slippeth, Thy mercy, O Lord, held me | up. In the multitude of my thoughts within me Thy comforts delight my experience of the psalmist, and it is one of the model testimonies of this book. In these words the psalmist speaks of the fact that the Lord had been his help and acknowledges his utter helplessness had he not been divinely helped. He speaks of answer to his prayer and of the delight that the comfort of the Lord is to him. This is a model testimony. It tells from the heart something that the Lord has done for one of His. The Lord helds all His children-some in one way, some in another. Therefore let us neither be ashamed nor too timid to testify of His goodness. Let us praise Him in our hearts, and with our voices let us the children of men.
