"Then I'm infinitely obliged to you, and I'll do your will. Horses are perhaps the only thing I do know anything about. So for a couple of years-unless I'm sackedyour lordship's humble servant." The tramp touched his battered hat brim.

"Name of Brown, your lordship, please." The city of Wellminster, being a cathedrai city that was small in population and blank in point of paying industries, followed the lead of many other cathedral cities and excelled in the items of gossip. "I'm sure his lordship would be ever so much happier if he found some nice girl-and married her," said the women—each matron of them thinking inwardly that her own daughter was the very person to fill W. H. CARNOVSKY

And as his little lordship had apparently set his affections upon a young lady from a distance, whom nobody knew until she came down to his place to stay, naturally Wellminster outdid itself in having much to say upon the matter. "Of course, it's all right, my dear, with his mother there to play hostess," said one matron to her bosom friend, "but between you and me I think it's hardly good taste on her part, when he is such an obvious "She has a strange way," observed the

"But you may depend upon it she's playing an artful game. Thinks to lead his lordship on, y'know. Designing creature."

. Wellminster-female Wellminster espe cially-experienced the sensation of heaving a deep sigh of relief.

The objectionable Mabel What-ever-hername-was had not married his lordship after all. She had done some fearful thing in the way of running off with the groom who used to go out riding with her. It was a notorious fact that she might have had his lordship if she had chosen so much as to smile in his direction, and even now that she had bolted with the stable person he was idlot enough to mope about and show how gut up he was over it. Weilminster felt like congratulating his lordship upon his escape, but somehow they never did, especially when it came out that the stable help had not always been a stable help and had, moreover, been engaged to the objectionable Mabel Thingummy long before his lordship knew her. But the nice girls, who kept themselves waiting for him, have aged a good deal, for the affair of the stable help is a good many years old now, and his lordship is even a buchelor today.-English Magazine attention than ever, and there have been which if more generally adopted would go far to relieve the monotony of the long crowded table For instance, at a recent very recherche dinner there were five tables, one in the center of the room and one at each of the four corners. Each table was decorated in a different color, the middle one was shaded from flame to cream, with Immense bows of ribbon to correspond, the flowers used for this purpose being principally roses. The four corner tables represented Watteau designs (which have been in great favor this year) in mauve, crimson, pink and green. The first color was carried out in orchids carnations, while the last was represented by mignonette, green orchids and ribbon of the same shade. Of course the lamp shades and menus were all en suite, and the effect was remarkably pretty. This idea of having several tables should have some consideration on the part of hostesses. Besides the fact that they are novel, they would surely obviate many who might be uncongenial to one another. It is no small matter to arrange all the visitors with perfect tact and to everybody's satisfaction, but by this means even the most fastidious might be suited.

Bonné" (Bonn. L. 15). There are two expressions of the Apostle Paul that reveal his entire disposition. and attitude toward Jesus Christ and Christianity. The first is quoted above, Table decorations claim a targer share of | "I am ready to preach the gospel." The second is in II Tim. iv, 6, "I am now some novel ways of seating the guests, ready to be offered." These expressions reveal the double fact that Paul was ready to live for Christ by preaching His gospel and ready to die for Him by suffering martyrdom in His name. In reference to the "ready" of our topic let us make three inquiries:

> 1. For what was Paul ready (Rom. i, 15? He was ready to preach the gospel at Rome. He had longed to preach it at Rome, but had been hindered before, and there was still a strong inclination upon his part to hold up Christ and the cross in the capital city of the great Roman empire. All Christians should have Pauline readiness to preach the gospel, to make known to all men the glad tidings that a Saviour has been born, who is Christ the Lord. Christian Eudeavorers, are you ready to spread the resting upon him to do so. "I am a debtor both to the Greeks and to the barbarians, both to the wise and the unwise" (verse 14). This was his first reason. He was indebted to all who had not the gospel to give it to them because he did have it. The same debt is owed by all Christians. 2. The second reason arrangement of which there is an oriental | was the character of the gospel, "I am flavor, appears in The Decorator and Fur not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God to salvation to every one who believeth" (verse 16). 3. the gospel? At Rome. "To you who Serges, 25c. resent but the world? At that time therefore, to preach the gospel to all men. The world was his field, and he actually carried the gospel to the greater part of the then inhabited world. The world is still the Christian's field. We should begin at home, but not end there, and because we fail to do all that ought to be done at home is no reason that we should neglect the needs abroad. The command is, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." Let us obey that command as Paul obeyed it. Bible Readings-Isa. vi, 8; Jonah, iii;

Christian Endeavor Singing. Considerable Christian Endeavor is needed to sort out the popular hymn tunes of the day and to put by themselves, where they can be found when wanted, the songs that truly express emotions fitting for Endeavor meetings. Attention should also be paid to the the woodwork being in chestnut. The up- hymns, for a good many verses given out to be sung in Endeavor and other religious meetings are anything but helpful to the devotional spirit. There are hymns of discouragement, hymns of fault finding, hymns of personal inexperience, hymns that express religious untruths and hymns that express nothing at all save poor grammar and worse meter. an animal we all regard with interest and | The attempt to sing with enthusiasm some affection, and we have an unconscious | poor hymns set to poorer music involves respect for the article itself. To encourage "singing endeavors" let us have the right kind of Endeavor music. We want hymns of encouragement, hymns of praise, hymns of faith, hymns of devotion. We want Christian work ple name of tooth scrapings or, bone dust | songs that will stir up the singers "both to will and to do," . We want Christian campaign songs that will quicken our pulses and deepen our arder for the cause of Christ. Then we want these hymns set to music that shall express in its own true language the same emotions. If the hymn sketches the outline uct is a clear jelly, which is strained and of a Christian thought or purpose, the music should fill in the color. If the poetry embodies the idea, the song should waft it heavenward, +Golder

The Growth of Christian Endeavor. Some people have expected to see the Society of Christian Endeavor show signs of waning vigor as its years increase. Evening Hymn. Abide with us, Lord Jesus, through ev'ry changing IIII Now that the day is dying. And darker shades are lying er still! Abide with us, Lord Jesus! Abide with us, we We bow the knee in meeknees, And own to Thee our weakness! Be Thou our strength and stay!

Abide with us, Lord Jesus, and guide us lest we stray! with us, Lord Jesus, now that the sun has set! Be Thou our shepherd tender! Shine o'er us in Thy splendor

And all our sins forget! Abide with us, Lord Jesus! Be Thougar Olivet! Abide with us, Lord Jesus, till morning light breaks clear-Till through the night of sorrow We hall the glad tomorrow

And the safe harber near!

Abide with us, Lord Jesus, till heav'nly lands appearl -Christian Intelligences. All Men Young, old or middle aged, who find
