Where are the Springs of Long Agut Come near, O sun-O south wind blow, And be the winter's captives freed; Where are the springs of long ago?

Drive underground the lingering snow,
And up the greensward legions lead;
Come near, O sun—O south wind blow !

Come near, O sun-O south wind blow! The breathing furrow will we sow,
And patient wait the patient seed;
Come near, O sun-O south wind blow!

The grain of vanished years will grow;
But not the vanished years, indeed ! Where are the springs of long ago?

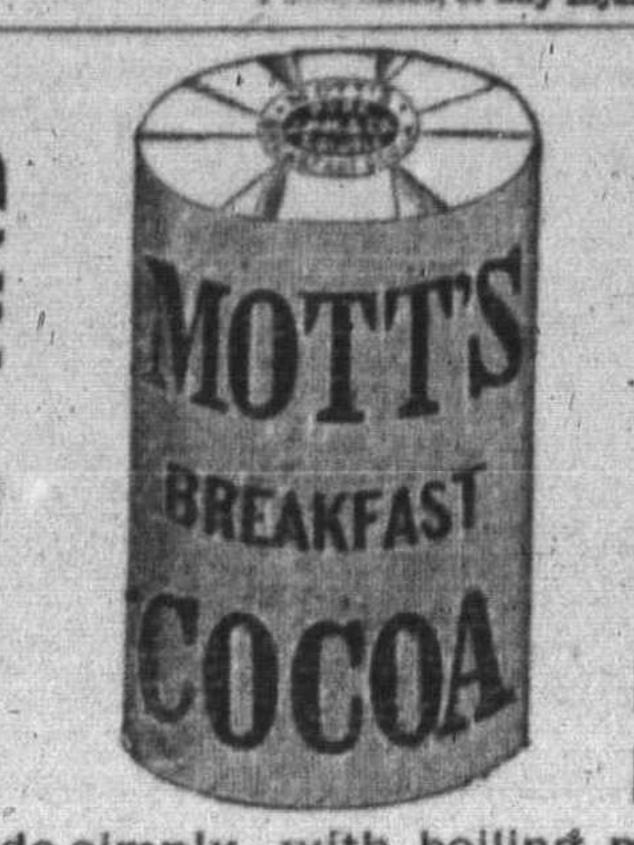

With sodden leafage, lying low,
They for remembrance faintly plead!
Come near, O sun—O south wind blow!
