A WIDE SWATH OF RUIN NOT SEEN HERE BEFORE Annihilation of the Ring in Brooklys. -A Horse Show That is a Delightful

Affair-A Sporting Crowd.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 .- The political cyclone that struck New York on Nov. th, swept the whole state from Chautauqua to Montauk, and from the lakes to the sea, leaving such a wide swath of ruin in its track as hath not been seen in the present generation. Parties have been defeated before, victories have been won before, far-reaching and wonderful the victory of last week has occurred in my memory. It is said that it is the unexpected that usually happens; there never was a more magnificent illustration of that trite old adage than the batfight, it seemed as if the democrata were impregnably entrenched throughout the state. They had all the offices, all the money, and apparently all the influence that was worth a continental. The republicans apparently had no cohesion no money, no influence, and no more chance of the magnificent victory they achieved, than they had of a sum; mer residence on the planet Jupiter. in the fight were thousands of democrats, tried and true men, whose democracy is unimpeachable, who are democrats to-day as much as they ever were, but men who loved their country more than they loved their party, and who, in defending the integrity and purity of the judicial ermine, and the sanction and in inviolability of the freeman's ballot, were willing for the time to cast party allegiance to the winds, that the honor of the nation might be saved. Without the aid of these noble men the republican party would have been snowed under in the state, and might not have been heard of as a respectable political factor for For the past week, in the saloons, in
