HE IS NOT A CANDIDATE.

Mayor Herald Says He is Not in the Field For Next Year.

This morning a reporter interviewed Mayor Herald in his office in the city buildings with a view to finding out his intentions as to becoming a contestant for the mayor's chair for a second term. When the interview was over the reporter felt assured he could print that Mayor Herald would not be in the contest for 1895.

It was pointed out to the mayor that as there had been considerable talk about him, without his consent, on the line of the mayoralty of 1895, it would not be out of place for him to make known his intentions in the matter.

The mayor smiled and said it was funny his name should have been linked with the mayoralty of 1895. "As far as I know I am not a candidate for the mayoralty of 1895. Neither have I a desire to break an established rule that a man should only occupy the mayor's chair one year. While this is a recognized rule, I am not willing to say it is a wise one, for he will be a slow man who will not know more at the end of his term as mayor than at the beginning."

"You have been hoomed for a second term. What do you think of that?"

The mayor replied: "I am grateful to the friends who wrote in my behalf under anonymous signatures, but their testimonies are not sufficient to ensure a start. I always knew I had a few friends who would say a good word in my behalf. Last year I would not have been a candidate for the mayor's chair had I not been assured of the support of leading men in the reform ranks. I made a bold push and succeeded, notwithstanding that many people in the city did not know me. I hope my success have been such as to merit the esteem of the citizens. As far as I am concerned the contest for the mayor's chair for 1895 will be between Alds. Wright and Carson, and the former has a good chance of success."

THE PRIMOS IN COURT.

EVIDENCE TO SHOW THEY KEPT A DISORDERLY HOUSE.

Mothers Tell What They Learned About the Place—Helping a Daughter to Get Away—Certainly a Tough Quarter For Young People to be Forced To.

The police court room was again packed this morning, the cases against John and Ann Primo, Annie Patterson, Mary E. Primo and William Davis being the attraction. John and Ann Primo's case, for keeping a disorderly house, was first called.

Mrs. Blakely testified that she believed the couple kept a disorderly house because they harbored young girls and men. The girls went there at all times of the day, Sunday as well as other days. She did not know when they left. She had heard noises in the houses at all hours of the night, principally on Sundays.

Primo had no questions to ask the witness but claimed that no one could know that he kept a disorderly house. If "youngsters" offered him 25c for a meal was he to refuse it, when it helped him to exist? This was Primo's position; further than furnishing them with meals nothing occurred.

Mrs. Clark lived next door and knew that Primo kept girls in the house. The two Patterson girls, one of the Blakely girls and a girl named Hamilton had been there. Disorder existed during the night. Witness had asked Mrs. Primo not to make so much noise at night and she told witness "to go to ——— that if she could make a dollar she was going to." Witness had seen Mrs. Blakely come to Primo's door looking after her daughter and had seen Mrs. Primo and Annie Patterson put Mrs. Blakely's daughter over the fence and help her to escape from her mother, at the same time calling Mrs. Blakely bad names.

Primo claimed that the girls merely came into his house as they would any other house.

Mrs. Elizabeth Patterson, whose daughter was in the scrape, knew the Primo's and their house. She went to the house looking for her daughter Annie when she heard she was there. She forbid Primo from keeping Annie there as she knew it was no fit place for her. Primo said he would not get himself into any trouble for keeping Annie there as she was of age and her own boss. Annie was just nineteen years of age. Annie was at the house for two weeks. She went there on Friday afternoon, two weeks ago. On one occasion when she went to the house there were a lot of soldiers there.

John Clancey, a real old Irishman, lived over Primo's house and knew that one day last week there was quite a loud time on the thoroughfare in front of the house. He knew at times that there were noises down stairs, but then he often made quite a racket with the bad cough he had. He was never in Primo's place and knew nothing of the order of the place.

Mrs. White had been in Primo's house and knew that young girls went in and out there. Witness knew Annie Patterson. She did not know whether Primo kept a disorderly house. Mrs. Primo was in the habit of using very bad language.

Officer Craig testified that his attention had often been drawn to Primo's house by people while on his beat. They claimed it was a disorderly house. Witness had seen soldiers in the neighborhood of ten o'clock at night. They were young men and girls, principally, although he had seen old men and women also. A couple of weeks ago Mrs. Patterson stopped witness and told him that her daughter was in the house and she could not get her. Witness advised Mrs. Patterson to go over to the house and demand an entrance and he would wait to see if she was allowed in. Mrs. Patterson went in and soon after came out and said her daughter was not there. On advice of witness Mrs. Patterson forbade Primo from keeping her daughter. Witness believed Primo made a living by keeping a disorderly house. Primo's wife begged from door to door. The characters of the girls that go to the house were not good.

Officer McCullough told of the frequent complaints of the house. It was a resort for young girls whose reputations were not good. The girl Hamilton, better known as "British Columbia," was arrested by witness about three weeks ago for vagrancy. The magistrate allowed the girl's grandmother to take her and send her home. She had been in Primo's.

Officer Aiken corroborated the evidence of the other policemen.

Annie Patterson testified that she had frequented Primo's house for a couple of weeks. She claimed she would not have remained there had not Mrs. Primo told her she was of age and could do as she chose. Mrs. Primo told her to make all the money she could and no one would know of it. Mrs. Primo said she would make all she could. Witness did not see anyone in she house after ten o'clock except on the night of the dance. Primo asked witness to go with him to Watertown; that he was going to start a house there. Witness said she would go with him. Mr. Primo asked witness why she wasn't like Minnie Spencer, who used to live with him. Primo said Minnie made lots of money. Witness thought Minnie to be the worst girl in Kingston.

This concluded the evidence for the prosecution and Primo called George Brown on his behalf. He had been a neighbor for three years and never saw any gambling or card playing in the house. He did not know of anything going on in the house to make it disorderly.

John Clark heard bad language in the house but that was all.

As Primo wanted further evidence the magistrate adjourned the case. Primo asked that he be let off and he would go to Watertown or some other place but the magistrate said it would not be right to allow him to contaminate other places also.

The case of abusive language against Ann Primo was taken up. Mrs. Clark and Mrs. White testified to bad language being used and Mrs. Primo admitted that she had used it, but claimed that Mrs. Clark had used even worse language towards her.

This case was allowed to stand until to-morrow as was also the charges against Annie Patterson and Mary Primo for being frequenters.

William Davis, for being a frequenter, was allowed to go as he has brothers in Montreal willing to care for him.

There is no doubt but that Primo and his wife will be sent up.

Jacob Barrigan, for using obscene and insulting language, was fined $5 and costs or a month in jail.

The cases against Gr. Perrie, in the Primo dance racket, were allowed to stand over for a week. In the meantime Corpl. Andrew McCully and Gr. James Miller will be charged with assault.

William McAdoo, drunk, stands.

The conduct of a couple of "A" batterymen to Officer Nicholas Timmerman, as he was delivering a message to Major Drury, was not over looked by the latter. The men were given the option of being tried by Major Drury or court martial. They elected to be tried by the major. Officer Timmerman and other soldiers testified. The major considered the evidence sufficiently strong to warrant convicting Gr. Andrews to seven days at hard labor.

Saved A Man's Life.

On Saturday evening Mr. Macdonald, harness-maker, while walking on the Grand Trunk track at the rear of B. McCarey's store, stepped on a young man lying between the rails. He was drunk, and his clothes were soaked with water. He said he had been in the lake and crawled out without assistance. He was taken to the Ottawa house, where he was given some refreshments and put to bed. He said he belonged to Montreal, but would not tell his name. Had he remained on the track five minutes longer he would have been killed.

Beware of Tramps.

On Friday while Miss Waldie, daughter of Andrew Waldie, was alone, a hard looking tramp came to the back door and demanded his dinner. Miss Waldie replied: "Dinner is over and I have no dinner for you." The tramp spoke boldly: "Young woman, I want my dinner, and I want it in a hurry. If you do not get it for me you will be sorry." Miss Waldie said: "You are pretty saucy and had better leave." The tramp continued: "I do not want any of your impertinence, miss. Get my dinner." Before he knew what was up she shoved him out of the door and locked him out. In view of the Listowel tragedy the police should keep the city rid of tramps.

Had A Big Time.

Dr. Ross Allen, a graduate of Queen's college, has a good position in Olean, N.Y. He wrote to his brother, Ald. G. H. Allen, recently and said that Hon. David Hill spoke in Olean last Saturday evening. He was given a great reception. Many people who wanted to hear him could not get into the music hall, which holds about 3,000 people. While Hill was addressing the people in the hall Lockwood spoke to a large audience outside. A democratic procession was held on the same evening and was very extensive. There were five bands in it and the procession was two miles long. While it was moving fireworks were set off. The sight was very inspiring, but the republicans did not like it.

QUEEN'S COLLEGE NEWS.

The Meeting Of The Alma Mater Society—Election Of Officers.

A most laudable interest is being taken in the alma mater society very early this session. The attendance at Saturday night's meeting was very large and the meeting an important one. Two committees reported, the one with regard to the university night racket and the other concerning the use of the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium by students. In the absence of President Farrell, W. W. Peck, M.A., occupied the chair. The resolution, adopted by the committee appointed to settle in some way the action to be taken by the students in regard to the events of Oct. 16th last, was read by D. McG. Gandier. It was somewhat lengthy, containing several clauses. It sympathized with the students in their objections to the presence of civil authority on the occasion, sympathized with the senate in their attempt to preserve order at its meetings deplored the presence of policemen in the university and recommended a conference with the senate with a view of arranging in some way to regulate the actions of students on public occasions without the necessity of calling in any civic officers. Such a conference will be held, the alma mater society being represented by Harry Farrell, D. McG. Gandier and J. A. Turnbull. Quite a lengthy and animated discussion took place during the consideration of the proposal of the Y.M.C.A. of this city for gymnasium rates for students. It was finally decided to endeavor to get the names of 150 students at $1.50 each to which will be added $150 out of the athletic fund, which is included in the registration fee. The programme was an excellent one and the year of '98 is certainly to be congratulated on the possession of so many fine entertainers, all the numbers being given by freshmen. The following is the programme given: Duet, guitar and mandolin, Messrs. Tyner and Porteous; reading, Mr. Reynolds; solo, Mr. Potter (accompanying himself on the piano); character reading, Mr. Musgrove; reading, Mr. Fraser; reading, Wesley Walker; solo, Mr. Potter (accompanying himself on banjo); recitation, W. Walker; Gaelic song, Mr. Fraser; duet, Tyner and Porteous; whistling solo, W. Walker. All the comment on this programme that is necessary is that every number was very creditable and was well received, recalls being frequent. On motion the freshmen were delegated to remove the piano from the senior to the junior philosophy room where the meeting was held.

The elections for the arts society and concursus were held on Saturday from nine to twelve. Over 125 votes were polled but the number should have exceeded twice this number. The elections resulted:

For the arts society—President, R. W. Brock; treasurer, A. R. B. Williamson; secretary, R. Anglin; committee, J. H. Watson, ('96), J. Munroe, ('96) N. M. Leckie, ('97), Fraser, ('96).

For the concursus—Senior judge, E. C. Watson (elected by senior year by acclamation); junior judge, Ward Young; senior prosecuting attorney, C. B. McInnes; sheriff, W. A. Wilson; clerk, R. D. Menzie; crier, S. A. Wood; junior prosecuting attorney, R. Burton; chief police, A. McIntosh, (acc.); constables, G. M. Hermiston and G. D. Campbell, ('95); Weatherhead and Supple, ('96); Scott and McRae, ('97); McRae and Ferguson, ('98).

During the stay of Queen's rugby team in Ottawa they were made honorary members of the Ottawa amateur athletic society and were admitted to all the privileges of members. This was a very graceful act of kindness and courtesy on the part of the Ottawa society and was much appreciated by our boys. The name of their introducer to the society was Plunket S. Taylor.

SNIDER IN THE PULPIT.

The Conductor Talks Well—The Distress Must Be Relieved.

Conductor Snider, the eloquent G.T.R. official, was the preacher in Queen street church yesterday. The edifice was crowded at night. The morning sketch was personal, descriptive of the helpfulness of the "I will" promises in God's holy word. His experience and triumphs caused tears to fill many eyes. In the evening he dwelt on heaven, and reasons why men and women should seek to know all about it and have a home secured there. The conductor talks well and with an earnest purpose, the salvation of men. He has been converted seven years and has preached in over 400 Canadian churches from Montreal to Detroit. He is now on a holiday trip, preaching and lecturing. The choir rendered admirable selections during the services.

In his sermon last night Rev. Dr. Jackson, First Congregational church, referred to the treating custom in saloons as the curse of the liquor traffic. It was here that the great evil existed. The solo by Miss Ballis was choice. This young lady is coming to the front as one of the sweetest and strongest sopranos in Ontario.

Yesterday, the festival of St. Simon and Jude, all the services in All Saints' were of a festal character. The hymns and prayers were chosen with reference to the lections, and there was a procession after evensong. On Thursday next the services will be a celebration of holy communion at 7:30 a.m. and full choral evensong with sermon at 7:30 p.m. Preacher, Rev. G. R. Beamish. The offerings through the day will be devoted to the church debt. The new furnace gave great satisfaction yesterday. Nearly $40 has already been given to assist the rector, who is personally responsible for it, in defraying the cost.

Rev. C. O. Johnston told his congregation last night that he would take hospital incidents as his discourse next Sunday morning when the collection for the city institution would be made, "Then at night," he went on "I want a special poor collection—I mean a special collection for the poor. We want $25. The fund of this church and of every church in the city will be greatly taxed before the snows of the coming winter are melted. If any one thinks we have no poverty I will be glad to convince them of the fact if they will stay a week with me at the parsonage. They can have free board if they will meet the demands made at the door for help. They will find out that in truth we have many such cases of distress. I want a good round collection to help meet our needs."

"Queer People."

Conductor Snider, the eloquent railroader, delivers a lecture in Queen street church to-night, at eight o'clock, on "Queer People." It is humorous and exciting and probably his best lecture. Go early if you want a seat. Admission, 15c.

A BIG BLAZE AT GANANOQUE.

There Were Two Alarms—Lloyd's Livery Stable Was Destroyed.

About three o'clock this morning a telephone message was received at the fire department from Gananoque asking the brigade to prepare for a call to that village, owing to a serious conflagration which threatened great destruction. The brigade were in trim to push off for a train when a message said the brigade's services would not, happily, be needed.

The fire, it appears, broke out about two o'clock in D. J. Lloyd's livery stables, discovered by Thomas Glover, going to catch the east bound train. The hayloft was ablaze. About the same time Samuel Waldie, sleeping at his livery stables, saw the flames, and with the help of two or three others rescued all the horses and tried to save other equipments. One single and one double set of harness were saved out of eighteen and fifteen rigs. All his cutters not stored in this building are safe. The firemen put four streams on the flames, but on account of an accident to the shaft of the force pump, by one of the couplins breaking, the water ceased for about twenty minutes. The flames in the meantime spread on all sides. The flames attacked Stunden's restaurant and fancy goods; J. W. Bennett & Sons, hardware and tin shop; Belfie Bros., grocery; J. A. Acton's barns and Robert Taylor, storehouses. Stunden's stock and furniture was only partly saved. Bennett's stock was taken out but in a damaged condition. Belfie, groceries, was only partially saved. L. L. Fraid moved his stock of ready-made clothing and underwear from the J. A. Acton building. Robert Taylor, dry goods, gents' furnishings and dwelling upstairs, was soon also emptied of its furniture and stock. All were badly damaged.

The losses and insurances are: D. J. Lloyd, livery, loss, $2,500, insured for $1,500; E. Stunden, building, loss, $7,000, insurance, $2,970; I. W. Bennett & Son, loss on building and stock, $10,000, insurance, about $5,00; Belfie Bros., stock, loss, about $40,000, insurance, $1,200. M. McIntyre owned the livery stables and Belfie building and all was a total loss, estimated at $8,000; insured. The loss on the Acton building was covered by insurance. L. Fraid's stock loss by removal and water, $800, insured for $2,000; Robert E. Taylor's loss on building, which was badly scorched, $800, fully insured; stock damaged by removal and water, about $2,000, fully insured.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. Mr. Lloyd's stables are all lighted by electricity and he does not allow any lanterns or lamps used. All the buildings burned were of wood and all old landmarks.

A second fire occurred at Turner & Gibson's tannery at 6:30 o'clock. It caught from the boiler. The loss was $800, insured. Loss on building about $1,500.

Another Account.

GANANOQUE, Oct. 29.—A lamentable breakdown of the water supply paralyzed the first efforts on the firemen who were condemned to witness new stores wrapped in flame while their hose hung limp and idle in their hands. By five o'clock nothing was safe of the livery stables or their large equipment save the horses. The old Methodist church, now used as a confectioner's store, was the first building on the main street to collapse. In two hours there was not a stick standing erect, while Mr. Bennett's hardware store was, saving a part of the front, in the same condition. The grocery store of Mr. Belfie followed on the road to ruin and is entirely destroyed. Besides these a clean sweep was made of the dry goods stores owned by Robert Taylor and L. Fraid, but though the goods were all cleared out water was secured in time to avert serious damage though the rear part of Mr. Taylor's house was badly burnt.

Before six o'clock the fire was completely subdued and a great waste of wreckage and charred timbers lying athwart what was the boardwalk, made a very sorry spectacle for Gananoque's main street.

Just as the broken sleep began to resume its reign the people were roused again by the alarm. This time the tannery by the riverside was alight. The fire had started in the furnace house and though the fatigued citizens worked with a will at clearing the building; the smoke from scorched and burning leather soon prevented salvage work. Firemen were called from their task of cooling the wreck on King street and succeeded in saving the main building of the tannery though much of its valuable contents is destroyed. The engine house is wrecked and of course the engines are sadly damaged.

At one time during the first great fire it looked as though the whole of the fine block on King street was doomed. The failure of water compelled the despatch of a call to Kingston for help, which was later countermanded. Fortunately water came ere the splendid western stores were ignited, and owing to the entire absence of wind the neighboring houses enjoyed perfect immunity.

Drawing Contest Over.

The drawing contest in the schools, conducted by S. E. Summerville, Brooklyn, N.Y., is over. Mr. Summerville offered Chautauqua drawing boards and writing desks to the different schools in the city for free-hand drawing, and the result has been indeed beneficial to the general school work. The teachers also manifested interest in the contest and were pleased with the result, as it seemed to put new life in many of the less active pupils. The last of the drawings were judged last Friday afternoon and the prizes awarded this morning: George Coffey, Victoria school; Joseph Bryant, Williamsville school; Stella Ross, Louise school; Charles Daly, Wellington street school.

THE LIVELY GRANITES.

THEY DID UP ONE OF QUEEN'S COLLEGE TEAMS.

The Collar Bone of One of the Greatest Fractured—The Ottawa College Rugbyites Made a Bad Show of the Dominion Champions—Various Sporting Notes.

Queen's seconds were not a little surprised on Saturday, at the way the Granites walked through them. They were merely having a practice match. Queen's thought to spur on the Granites for their final games. The score was no less than twenty-two to six, pretty nearly as bad a score as Queen's firsts were beaten by Ottawa college. During the game, Johns, son of the Princess street grocer, had his collar bone broken. Dr. Cunningham happened on the ground and dressed the injury. Metcalfe took his place. Stewart also got a bad kick in the body while McDonald's nose was pretty badly hurt. The teams were:

The Golf Matches.

The golf matches for the Hewitt cup resulted in a tie again between Messrs. Hague and Robinson. The results were:

	POINTS	ALLOWANCE	NET SCORE
Hague	113	18	95
Shannon	118	18	100
Robinson	100	3	97

The match was to have been played off this afternoon. A match took place under the ladies' golf club and a tie resulted between Miss Harris and Miss Ethel Walkem. It will be played off.

Sporting Notes.

J. McCaul purchased a black Hampton colt, five years old from Mr. Fowkes, Wolfe Island.

F. A. Folger, Rideau stock farm, sold two three-year-old Carvers on Saturday, one to John Welstead and the other to D. Staley, of the Queen's hotel.

The Ottawa Valley bonspeil will be held in Kingston next February. It was Renfrew's turn but as it has not a curling rink under cover it has forfeited to Kingston.

Hamilton defeated the Osgoode hall rugbyites on Saturday by twenty-one points to eleven. The Tigers are thus pitted against Queen's, the first match to occur here next Saturday.

John Theobald returned on Saturday after spending a few days in the woods in Mud Lake vicinity, looking after deer. He and his party ran across lots of fawn, or young deer, but the dogs were unable to run them to the water. They would keep encircling the water for a while but as soon as the hunters got in range would dash off again. Mr. Theobald says there are lots of deer about Kingston but it takes a couple of weeks to hunt them.

Queen's rugby team went to Ottawa on Friday and played the Ottawa university on Saturday. The Presbyterian collegians went under in fine style. In the first half the score was: Ottawa six, Queen's three. The second half found the champions in pieces and the score ended Ottawa twenty-seven; Queen's seven. It was the eighth battle between Queen's and Ottawa college. Of the previous seven the Ottawa team won the first four, the fifth was a draw, the sixth another victory for Ottawa and the last a decided triumph for Queen's. Dr. Eahlin, a Queen's graduate was referee.

The boys admit they were out played. The game was a rough one and many men were knocked out. McRae only played ten minutes when he was laid low with an injured knee; W. McCammon followed a short time afterwards and the team went on with thirteen men. Kennedy was knocked out four different times during the play but pluckily stayed with it. McRae tried to play on but could not. Ottawa would not throw off any men and at times Queen's was playing only twelve men. Some of the Ottawa players were also knocked out. Ottawa will not come here Wednesday as was at first thought of as they have a championship match on Saturday and do not want to run any chances of being knocked out.

BACK FROM WATETOWN.

The Young Woman Who Had A Time With A Suicide.

Among the passengers on the steamer Islander to-day, from Cape Vincent, was Vincent Wright, John Goff, half-brother to Pearse, who suicided by using morphine at Watertown, N.Y., and Miss Wright, who also took a light dose and who reported she was married to Pearse. The girl looked as if she was not fit to travel. Her features were pale and cheeks sunken. She walked slowly and weakly, while she leaned on the arm of her brother. She kept her head bowed as if brooding over the past. The trio stopped at the Union hotel and left for the steamer Hero at 2:40 p.m. on their way home. In the meantime Mr. Goff searched the second-hand stores in the city for a chain valued at $25 which deceased had disposed off in the city where he was. After a great deal of trouble he located the chain in Mr. Abramson's pawnbroker's shop next to St. Andrew's church. Mr. Goff asked what was against it and on being told paid the money and carried away the chain. He is proud to get it and would have given $15 for it. Mr. Goff says the mysterious movements of the couple have not been cleared up to his satisfaction, but he hopes to get all the facts in a few days. He will give the chain to his mother in England, and when she is done with it it will come back to him.

Ever since the discovery of the suicide Miss Wright has been in the city hospital at Watertown, N.Y. Mr. Wright said the authorities there would not give him any encouragement as to whether his sister would get better. He does not think she will recover. He had not discussed the elopement and attending results with her. This he would do when she reached home. He did not wish to annoy her on account of her sad condition.

Where the morphine was purchased is not known. The bottle did not have a label, and the druggist who sold it could not be traced. It is not known where the glasses, out of which the poison was drunk, were purchased.

Mr. Goff does not think Pearse wanted to poison the girl. He simply gave her enough morphine to keep her quiet until his life was extinct. He left a note, written with a lead pencil, asking those who saw it not to blame his wife.

What is strange is the fact that the door of their bedroom in the hotel was open all evening. It was about eight o'clock in the morning when she made the alarm. She tried to get into the hall way, but was too faint, and fell back on the floor with a heavy thud.

The remains of Pearse were interred in the Watertown, N. Y., cemetery yesterday. Miss Wright attended the funeral. Pearse came across the ocean with Mary Ferguson, when he left in Quebec. He thought much of her.

Miss Wright still sticks to the story of her marriage in a hotel in Kingston. She said Pearse went out and procured a man whom he said was a minister and they went through the usual form.

Watertown, N. Y., has four candidates for the mayoralty.
