after a thorough search was lamented as a friend gone forever. This event took place in the beginning of the severe frost and snowstorm, and before the storm was over the cat turned up at its old home in Lincoln, making loud mewings to gain admittance to its former home.

The next door folks, who knew puss well, guessed at his achievement and gave him a great reception. It is computed that the animal performed the journey in about eight days, traveling at the rate of over seventeen miles a day, and, although the cat was rather thin in flesh, still it was in fairly good condition when it reached Lincoln. When one takes into consideration the distance between Forest Hill and Lincoln—nearly 140 miles—the intense severity of the weather, and the thousand obstacles the poor creature must have encountered on its way across London and down to Lincoln, the journey is a marvel for so small and weak an animal to have accomplished.

All Men

Young, old or middle aged, who find themselves, nervous, weak and exhausted, who are broken down from excess or overwork, resulting in many of the following symptoms: Mental depression, premature old age, loss of vitality, loss of memory, bad dreams, dimness of sight, palpitation of the heart, emissions, lack of energy, pain in the kidneys, headaches, pimples on the face and body, itching or peculiar sensation about the scrotum, wasting of the organs, dizziness, specks before the eyes, twitching of the muscles, eyelids and elsewhere, bashfulness, deposits in the urine, loss of will power, tenderness of the scalp and spine, weak and flabby muscles, desire to sleep, failure to be rested by sleep, constipation, dulness of hearing, loss of voice, desire for solitude, excitability of temper, sunken eyes, surrounded with LEADEN CIRCLES, oily looking skin, etc., are all symptoms of nervous debility that lead to insanity unless cured. The spring or vital force having lost its tension every function wanes in consequence. Those who through abuse committed in ignorance, may be permanently cured. ONTARIO'S SECRETARY.

A Scholarly and Able Gentleman With a Brilliant Academical Career.

Lieut.-Col. the Hon. John Morrison Gibson, LL.B., Q.C., M.P.P., and Provincial Secretary for Ontario, was born in Toronto township, Peel county, January 1, 1842. His father, the late William Gibson, came to Canada in 1827 from Glamis, Forforshire, Scotland, and became a farmer. The late David Gibson, formerly representative of North York in the old Parliament of Canada, was a cousin to J. M. Gibson.

The subject of this sketch got his early training in the famous Central school, Hamilton, under the mastership of Dr. J. H. Sangster. With his fine natural endowments and studious habits young Gibson was facile princeps there. Matriculating into Toronto University in 1859 his college course was distinguished by many brilliant victories, and on graduating in 1863 he took the Prince of Wales' prize. His especial favorites for study were the languages, not only the classics and those of modern Europe, but the Oriental as well. During the term of his articles as a law student in the office of the firm of which the present Justice Burton was head in Hamilton he entered the law course of his alma mater, receiving as the reward of his application the degree of LL.B. and the gold medal of the faculty in 1869.

He formed a partnership with Francis Mackelcan, Q.C., in Hamilton, and has since been associated with him in practising his profession, and has attained a place in the first rank of the legal luminaries of the country.

In 1861, the time of the Trent affair, he enrolled in University Rifle Company, and later joined the 13th Battalion of Hamilton as a private, rising through the ranks to become commanding officer of that celebrated corps. Col. Gibson is a marksman of repute. A member of the Wimbledon teams of '73, '74 and '79, he won in the last year the Prince of Wales' prize of £100 and badge and other championships with his rifle. In '81, when he had command of the team, the Canadians won from the British the Kolapore Cup. He was president of the Ontario Rifle Association for several years, and for the past two years of the Dominion Rifle Association. He was also the first president of the Canadian Military Rifle League, a position which he held for three years.

HON. J. M. GIBSON.

In educational affairs also he has held the highest positions in the gift of his city, the chairmanship of its Board of Education.

Freemasonry, too, has honored him with the office of grand master for the past two years.

His political career commenced with the Reform Association of Hamilton, of which he was the indefatigable secretary for many years. In 1879 he was elected to the Ontario Legislature in succession to J. M. Williams, a Conservative, and has since held the representation of Hamilton against all comers. Singularly enough, too, for the Ambitious City knows none but Conservatives in the other parliament, the Commons at Ottawa.

In the House Col. Gibson's ability soon marked him for preferment and in 1889 he became Provincial Secretary, the hardest worked officer of the Ontario Government. That Department now has under its charge the prisons, charities and public institutions, insurance and division court inspection and regulations and the administration of the game laws and those relating to neglected and dependent children.

For the last named, Mr. Gibson has, by the act bearing his name, enacted legislation of the highest and most humane character. Chancellor Boyd at the Wentworth assizes said of it:

"Much attention has been given to the preventing of juvenile crime and your own representative, Hon. Mr. Gibson, has placed upon the statute-books one of the best measures ever passed in this respect. Prevention of crime is better than cure and better doubly than punishment."

He is an able administrator and a colleague upon whom Sir Oliver Mowat can rely for breadth of knowledge and soundness of judgment.

Courteous, kindly and generous without a blemish on his reputation he fully merits and receives the confidence of his constituents, the members of the House and of his colleagues in the Ministry.

Col. Gibson has been married three times but has met with severe calamities in his domestic relations, death having deprived him his first and second wives. His third marriage was to Elizabeth, daughter of the late Judge Malloch, of Brockville, by whom he has several children.
