THE LATEST FASHIONS.

A JENNESS MILLER TAILOR-MADE LINEN DUCK GOWN.

The Distinguishing Characteristics of the Latest Gown—The Fabric Most in Vogue—The Smart Hats Worn by Well-Dressed Women This Season.

Some of the latest and dressiest gowns have been fully fashioned which are met by jobs of lace so wide that they fill in the entire side of the skirt. This garment is made, of course, only on very handsome dresses, and is adapted to the fashion of the season.

HOW TO KEEP ICE

A Milk-Room Hint Which Certainly is Worth Knowing.

A very simple but little known method of keeping ice to draw a piece of thick fabric tightly over some deep vessel, like a bowl, for instance, and fasten it there. The ice is placed on top of this drumbed and covered loosely by another piece of fabric.

In this condition the ice keeps cool and even freezes to the vessel. Thus a small piece of ice can be kept near the patient all night, so as to avert many weary hours of watching and down stairs to the refrigerator.

To break the ice a sharp needle or hat pin is the best thing. Force it in and you will find the ice is broken. L. George, in Youth's Companion.

Any method of preservation to be effective must be applied when the eggs are quite fresh and must aim at the exclusion of the air, from the inside of the shell.

The best method is to use a very simple one, as detailed by the Feathered World. A very small piece of good butter should be placed between the palms of the hands and rubbed well over the inner surface of both hands. When it is thoroughly melted, the eggs to be buttered should be taken in the hands and thoroughly covered over with the melted butter.

The buttered eggs should then be placed in a basket in a dry, cool place and need to be turned until they are wanted for use.

The other process of preservation is by putting them in lime water. A large earthenware vessel of some kind is most suitable for this purpose.

There are several methods which vary in detail, but all are equally efficacious. The simplest plan is to fill the vessel intended to be used with water, put in a couple of good sized pieces of both slaked lime. The exact quantity used is not of consequence, provided that there is not enough to saturate the water.

An evidence of this there should always be a film of lime on the surface of the water. The lime at the bottom will do no harm, but rather good, as it will lessen the risk of any egg being cracked when being put into the lime water.

The vessel may be filled with eggs at once, or they may be added day by day. Care must be taken that the eggs are covered with water, and to prevent evaporation a cover to the vessel is of advantage.

In case there is evaporation or leakage water may be added from time to time, and if there be not a film on top some fresh slaked lime should be added by sprinkling it in the water. Unless it is certain that the eggs are fresh, they should be examined before placing in the lime, as in this process one had egg frequently leads to a lot being spoiled. Some salt is added to the lime by old hands.

All Men Young, old or middle aged, who find themselves nervous, weak and exhausted, who are broken down by overwork, overstrain, or by the following symptoms: Mental depression, premature old age, loss of vitality, loss of memory, bad dreams, dimness of vision, palpitation of the heart, emaciation, lack of energy, pain in the kidneys, headaches, pimples on the face and body, itching or peculiar sensation about the neck, wasting of the organs, dizziness, specks before the eyes, twitching of the muscles, eyelids and elsewhere, loss of power, tenderness of the scalp and spine, weak and flabby muscles, desire to sleep, failure to be rested by sleep, constipation, dulness of hearing, loss of appetite, loss of spirits, irritability, loss of temper, sunken eyes, surrounded with leaden circles, oily looking skin, etc., are all symptoms of nervous debility that lead to insanity unless cured. This spring or vital force having left the top of every function leaves in consequence. Those who through abuse committed in the past have been permanently injured, or who are suffering from any of the above symptoms, should send their address and 10c in stamps for book on diseases peculiar to man, sent sealed. Address M. V. LUDON, 24 Macdonnell Ave., Toronto, Ont., Canada. Please mention this paper.

A Hammock is the Stockroom. A hammock will often prove a boon to a sick person who has grown weary of the bed. It can be strung across a room from a door frame to the window casing and may be swung right over the bed where the patient can slip into it as well as there are light cotton hammocks that are tight, pretty, and are soft as silk to the touch. A hammock adjusts itself so perfectly to every inch of the body that it is a wonder that tired women do not try their resting properties often.

A Wise Wife. Happily—By George! I can't understand it. My credit must be gone. Business men don't seem to think I'm able to pay. Mrs. Hensley—Perhaps they think so if they see your wife dress better.

When they was weak, we gave her Clonox. When she was a Child, she cried for Clonox. When she became a Man, she clung to Clonox. When she had Children, she gave them Clonox.

Some Smart Hats. The first shapes seen in spring and autumn are rarely to be relied upon as being the groundwork for summer and winter wear. They are usually conspicuous, and are fashions sent out to try the popular taste. The jaunty little caplet bare worn by the young ladies, the elegant little Homburgs and a modified Albatross, something on the plan of the old-fashioned English walking hat. These Homburgs were the first sold by the hat maker, and were in vogue in town, but can now be bought in almost any shop. Not quite the same, but sufficiently like to make them satisfactory and more economical than the Homburgs. Hatters are pretty much the same as we remember them. They have wide brims and medium high crowns, trimmed as usual with black or dark blue ribbon. The ribbons are more in favor than the coarse ones. Trimmings resemble those of two or three seasons ago, with quite narrow black or dark blue ribbon. The correct thing is to have the straw look as though it had been exposed to at least one summer's sun and rain. It is called "burnt," and the color certainly is that of scorched straw. Leghorn hats, black and white, are as much the fashion as ever. With wash-gown nothing can be prettier, and now, made soft and flexible, they can be bent and caught up in a thousand and one dainty and stylish shapes. These hats are more becoming to young girls than to older women, or to high priced, or to the older day by a woman of thirty five with black hair, but caught up sharply at the back, a big Albatross bow of black ribbon was directly across the crown, the back loops falling over the twisted up back rim, and with a trimmed ribbon.

Another white leghorn was trimmed with lilac, purple and white, and a soft scarf of purple gauze the exact shade of the lilac. This hat was covered with lilac, black and white, and a soft scarf of purple gauze the exact shade of the lilac.
