The young conservatives, of Toronto. had their way and called a convention, but it was a dizzy failure. Less than one hundred delegates were in attendance, and when President Armstrong had had his say it was evident that some one had pulled the bung. Let it be remembered that last winter it was decided to have a great gathering, first, to show the government that it had not a monorely of mental or moral power, and, second, to organize for active political service. The revolt of the Toronto association against bossism as exemplified by the premier and his colleagues, in the cabinot, startled the party and warned it against giving the young colts too much rein. The result was the, passing of the word along, the withdrawal of the young men's clubs of Montreal and Ottawa and Kingston and other places from all participation in the convention. The stelance. REMEMBERED SNURS The Patrons of Industry, an institu tion very largely composed of farmers, and thoroughly organized, realizing that the government was hearing the opinion different parties in the tariff and de ided to advance their's. Hence the presentation of the petition by them to the house of commons last session, signad by 130,000 members, and requesting a reduction of the duty on binder twine coal oil, wire fencing and farming imgasis is has proved plements. The petition was referred to anding Past $1.00 at Druggists a committee, and was scarcely noticed afterwards. The government undertook to tinker with the tariff presumably in the interest of the Patrons of Industry, but really in the interest of the men who, in the name of protection (what a misnomer?) had been robbing them by their monopolies. The Patrons accepted this snub in silence, but they have remembered it. They recall the fact, too, that the government in its junketing tour, seeking enlightenment upon the tariff question, conveniently overlooked the farmers until the neglect became a conspicuous matter and subject to sharp comment. Then it was announced that VISIT RINGSTON, on PRI. Mr. Foster would condescend to hear what the sons of toil had to say.
