HELD AS SALVAGE.

A Case Brought To a Sudden End At The Police Court.

Thomas Sullivan was charged with larceny at the police court this morning. No proceedings were taken however. The case is one in which several persons are involved, and enquiry brought interesting developments to light. It seems that about three weeks ago, John Kane and John Wall, the veteran fisherman, were crossing the ice in a cutter, when the horse got through the ice. Wall and Kane were precipitated to the ice, the former being left in a bad condition. He had considerable fire-water in at the time and his crippled body was even more greatly impaired. The horse was left struggling in the water, while Kane put back to the city, probably in quest of Joseph Brophy, owner of the horse. In the meantime Wall in a semi-unconscious state, was left lying on the ice. T. Sullivan, D. Mills, Capt. Moore, J. Anderson and Peter Hunter were near Folger's office when they received word that a man was in the water. The men immediately hurried out to the crack. Whiskey was secured and administered to the horse. The animal was pulled out of the water, but only lived about three hours. In the meantime Wall had been removed to the Union hotel where he was cared for. Before leaving the scene, however, the men removed the harness from the horse and carried it to the hotel and presented it to Kane. The men were given to understand, by the police, that they could collect something for salvage and accordingly when different people, sent after the harness, enquired at the Union hotel the property was not given over. The matter lingered for nearly three weeks when Kane took out a warrant against Thomas Sullivan for larceny of the harness. Sullivan was arrested yesterday morning. M. Sullivan, contractor, brother of Thomas, hearing of the affair, went to the chief to enquire into the matter. To a reporter, this morning, Mr. Sullivan claimed chief Horsey would not give him any satisfaction. Mr. Sullivan says he asked the chief if the men had not reported the harness at the police station. The chief said he did not know. When asked if bail could not be secured for his brother, Mr. Sullivan was told this was impossible. Mr. Sullivan then telephoned the magistrate who agreed that if a deposit of $50 was made Sullivan could be gotten out of the cells. This was done, but not until Sullivan had been shut up five hours. M. Sullivan claims that the chief did not know the report was made of the harness or the warrant would not have been issued. The magistrate chastised Kane for bringing Sullivan up and said if he (Kane) was worth anything action would be taken against him. The magistrate ordered that $2 be given the men for their trouble. Mr. McIntyre was present in Sullivan's interests and wanted the case to go on.

Marine Matters.

The str. Hero will be thoroughly overhauled. Work was started in this direction to-day.

The schr. Dunn is in first-class shape, and no improvements will be necessary in the spring.

Capt. Joseph Dix had his eye on the schr. Wave Crest, but the boat had changed hands before he made his offer.

Adolphe Corson, who sailed the schr. Falconer last season, will have charge of the Wave Crest next season. Mr. Corson has an interest in the boat.

T. Vandusen, mate with, Capt. Saunders on the schr. Ella Murton last season, has signed with the schr. Annie Minnes. This will be his first year as captain. He has a share in the Minnes.

A Foolish Device.

A post office regulation, that registered letters shall be delivered personally to inmates of public institutions, is causing lots of trouble. One letter was kept in Kingston post office for several months because somebody thought perhaps the person addressed might have a contagious disease. So if a letter comes for a person ill with fever and needing funds it is not to be delivered! About as wise as many other post office laws.

The Shortest Way Home.

The distance from Sharbot Lake to Kingston is not forty-seven miles and we can prove it by William Harty, M.P.P. He arrived in Sharbot's classic shades on Monday from Ottawa, found the line blocked by the storm, took the train for Toronto, had a good rest in a comfortable hotel and rode down to Kingston next day. If you would be snug buy your tickets to Sharbot Lake via Hogtown!

Weather In Calgarry.

Charles Comer, writing from Calgary, N.W.T., says the thermometer registered 50° below zero there a few days ago. The mercury at the police headquarters froze up at 45°. At Innisfail, eighty miles north of Calgary, the people have it down to 70°. Kingstonians are lucky and should pull down their caps and say nothing at 20°.

Demand For Cheese.

Mr. Barrows said to-day that cheese was selling in London, England, at 50s. per 112 lbs. The prospects for the local cheese business is good. Montreal stocks have all been cleared out this season and cheese will be wanted early next season.

The corp of non coms. which did drill at the recent assault-at-arms has regular drills every night so as to keep in trim.

HOW THE CITIZENS FEEL.

IN REGARD TO THE ELECTRIC STREET CAR SERVICE.

Interviewing Many Men—Quite a Few Favor the Proposition of the Special Committee While Others Are Favorable to Greater Privileges—The Scheme Should be Helped.

The proposed electric street railway has caused much newspaper comment and discussion among citizens since it was proposed, about a year ago. It was then thought there would be no difficulty in bringing about an arrangement which would ultimately result in the fulfilment of the scheme, but this idea has been exploded and it looks as if a solution to the question is still a long way off. Last year the streets committee of the city council took the matter up and after discussing it for many months presented a report embracing terms that were not in any way equitable and not acceptable by the company. In the report a route was outlined for a new railway extremely ridiculous and could not be accepted by the company, even were it desired to reach an amicable settlement. This year a special committee was appointed to take the question up. It has had several meetings and conferences with the superintendent, of the street railway. A final decision has not yet been reached. Terms suggested by Mr. Folger have not been received with favor, and the proposals of the committee have not met his views. The committee offered to give the streets for the electric railway for forty years, provided the company surrendered its perpetual charter and paid five per cent. on the gross earnings when they reached $20,000 yearly. These terms were considered very fair, but Mr. Folger holds a different opinion. He thinks the surrendering of the perpetual charter is worth a great deal more, and he may be right. This proposition may be recommended by the committee, and the amount of the earnings on which a percentage will be asked changed from $20,000 to $25,000, but any further change will not likely be recommended by the committee.

The citizens are dissatisfied with the present inadequate railway system. For the credit of the city they desire a first-class electric railway service, so that visitors may go away with the impression that Kingston is a go-ahead place and inhabited by thrifty and enterprising people. It will be a disgrace if the present service is continued this year, when it is expected many strangers will call going to and coming from the world's fair. An electric railway is badly needed, not only for the convenience it will be, but because it will quicken the business life and enhance the value of property in out of the way places. With a view of feeling the public pulse on the question a reporter interviewed prominent citizens, yesterday afternoon.

A legal gentleman, who does not wish his name divulged, said he did not think any of the propositions made by the city to the company, up to the present, were equivalents for the concession which the company would make in surrendering its perpetual charter. While protecting the interests of the people the committee ought to endeavor to make as fair a deal as the company deserved for offering to undertake an enterprise which might not prove as profitable as many suppose. The idea of allowing a company to operate an electric railway in opposition to the present company, when it was desirous of furnishing the same service, [illegible] present company, composed of citizens, should be allowed to supply it.

Ald. J. J. Behan said the street railway company has at present a perpetual franchise to run cars over the principal streets of the city. This franchise is valuable and the company will not part with it unless they receive a good equivalent. He was opposed to granting a perpetual franchise for electricity. If a settlement is to be reached two things must be considered. The city must bear in mind the company has a perpetual franchise, and secondly, that the people want an efficient electric service. He considered that the proposition of the special committee, as reported in the press, was equitable and he would support it in council. He might be inclined to permit the gross earnings, on which to collect a percentage, to be increased to $25,000. It was a terrible mistake to grant a perpetual franchise of the streets to the street railway company at the beginning, and he could not understand how it was that the council that sanctioned the charter let it pass in its present shape. When the people realized that the railway company had the perpetual franchise they would be prepared to make a greater concession than they otherwise would. The city should do all it could to get the franchise back. He would like to see the introduction of electricity in the street railway service. It would benefit the city as electric cars had benefited other places.

Ex-mayor J. Carson said the citizens wanted an electric street railway. The city had long enough been classed an "old fogy" place. The people wanted to keep pace with other progressive places. He would vote for the city giving the present company the use of the streets free for forty years without any restrictions. An electric service would prove a boon to all parts of the city. Land in the outlying wards would be increased in value, and houses that are now vacant would soon have tenants, because they would be able to reach the business portions conveniently. The council would act unwisely if it did not grant the company fair concession.

Shore Lyons said he was in favor of the proposition reported to have been made by the committee dealing with the matter. The people want an electric railway but they also want the company to surrender its franchise.

Ald. J. McKelvey said an electric railway would be an advantage to the city in many ways. The streets would be kept in better order than they are now. The railway would run to Cataraqui, and that would prove a boon to the citizens. They would be enabled with their families to take a ride in the evenings and get fresh air after daily duties. If Mr. Folger will accept the committee's proposition the citizens would be satisfied. The speaker might favor charging a percentage on $25,000 instead of $20,000 as proposed. The speaker attached more importance to the securing of the franchise than most people. He would go even as far as granting twenty years free, charging a percentage on the gross earnings for the following twenty years.

James Galloway, jr., said an electric street railway is needed and any satisfactory arrangement that can be made between the city and the present owners of the road would be hailed with delight by the majority of the citizens. He would be in favor of granting the company the use of the roads for thirty years, charging five per cent. on the gross receipts annually when they reached $20,000, the company to keep its portion of the streets in repair. An electric railway would boom the city.

John Hewton said he was opposed to granting the street railway company a perpetual franchise of the streets. He would be in favor of any other satisfactory arrangement being made. The proposition made by the committee was fair. Cities not nearly as large as Kingston had electric cars and they should be here. The service would increase the value of property and do much towards enlivening the place.

Ald. C. W. Wright said an electric railway service was needed. He did not consider the perpetual franchise, held by the company, as valuable as some people think it is. It would not only be of benefit to the citizens when the horse car service changed to electric service, but would bring good results to the company. The franchise will never be very valuable until the city grants the company permission to use electricity. He thought the proposition of the committee was fair.

C. H. Martin said an electric street car service was badly needed, and it cannot be got too soon. The city should have had the service years ago. The present horse service would be a disgrace to a country village. He was in favor of the committee's proposition.

W. Allen said an electric service would never pay in Kingston. Such a service might prove of benefit to the city. The horse car service has not been profitable, and did not pay even when it was a novelty. People would not patronize an efficient car service. They would sooner walk several blocks than pay out five cents for a ride. He would be in favor of giving a company investing in an electric car service a perpetual franchise. He was of the opinion that it would not pay in a city the size of Kingston. He based his judgment on the past history of the road. It never paid a dollar of dividend to the shareholders.

C. Livingston said the city should have an electric service, and the proposition of the committee was a fair one. He thought the company would not make the road pay for many years.

B. J. Leahy said the public wanted an electric car service, and he thought the proposition of the committee was more than fair. He did not think the company had any right to more privileges than was enjoyed by street railway companies in other places.

A citizen who wished his name concealed said Mr. Folger would be very foolish to surrender the charter of the company, for the proposition of the civic railway committee. He wants to give a better street car service and the committee want to take away from him something he has already got. Any company that will start an electric street car service here will lose money year after year. There is no city in America with a population of 20,000 inhabitants supporting an electric street car service.

T. McAuley did not think an electric street car service would pay. The people are too healthy here. They would rather walk five miles than pay five cents to ride on a street car. It was true an electric service would be of great benefit to the city, and it might be patronized if the fares were reduced below five cents. Any corporation that would start an electric street car service deserves support. The proposition of the committee was a fairly fair one. He would be in favor of granting the company the use of the streets forty years free, without charging percentage. He wished there were 150 men in the city as enterprising as the Folger brothers.

S. J. Kilpatrick was in favor of giving the company the use of the streets forty years free, without percentage. There is too much jealousy among the citizens in reference to the prosperity of others. If men of enterprise try to do anything, there are others who will do everything to stop their progress.

Ald. Hardy is a member of the railway committee, and said he heard Mr. Folger was under the impression that the aldermen did not want to deal with him fairly. This is not so. The committee want to enter into an arrangement, fair to the company as well as the citizens, the money needed to repair Princess street, if the electric railway is made, will not be thrown away. There would be some return. Unless some such scheme is presented to the citizens it will be hard to raise money to repair the streets.

The statement that the street railway is forcing the repair of Princess street is unwarranted. Mr. Folger does not want it. He can lay his track to any grade. The cry is merely put into discussion as a bugaboo.

CITY AND VICINITY.

No Luck.

Our last bargain day will be to-morrow. So don't trust to luck. Come early.

A Happy Time.

The ladies' aid society of Brock street Methodist church had an outing last night. The residence of William Toner, Barriefield, was at their disposal and a most enjoyable evening was spent. A vote of thanks to their hosts for their splendid hospitality closed a social choice.

Will Be Asked To Bonus.

Capt. Craig expects one of the promoters of the new summer hotel for City View park here from New York in a few days to come to a final decision. The islanders will be asked to bonus the concern as the township would a railroad. The promoters claim the hotel would create quite a market for the island.

Successful.

In spite of the hard times, the bad weather and the unseasonable time of the year we have succeeded in making our sale a great success. We are selling our whole stock under cost, and are determined, if prices will do it, to have the whole of it disposed of before removing to our new premises. Now is the time to buy your spring goods cheap at R. McFaul's great removal sale.

Spoke True Words.

Never were truer words spoken of Kingston and the people than those of S. J. Kilpatrick in to-day's interview column. Nearly every public and wealthy man in Kingston is aching to prove by comparison that he is keener, or more successful, or has put more money by in a stocking, from which nothing can escape, than the other fellow, and he would sooner see the town go to the "demnition bow-wows" than do anything to cheer the enterprising or liberal man along, let alone boost him. Now that kind of feeling don't prevail in Hogtown, selfish as it is.

A Pretty Wedding.

A pretty wedding took place at Christ church, Gananoque, on Monday. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Henry Auston, the contracting parties being Miss Fanny Boddy, Gananoque, and William Butler, Port Huron. The bride looked charming in a brown travelling suit, and was attended at the altar by her cousin, Miss Maggie Ellis and Miss Nora Thompson. James Boddy, brother of the bride, and Charles Britton acted as groomsmen. After the ceremony they drove to the residence of T. Meggs, where they partook of a wedding supper with invited friends.

Failed To Pay Up.

A few days ago J. P. Delph, a laboring man, was arrested on an old committal, and sent to jail to serve a month, because he could not pay the fine of five dollars and costs. He was convicted for acting disorderly in a political meeting addressed by Hon. Mr. Laurier and others. The case is one of hardship. It would have been as well if the fine was enforced in the summer, when it is not so expensive to live. His wife, however, had good friends, and one lent her the amount of the fine. She paid it and her husband was let out. To-day he met a reporter and said, he would have paid the fine long ago, but he expected the conservative association won't stand by him. They promised to pay the fine and failed to do it.

FOR THOSE WHO USE THE MAILS.

The Postmaster-General Has Issued a Larger Postal And a New Letter Card.

The postmaster-general has issued a new form of postcard, a Canadian letter card and two new sets of stamps, of the value of fifty cents and twenty-five cents each. The new postcard will especially meet with favor, for it is much larger than the present one, and is altogether a handy affair, and something of a novelty. It is a pale blue in color, being light and smooth to write upon, and like a double postcard. It is perforated all around, and the three lower edges outside the perforation were gummed. On the front are the words, "Canada Letter Card," and the imprint of a three-cent stamp in the right corner in crimson ink. The user writes his communication on the two inside pages, fastens the card with the mucilage and all the receiver has to do is to tear off the perforated strip and there is the letter. The letter cards sell at three cents each, and do away with the carrying of paper, envelopes and stamps, for those who do not indulge in long letters.

The new fifty cent. stamp is blue in color and the twenty-five cent stamp is red. The design is the head of the queen wearing the widow's cap and is very neat.

Appointed The Officers.

At the directors' meeting, this morning, C. L. Bass was appointed manager of the K.A.A.A. at a salary of $2.50 for the season and E. Oford was elected secretary-treasurer at $100 salary. The work was considered of sufficient importance to warrant two offices.

Mr. Bass is certainly one of the most enthusiastic supporters of athletics in Kingston and has done much to promote them in the city. He has served twice as president of the Kingston lacrosse club, and also held the highest position in the association football team for the same number of years. Three years ago Mr. Bass gave a gold medal for the champion 100 yards runner in the city. There were fifteen applicants, but the race lay between E. O. Sliter, Ralph Hooper and Bert Nuttall, Sliter won the prize. Mr. Bass will make a good manager.

Rev. Dr. Watson's Decease.

HUNTINGDON, Que., Feb. 22.—The people are mourning because of the death of Rev. Dr. Watson, the well-known and popular pastor of the second Presbyterian church.

Dr. Watson never recovered consciousness after he was picked up and taken to his home from the place where he had been thrown from his sleigh, on Friday night. Rev. James Watson, D.D., was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, Dec. 1st, 1824, and, consequently, at his untimely death, was in his sixty-ninth year. Dr. Watson was quiet and unassuming in manner, and in both his private and public life was noted for his sterling qualities and genuine piety. He was beloved and esteemed by the entire community. The degree of D.D. was conferred upon him by the Presbyterian college, Montreal.

Public School Notes.

At the school property committee meeting, yesterday afternoon, it was decided to put two Remington typewriters in the commercial class in the Central school.

The special meeting of the board for Thursday night to pass the estimates for 1893 will not be held. It was deemed unnecessary.

The Smead-Dowd system will be started in the new school next week so as to dry the building that the painters can get in. The carpentering has to be completed by Saturday night.

His Last Venture.

E. A. McDowell's last venture in the theatrical line was to take a company through Canada, the United States and to the West Indies. While in the West Indies he was attacked with fever, lost two of his company, who were killed by sharks while bathing, and met with great financial loss. Since then he had been in poor health, and had no connection with the stage. He leaves but one child, a daughter, Claire, who is with her bereaved mother in New York.

Death After A Short Marriage.

Less than ten months ago E. A. Leech and Miss Fanny Hawkins, Carleton Place, were happily wed. A few months after marriage Mrs. Leech fell into ill-health and gradually declined until Monday, when death claimed her.

PETERBORO NOT IN IT.

QUEEN'S HOCKEYISTS PLAYED ALL AROUND THEIR VISITORS.

It Grew Very One-Sided and Goals Were as Thick as Blackberries in July—The General Sporting Intelligence of the City—What is Being Said.

The match between the Peterboro and Queen's hockey clubs, in the O.H.A. series, resulted in a walk-over for Queen's by fourteen goals to two. Peterboro's good play against the Winnipeg club would have led one to expect a far better game from the team. There was no money on the game, Queen's reputation being too good. The teams were:

PETERBORO		QUEEN'S
E. Wasson	Goal	G. C. Giles
G. Sawers	Point	G. Curtis
W. B. Carmichael	Cover Point	F. Taylor
Wonham	Forwards	Bayside
Phelan		McLennan
Ritchie		Waldron
Montgo'ry		Wetherhead

Referee—J. E. Cunningham.

In the first half Queen's scored seven goals, the visitors secured two. In the second half Queen's again scored seven goals. The Peterboro team failed to score. Queen's had the advantage all through, both in combination play and in individual work. Waldron was as cool and collected as ever. McLennan was tricky and played up to his usual form. Of the fourteen goals, Waldron scored nine, McLennan and Bayside two each, and Wetherhead one. Wonham and Phelan scored Peterboro's two goals after some very fast rushing. The match was too one-sided to be interesting, and the play was rather slow. For the visitors Montgomery and Wonham played the best game in the forward line. In goal Wasson was very good, and though new at the game was sure and stopped some very hard shots.

Sporting Intelligence.

Sports are negotiating for the renting of the fair grounds for athletic purposes.

Skinner & Co's hockey team has retired from the battle field. They won the only match played.

Harry Martin asserts that the local bicycle club will make the sport boom "for all it is worth" next season.

James Gloss, who trains horses on Cataraqui track, last summer, will drive F. A. Folger's Blacksmith Maid.

George Johnston says he is out of the pool tournament project. He claims to have made fair offers and they were not taken up.

Mr. English, superintendent of the house of industry, drives a very speedy colt. It will cover a mile in less than three minutes.

The Limestone's hockey team to meet the Granites Thursday will be composed this way: Sutherland; Harty, Gunn, Low, Walker, Irvine, McRae.

Fred Metcalfe matched Wasson against J. H. Jones' Jennie H., last night, for $50 a side. The race will occur on the track in the harbor.

E. Oford withdrew his application for manager of the K.A.A.A. grounds at the Monday night meeting. No one has been appointed yet. It is likely a man will be appointed at $150 a year.

The two rinks to meet Montreal in the final match have a tussle this afternoon. The rinks are composed: Watson, Adams, Shaw, Col. Cotton, skip; Dr. Clark, Drummond, A. Strachan, skip and another.

If the Limestones beat the Granites the team will probably have to meet Galt. It is not certain yet whether Galt will enter the league. When the schedule was drawn up provision was made allowing clubs to enter later on.

It is stated, yesterday, that he would not play ball next season. Andrew is now in his second year in medicine, and has not the time he formerly could devote to the sport.

T. Green, now of the Avenue hotel, Fort William, writes that he had a pool match with the crack player of that town the other day and beat his competitor ten straight games, winning $100. The man he whipped felt very sore. He was "monarch of all he surveyed" till Thomas arrived. The man will bring a player from Winnipeg to meet Green for $100 a side. Green formerly run the Frontenac billiard parlor.

Two rinks go from here to-morrow to play the return match with Belleville. The Kingstonians will have to use the granite stones in the Bay city, which will be to their disadvantage. Belleville had to use iron stones here. Kingston will go in to win. The rinks are: Sutherland, Strachan, Shaw, Stewart, skip, the four "8's", and Watson, Adams, W. B. Carruthers and C. Hamilton, skip.

Toronto "News": "The senior final draws between district champions was arranged at a meeting of the Ontario hockey association match committee yesterday. They are Ottawa (Ottawa) vs. Queen's (Eastern) and Granite (Toronto) vs. Galt (Western). Both matches are to take place in Toronto some time this week. The final will be played in Ottawa providing that Queen's does not win. If they do win then another meeting will be held."

FIGURES WHICH TELL THE TRUTH.

The Canada Life Still Under A Cloud, But The Sun As Bright As Ever.

The agent of the Canada Life or the public may call at the WHIG office and see the latest government report for 1892, which is furnished under oath by the managers of the Canadian companies.

The figures are as follows:

Sun Life new business for 1892	$ 4,374,659
Canada Life new	5,478,000
Balance in favor of the Sun	908,587
Sun's increased business over 1891	$ 2,901,139
Canada's "	50,000

Further comment is unnecessary, notwithstanding the BLUFF and SLANG of the Canada Life's effort in the WHIG of Feb. 20th, which is too much in the "John L. Sullivan" style to require any reply.
