COLOR OF THE BALLOTS.

The Ottawa "Citizen" takes exception to that clause of the plebiscite bill which provides that the ballots for the men shall be printed on yellow paper, while those of the women shall be printed on blue. The "Citizen" draws two inferences: (1) That the votes are to be kept separate for fear of contamination; or, (2) that they differ in value because of property qualification. Neither of these conclusions being correct it is felt that women's votes will not count because they have not the franchise. It certainly is remarkable that sex should make any difference in the taking of a plebiscite, and one is at a loss to understand why there should be any distinction in the color of the ballots. The "Citizen" imputes that the distinction is the result of Hon. Mr. Dryden's influence, that the variations endorsed by the law are introduced in deference to the opinions of that gentleman. But that is a wild assumption. Mr. Dryden is an opponent of the woman's franchise, but he is neither wicked nor insane enough to be battling against woman's influence in every direction, and to carry his enmity so far as to desire to ignore women's voice in the matter of prohibition. At first blush it is difficult to say what the author of the bill meant by requiring the use of two kinds of ballots in the plebiscite vote, but the women have no reason to shirk the responsibility it imposes. They have led in the temperance campaign, have been credited with an ambition to know what they would do if they had the voting power, and now they have an opportunity to speak out, and have their declarations duly registered In any case the government is not apt to discount woman's opinions, and the women have no reason to become unreasonably panicy. The enfranchisement of them is at hand. The legislature hesitates, Sir Oliver Mowat remains undecided, but Sir John Thompson has admitted the propriety of their plea, and gives promise of an early conferring of electoral powers upon them. In view of the new light that is dawning it is safe to infer that the women are not to be pitied in their brief disappointment, as the men who have denounced woman's enfranchisement as unscriptural and are already casting about for an opportunity to revise their opinions.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

The supreme court is likely to affirm its former position in regard to the Manitoba school question, in which case the government will be seriously embarrassed.

* * *

Sir John Thompson says a plebiscite is "repugnant" to the policy of his government. By a plebiscite the will of the people can be expressed freely. And just now he is not looking for pointers.

* * *

To the liberal party in the parliament of New Zealand are the women indebted for the passage of the bill conferring on them the same right to vote as have the men. This will nerve the women in Ontario to fresh activity.

* * *

Toronto's assessment returns show a decrease in population, but it is held that the deficiency has been made up by a return of men since the assessment was entered. It wouldn't do, of course, to admit that Toronto is going back.

* * *

Hon. Mr. Angers has warned the farmers not to read the grit press lest it deceives them. But the deceivers are the members of the government who promise to consult the farmers on the tariff question, and at the only meeting in Cornwall guyed them unmercifully.

* * *

The "Empire" endorses the argument of Earl Salisbury, to the effect that when England favors home rule for Ireland, and only then, it should be granted. How would it be if legislative reforms in Quebec, Manitoba, the Maritime Provinces or Prince Edward Island could only be considered when Ontario approved? If this dominion were governed entirely from Ottawa, and there were no local legislatures, there would be opportunities for a demonstration of the sectional ideas which even great men fit small moments seem to endorse.

No Nuts, No Regard For Memory.
Hamilton Times.

The pundits of those who shared the profits of the prostitution of principle which the late Sir John A. Macdonald acknowledged and even boasted of had not their origin in respect and veneration. So long as Sir John was, in return for political support, ready to permit his admirers (!) to rob the taxpayers—so long as he could, to use his own words, "shake corn nuts for the hogs"—they were ready to glorify him, no matter what infamy might be in course of consummation. Now that he is no more they make little or no effort to conceal the lack of respect with which they regarded him upon whom they fawned when their support would elbow out principle and smelve them favors at the public expense. After all, public respect is worth many monuments reared by commission subscriptions.

THE VESSELS THAT PLIED OUT OF KINGSTON.

The Steamers That Made Kingston a Lively Port in the Days When Railways Were Unknown—Many Old Residents Will Read This With Pleasure.

Toronto Telegram.

The owners of the Great Britain, Capt. Whitney, in announcing the arrangements for the trips for that vessel for 1838, from Kingston round the lake to Oswego assure their intending patrons that the accommodations on board the Great Britain are not surpassed by any boat on Lake Ontario, the gentlemen's and ladies' cabins being fitted up entirely with roomy and airy staterooms, with two berths in each." None of the steamboat proprietors were at all modest in describing the excellencies of their various vessels. It is sad to have to say that this good opinion was not shared so fully as it might have been by the public generally. Complaints about the incivility of servants, the bad quality of the meals, wines and spirits provided, were both loud and deep, though it was was also pretty generally admitted that "things might be worse."

Possibly owing to the disturbed state of both the upper and lower provinces, there were no great changes in or additions to the lake steamers in 1838. A steamer which was known as the Gore, of 200 tons, was commenced at Niagara, and she afterwards plied between Rochester, Cobourg and Toronto. The Experiment, Commodore Barrie, Burlington, Britannia, Cobourg, William IV. and Transit all ran, with the exceptions that have been mentioned, caused by the rebellion, as in 1837, and in the Bay of Quinte steamers there were no alterations. The Earl of Durham, who succeeded Sir Francis Bond Head as governor, visited the upper province in July, arriving in Toronto on board the Cobourg on July 18th. The steamer Brockville and Kingston were now under command of Captains Brush and Lawless respectively, on their original route from Kingston to the head of the Long Sault. Captain Whitney relinquished command of the Great Britain at the end of this season and assumed that of the American steamer United States, which he held until his death, which occurred from typhus fever on October 12, 1841.

The Hamilton, Capt. Mills, ran during the season of 1838 between Kingston and River Trent, leaving former place on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 8 a.m., and the latter on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 2 p.m.

In 1839 the Commodore Barrie, Capt. Patterson, commenced her regular trips on April 8th, leaving Kingston on Mondays and Thursdays at 8 p.m. and Toronto on Wednesdays and Saturdays at the same hour, touching at intermediate ports. On the Bay of Quinte the Kingston began her season's work on April 17th in connection with the Sir James Kempt between Kingston and the river Trent. The sailing arrangements were the same as those of the year previous for the Hamilton which in this year, had both her route and her captain changed. The Hamilton, Capt. R. Gaskin, made four trips a week between Kingston and Oswego, leaving the first port every alternate day, beginning with Sunday at 9 a.m. and the latter on the intervening week days at 8 a.m. and on Sunday at 1 p.m. Another Bay of Quinte steamer, the Albion, of 230 tons, built at Brockville, was launched this year; she had as captain, W. T. Johnson. She ran from Kingston to Belleville, and sailed from both places on the same day as her competitor, the Kingston, but at different hours.

The Great Britain, Captain Jacob Herchmer, resumed her regular route from Kingston to Niagara and Oswego, calling at all intermediate ports. Early in April the Commodore Barrie, William IV and St. George ran from Kingston to Toronto. The river steamers Dolphin and Brockville, ran in connection with the vessels just mentioned between Kingston and Dickenson's landing, daily, Sundays excepted.

Later in the season the Hamilton, Captain Gaskin, again had the route changed; instead of from Kingston to Oswego in October she began to run and continued to do so for the remainder of the year between Rochester, Toronto, Port Hope and Hamilton.

The Transit and Queen Victoria, under the Richardsons, father and son, ran this season as usual from Toronto to Niagara. The famous Gildersleeve launched a new vessel of 250 tons in 1839, at Kingston, naming her after himself, Henry Gildersleeve. She commenced her regular trips in the following season.

On Oct. 8th, 1840, as the Gildersleeve was about leaving Cobourg for Hamilton, her boiler exploded with considerable force, scalding two men severely.

Later in the month there was a serious accident to the steamer William the Fourth, while on her passage down the lake on Oct. 28th. This was caused by a heavy south sea breaking in the false sides of the ship and causing her to take in such large quantities of water that serious mischief was threatened. To save her from sinking she was run aground in South Bay, where the mail bags, passengers and captain were transferred to the Malcolm, an American vessel, which had come alongside to render what assistance she could. The Malcolm then proceeded to Kingston, arriving there with her cargo and all on board the same night in safety.

Among schooners on the lake during this season were the Hero and the Margaret. They conveyed large quantities of goods from Kingston to Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara.

Just as the year was closing it was announced on Dec. 2nd that "her majesty's new steamer Minos, recently built at Chippawa, has received her machinery, and proceeded up Lake Erie a few days since on her trial trip. She is very strongly built and goes at the rate of twelve miles an hour."

In 1841 there were yet more additions to the steam vessels on Lake Ontario besides those intended for the Royal mail line. The Frontenac, the second of the name, appeared on Lake Ontario, her route being from Toronto to Kingston. She was at first a sort of naval free lance, and caused much consternation to the proprietors of the other steamers on the lakes by the low rate at which she carried passengers. No record, though, exists that the travelling public were at all distressed at these proceedings on the part of her owners. On the contrary, they appear rather to have appreciated the unusually cheap fares.

There were no alterations in either of the Bay of Quinte steamers for 1841. The Kingston, Capt. Harrison, and the Albion, Capt. W. T. Johnson, running as before.

The Union, Capt. Drummond was on the route between Kingston and Rochester, leaving each place three times a week.

The Commodore Barrie, Capt. Patterson, to quote her advertisement for the season, "plies" between the following ports: Prescott, Kingston, Oswego, Wellington, Cobourg, Port Hope, Bond Head Harbor, Port Darlington, Whitby, Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara, Lewiston and Queenston."

The steamer Vulcan, Richard T. Johnson, appeared on the upper St. Lawrence between Kingston and Belleville in August, leaving the former place on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and the latter on alternate days. She is described by the Kingston "Chronicle" as being "a new boat and a most desirable conveyance for passengers and freight."

Who Can Join The Battery.

Many years ago men would not be allowed to join "A" battery who could not read and write, and could not produce first-class references in respect to character. Now the examination is not as severe, and strangers are permitted to join without their character being questioned. We should judge so in view of the moral record.

Stub Ends Of Thought.

Honesty is not contagious.
Matrimony is love's eye-opener.
The tears that come easy go easy.
Youth wears a crown of to-morrows.
A full stomach maketh a fearless heart,
A merry heart doesn't need a brass band.
Gossip is the bullet in the gun of idle curiosity.
Trust is the strongest link in the chain of association.
With some of us hope never comes to the full bloom.
It's a long way around to reach heaven by some churches.
Everybody would be perfect if everybody else thought so.
That rich man is happiest who can convert his dollars into smiles.
It is not necessary for a woman to mark each year of her life with a wrinkle.
The woman who loves herself most can marry a man for his money and be satisfied.
Not one time in a million are a man's tears dishonest; what may be said of a woman's is different.

Death Of S. McAdoo.

Mr. Collins, who waited on Samuel McAdoo through his late illness, writes saying that his friend was taken suddenly ill on Tuesday noon two weeks ago. Dr. Fleming, of Brandon, was called in on Wednesday and pronounced his case a severe attack of inflammation of the bowels, but he did not think the case very serious until Thursday, when Dr. Spencer was called in to consult with him, and then it was too late; their united efforts, together with the assistance of kind friends, could not avail and their tried friend passed away quietly at two o'clock on Friday morning. Mr. McAdoo left his home last spring intending to sell his property in the west and then return home this fall to spend the remainder of his days in quietness and happiness with his family on the old homestead.

PROF. SHAW'S FAREWELL.

SAD OVER THE IDEA OF LEAVING LOVED ONTARIO.

He Sounds the Praises of the Province as a Land of Sunny Skies And Fruitful Season—The Resources of Canada—Farewell to the Students.

GUELPH, Oct. 3.—(To the Editor) With your kind permission I would like to have a parting word with the farmers of this country before I leave it for the land which gave me a most kindly welcome in a most critical and supremely important moment. And if this letter should savor much of the personality of the writer I hope that those who may think it worth while to read will pardon me. From the nature of the subject of which it treats it would not be easy to frame it otherwise.

It has been my privilege in some sense to labor for the advancement of the agriculture of Canada for many years and in a somewhat public way, at first through the medium of the earliest live stock paper that Canada ever possessed and which I had the honor to assist in establishing; later through that of the farmers' institutes, many of which I was privileged to organize, and still later through my relations with the Ontario agricultural college at Guelph.

My relations with the farmers of this country during all these years have been of the most pleasant character. We have tried to do each other good and not evil. It would be ungrateful therefore were I not to return most cordial thanks to my fellow farmers for all the kindnesses received at their hands. This I now desire to do in the only way in which I can, viz., through the medium of the press. Until recently I cherished the hope that the residue of my services would be given to the land which gave me birth. But it seems it is not so to be. Because of this I refused more than one solicitation to enter service that would militate against the interests of Ontario. The thought of laboring in future in a way that may prove antagonistic to the farming interests of this country is not altogether pleasant. The idea of helping the farmers of another land to grow cattle, that come in competition with those of Ontario in foreign markets, and to produce sheep, that some day may close Ontario's best market for this product, brings along with its sting, but it will be remembered that duty always calls for the best services that one can give to his employers.

I never had a desire to leave Ontario, the land of sunny skies and fruitful seasons. No land on all this continent has been so highly favored by a kind Providence. I am safe in saying that no province or state on all this continent can grow so great a variety of cereals, fruits, grasses, forest trees and field products generally. No country in America has so many breeds of live stock or so excellent. No land in all this western world has so advanced agriculture, and no country has farmers more successful or more intelligent. Why should not any man be loth to leave such a country? Long may Ontario continue to hold a foremost place among the nations of the world for an advanced agriculture.

Nor can I leave Ontario without a parting word to the students and graduates of the Ontario agricultural college. I need not remind them of the very pleasant associations of those years spent together, of how we pulled together to make our experiment station farm the pride of all Canada. I need not remind them how we succeeded for many of them know the experiment station farm at Guelph is now without a peer among the station farms of this continent. None know so well as they the good that the said experiment station is capable of bringing to the farmers of this country with the right men at the helm. None know so well as they the benefits which the agricultural college can bring to the sons of the farmers when properly managed. Long may they be loyal to the best interests of the whole institution. May they leave no stone unturned to extend its usefulness and to bring the knowledge of the help that it can render to the notice of those who need it, viz., the young men of the farm. And long may they be spared, each in his own sphere, to be living witnesses of the good they have received from the experiment station and college, as shown by the distinguishing success which shall crown their labors.

Farewell, Ontario, I love thee not the less but more now that I leave thee. It shall be my aim to do thee no dishonor in the land which gave me an asylum in the opportune hour, and which promptly opened a door of usefulness when that in my native land was being violently closed, must I say it, by some of my own countrymen. Go on and prosper and occupy a still higher place among the provinces and states of this western world.—THOMAS SHAW.

Denbigh Doings.

DENBIGH, Oct. 2.—Fred Douglas, Egyptian Liniment fame, called on our village merchants last week and took orders for his popular and valuable preparations. A court will be held here on the 4th inst. by his honor Judge Wilkison, for the purpose of hearing complaints against the voters' list for the municipality of Denbigh, Abinger and Ashby for 1893. Our first cattle fair will be held at this village on Saturday, the 7th inst. A social will be held on Saturday evening at the Methodist church; an interesting programme has been prepared by the promoters, who are endeavoring to make it the best entertainment of the season. Henry Libbey and family have returned from their holiday trip to Montreal. Mr. and Mrs. A. Easton, of Carleton Place, are visiting at D. Youman's. Joseph Youman has been seriously sick, and David E. Youman had a narrow escape from being seriously hurt by the bursting of his Winchester, parts of which lodged in his leg; Mrs. D. E. Youman has also been indisposed for sometime. Thomas Blakeley and Thomas Deol are gradually recovering. The arrival of a little boy has gladdened the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Berndt.

In purchasing a Cooking Range, every person wishes to get one that combines efficiency, economy in use of fuel and durability.

The "Happy Thought" Range may not be as cheap as some other stoves, owing to its superior construction, but the saving in fuel, durability and ease of management more than repays one for the slight additional cost. We have still a very fine assortment of Second-hand Heating Stoves.
