and Figish-the Caste Was Well Sustained-The Coster Songs Brought Down the Bouse-The Club Has Come to Stay its mark with the opening performance of last evening. Kingston has had a host of amateur organizations within a few years and has achieved no little distinction for a city which has so few advantages for dramatic training. The opera of "Leo" was not only a decided schievement for a local author and as put on the stage reflected the highest credit upon the amateurs engaged, for there was not a shade of professional aid care in preparation. Amateurs attempted to put on the stage a new play never interpreted to them by actual performance, and they did not always get up their lines, let alone make an earnest study of the characters; but "Snowball," Sidney Grundy's comedy, was, last evening, presented with a completeness and finish very rare indeed in any but city. The thing has been going on for professional ranks. The plot is a rapidly years. developed one and from start to finish is full of humorous and interesting incidents. It produces an increasing number of embarrassing incidents, rolling like a snowball, and these were effect plying to Wm. Burrows, 128 Johnston tively presented. She always and her sprightliness and confidence always fit her to take a leading part. Mrs. Busby was greatly admired for intelli gent and admirable portrayal of "Mrs. Taylor as "Ethel Granger," looked and most attractively.

The audience seemed charmed with the of Sydenham street. performance and if, to use the vernacular, the Kingston Lyceum club has not come to stay it will be a general disappointment. The "Snowball" did not drag and would have passed off for a professional performance, albeit a first night attempt. The enthusiasm of Capt. Lee and the lovalty of the club to his Worth $1.50 For management have with due reward, and to-night the club is sure to be greeted with a still larger house. The coster songs of the captain, "The Future Mrs. 'Awkins" and "Our Little Nipper," were enthusiastically applauded; but would be better given between the acts than delaying the opening of the performance till the late hour of 8:45. There is the difficulty, of course, of changing costumes, but possibly there may be a way out of this embarrassment.

Mr. Augrove claims the drain damaged his dwelling house and goods and rendered the dwelling unwholesome and unfit for occupation, and carried dirt and filth into the said cellars Ul On account of this his family became ill and several members suffered from fevers caused by the damp and unclean state of GREAT the cellar. He claims $200 damages. The defence is that the damages sustained were due to the negligence of the Thomas Greenwood vs. David Buster. -Action for malicious prosecution. The plaintiff claims that the defendant did, on Feb. 25th, falsely and maliciously swear out an information against him that a gelding, goods and chattels of the defendant had been stolen from his premises on Wolfe Island, and that he had good reasons to suspect that plaintiff had the goods concealed on his premises or the premises of George, Joseph, John or Frank Greenwood, Thomas Dee or Patrick Kelly. Early in the forenoon of horse and vehicle and assistant, wrongfully entered and searched the plaintiff's farm, and assaulted and arrested the plaintiff and took him into custody. Thomas Innes vs. William J. Gates-The plaintiff resides in Storrington and the defendent is a carpenter in Kingston. In June, 1893, the plaintiff sold said timber was not sound and merchan-

Charles Sangster, called Canada's own poet, was born at the navy yard, king- | Martin-In Kingston, INC ston, on July 16th, 1822. He got a meagre education, and had he not studied energetic 'ly before he reached man's estate. he would not have been quoted among the eminent men of the country. A fifteen years of age he first got employment in the laboratory at Fort Henry where he helped to make the cartridges with which Capt. Sandon, of the Royal Navy battered the old windmill at Prescott. Mr. Sangster was later appointed Jasan-in Kingston, on Die, 8th, 1881, Ch to the ordnance department, where he remained ten years on small salary, with out any possible chance of promotion. In the summer of 1849 he resigned, went to Amherstburg, becoming editor of the "Courier." At the end of a year he returned to Kingston, and for ten years was manager of the BRITISH WHIG under the late Dr. Barker. He later joined the "News" staff as a reporter, and in 1868 he accepted a position in the post office de partment under the federal government, and removed from the city to Ottawa. Prior to this he contributed poetic effusions to the Canadian press and brought
