LIVING IN GLASS HOUSES.

The intimation that a large number of men were to put the floating property of the Kingston & Montreal forwarding company, of which Mr. Gunn is a member, in repair, has unreasonably excited some one and he assails our candidate in savage language. This critic talks a great deal of nonsense, which has to be endured in election times. For instance:

"Last year the company, of which Mr. Gunn is a member, and which is now credited with the design of employing one hundred men for a fortnight in order to make votes for Mr. Gunn, approached the dominion government and asked that they might be allowed the rebate of canal tolls on grain shipped to Ogdensburg the same as on grain transhipped at Kingston. The Kingston & Montreal forwarding company, in other words, attempted to take away trade from Kingston, but were prevented from doing so by Sir John Macdonald."

It is well known that Mr. Gunn is not the only member of the K. & M. company living here and benefiting by any of its business arrangements. James Swift has a big interest in the company, and as a leading tory no one accuses him of Yankee proclivities.

But there is another point. Who began the Ogdensburg business? The register of the Ogdensburg transit company, in the superintendent's office, contains entries from which these were extracted:

The first cargoes for transhipment at Ogdensburg, in the season of 1889 were as follows:

Account of Montreal transportation company—Steamer Rhoda Emily, from Chicago, April 23rd, with 37,000 bushels corn, received at Ogdensburg May 1st.

Account of the Kingston & Montreal forwarding company, schooner Rapes, from Chicago, May 22nd, and arrived at Ogdensburg on May 29th.

Now the M.T. company, begin the traffic at Ogdensburg, and the K. & M. company had, in order to hold its business, to compete with it. If the M.T. company did not apply for a rebate of canal tolls it had probably some other compensating advantage. The facts quoted certainly cannot be known to the gentleman who has undertaken to write down Mr. Gunn as a bad citizen and has brought ridicule and contempt upon himself.

THE BEREAVED PEOPLE.

Mourning reigns in the British possessions, for one who stood very near to the British throne has been removed by death, which came all too suddenly, and extinguished the life of the Duke of Clarence. The death of the young prince is the more sad in that it breaks a link in the chain of royal succession, and opens up new possibilities that until now were entirely unthought of. He had reached the age of 28, had a thorough military training, had travelled much and so qualified himself for the important duties of state to which he might be called in the emergencies of life. And to add to his popularity, which was fast rising, he made a pleasant call one day at the residence of M. de Forlbe, in Bedfordshire, met the Princess Victoria Mary of Teck, proposed to her in the most romantic manner, and a month hence would have married her amid the acclaims and rejoicings of the nation. The illness of the duke was brief, but from the first it was of a serious type, and the announcement that it had ended fatally was not unexpected. The royal family has the sympathy of millions. The aged queen, the Prince and Princess of Wales, and Princess Mary of Teck have been prostrated with grief. In their bereavement they will see many evidences of the love and devotion of the faithful subjects. That monarchy as it obtains in Britain is as abiding as ever is indicated by the unhappy event of today. The dead prince was the heir presumptive, and now that he is gone and the direct line of succession is narrowed some solicitude is felt, though the people are sovereign and through their parliaments direct the destinies of the nation.

Another great light went out when Cardinal Manning died. He was one of the foremost ecclesiastics in the world, a prince of the church, learned, aggressive, ambitious, of marked action and individuality. He was educated in the Church of England and was at one time expected to be made a bishop of it, but when he joined the Roman Catholic church in 1851 he resigned all his preferments (he had many) and began the labors of an humble priest. But he rose rapidly. In 1857 he founded an ecclesiastical congregation at Bayswater, entitled the Oblates of St. Charles Borromeo. The degree of D.D. was conferred upon him at Rome, and the office of Provost of the Catholic Archdiocese of Westminster, Prothonotary Apostolic and Domestic Prelate to the pope. After the death of Cardinal Wiseman, Monsignor Manning was consecrated archbishop of Westminster, June 8th, 1865. Pope Pious IX. created him a cardinal priest, March 15th, 1875, the title assigned to him being that of SS. Andrew and Gregory on the Coelian Hill. The same pontiff invested him with the cardinal's hat in a consistory held at the vatican, Dec. 31st, 1877. The cardinal has been a prolific author. The celebration of his episcopal jubilee took place on Sunday, June 8th, 1890. By the removal of such a man the church loses a leading light and spirit. He was a great force socially as well as religiously, and in recent years was instrumental in adopting measures for ameliorating the condition of the poor. His death, following so soon after that of Cardinal Newman, is notable. Great in their day and generation their works will live through the years to come, and the examples they set will be powerfully stimulating to the students of church history.

HOCKEY RULES.

Players Will Please Paste in Their Hat and Act Accordingly.

The hockey players have not a good conception of the rules governing the game, if Wednesday's match is to be accepted as a specimen. Several members should have been ruled off for offending. These are the rules:

1. The game is played on ice by teams of seven on each side, with a puck made of vulcanized rubber, one inch thick all through, and three inches in diameter. Hockey sticks shall not be used more than three inches wide at any part.

A goal is placed in the middle of each goal line, composed of two upright posts four feet in height, placed six feet apart and at least five feet from the end of the ice.

The goal posts must be firmly fixed. In the event of a goal post being displaced or broken, the referee shall blow his whistle, and the game shall not proceed until the post is replaced.

2 Each side shall have a captain (a member of his team), who, before the match, shall toss for choice of goal.

Each side shall play an equal time from each end. The duration of the championship matches shall be not less than one hour, exclusive of stoppages. The team scoring the greater number of goals in that time shall be declared the winner of the match. If at the end of that time the game is a draw, ends shall be changed, and the game continued until one side scores.

3. There shall be only one referee for a match, and in no case shall he belong to either of the competing clubs. He shall enforce the rules, adjudicate upon disputes, in cases unprovided for by rule; appoint the goal umpires; keep the time and the score, and at the conclusion of the match declare the result. The puck shall be considered in play until the referee stops the game, which he may do at any time, and which he must do at once, when any irregularity of play occurs, by sounding a whistle. His decision shall be final.

4 A goal shall be scored when the puck shall have passed between the goal posts from in front, and below an imaginary line drawn across the top of the posts.

Goal umpires shall inform the referee when a goal is scored. Their decision shall be final.

5. The game shall be started and renewed by the referee by calling play after placing the puck on its larger surface on the ice, between the sticks of the two players, one from each team, who are to face it, and calling "play."

6 A player is off-side if he is in front of the puck, or when the puck has been hit, touched or being run with, by any of his own side behind him (i.e., between himself and his own goal line.)

A player being off-side is put on side when the puck has been hit by, or has touched the dress or person of any player of the opposite side, or when one of his own side has run in front of him; either with the puck or having played it when behind him.

If a player when off-side plays the puck, or annoys or obstructs an opponent, the puck shall be faced where it was last played before the off-side play occurred.

7. The puck may not be stopped with the hand except by the goal keeper (see rule 9), but may be stopped, but not carried, or knocked on by any other part of the body. No player shall raise his stick above his shoulder. Charging from behind, tripping, collaring, kicking, cross-checking or pushing shall not be allowed. And the referee may, at his discretion, rule a player, who has infringed the above rule, off the ice for the game in progress, or for the whole of that match.

8. When the puck goes off the ice behind the goal line it shall be brought out by the referee to a point five yards in front of the goal line, on a line at right angles thereto, from the point at which it left the ice, and there faced.

When the puck goes off the ice at the side it shall be similarly faced three yards from the side.

9. The goal keeper must not, during play, lie, sit or kneel upon the ice; he may, when in goal, stop the puck with his hands but shall not throw or hold it.

10. No change of players shall be made after a match has commenced, except by reasons of accident or injury during the game.

11. Should any player be injured during a match and compelled to leave the ice, his side shall have the option of putting on a spare man from the reserve to equalize the teams. In event of any dispute between the captains as to the injured player's fitness to continue the game, the matter shall at once be decided by the referee.

12. Should the game be stopped by the referee by reason of the infringement of any of the rules, or because of an accident or change of players, the puck shall be faced at the spot where it was last played, before such infringement, accident or change of players shall have occurred.

The chief points for notice in the new code is the off-side definition which is borrowed from the Rugby football rule, the rule that the puck must not be stopped with the hand and the clause noting how the puck should be placed at the starting or renewal of play.

Quite a Rhyme.

Wesley, my dear, I must stro-gly incline
In poetic strain just to write you a line,
To prove that my love has not proven colder,
In fact I must tell you, its warmer and bolder.

The sticklers for Calvin believe in election,
The followers of Wesley in "sinless perfection,"
But oh, I must say, (though perhaps love is blind),
You are nearest perfection of all human kind.

With tears of affection my eyes are grown wetter,
And you may perceive marks of drops on this letter,
Doubt can you'll think that I ought to keep cool,
Well, I can't blame you much, if you say I'm a fool.

And now my dear Wesley, so gallant and true,
It draws near the time for to b-d you adieu;
To smother my feelings, oh, vainly, I try,
My heart is so smitten, How's that for high?

DESERTED PALACES.

GORGEOUS MANSIONS THAT ARE SILENT AND TENANTLESS.

The Unoccupied Residences on San Francisco's Famous Nob Hill—Mansions in the Market and Walter Raleigh's Old Home for Sale.

Nothing so forcibly illustrates the ephemeral nature of the foundation upon which man's wealth, pride and fame rest as a deserted mansion. The more luxurious the building the deeper the shadow in the resultant mental picture of retrospect. Pride and wealth together have conspired to erect many a pile which still stands, though abandoned, mute witness to the instability of human prosperity and to the truth of the adage that "Man proposes and God disposes." Death, that grim leveler, who reaps ruthlessly in the fields of the rich and poor alike, is mainly responsible for the large number of empty palaces which today repel rather than attract the visitor; although poverty and sorrow have also contributed their full quota of "silent witnesses of departed greatness."

Nob hill is the aristocratic residential portion of San Francisco. Most of the multimillionaires of the "Golden Gate" have built palatial homes there, and nearly all of these magnificent structures are now tenantless.

Senator Leland Stanford's mansion is one of these. It occupies one-half of the block upon which it is located. It is not as imposing in external appearance as some of its neighbors, but inside it is a veritable palace. Treasures of art have been gathered together there from every quarter of the globe. But its owner seldom spends a day under its roof, for it was from this house that the body of his only child, Leland Stanford, Jr., who died abroad from Roman fever in 1883, at the age of sixteen, was carried to its final resting place. His room still contains all of his boyhood's belongings. Senator and Mrs. Stanford now spend their time in California at their Menlo Park residence, within sight of the university which they have erected to the memory of their son at a cost of many millions.

The most expensive house on Nob Hill is the one built by J. C. Flood, at a cost of $3,500,000. Flood died and his family has since resided in San Mateo.

JOSEPHINE'S BEDROOM.

The Italian villa of the Coltons is also closed. After the general's death his daughter Carrie married a man who died soon after, leaving her $4,000,000. Two years later she remarried, only to lose her second husband. Her villa has not seen her since.

The Crocker residence, near by, is one of the finest structures on Nob Hill. It is now in litigation, each of the elder Crocker's sons claiming to be entitled to it. It is nominally occupied by Fred Crocker, but it is really tenantless.

To go back a little further, a more striking contrast is afforded by the chateau of Malmaison, which was once the home of the great Napoleon Bonaparte in the happiest days of his life—the days when he basked in the sunshine of Josephine's love. Then Malmaison was maintained by an expenditure of about 750,000 francs a year, whereas now it is advertised to be sold, along with the park, which is to be platted up into building lots, and it is doubtful if the proceeds of the entire sale will be more than the former cost of maintenance for one year. It would seem that the historic associations of Malmaison, clustering as they do about one of the most remarkable men the world has ever produced, would insure a handsome price for this estate, but the name of Napoleon is no longer a word to conjure with in France, and besides these are days of intense practicality, when things are bought more for their intrinsic than "associational" value. Malmaison was a gorgeously decorated residence, and Josephine's bedroom would have been described by the enthusiastic correspondents of today as "a dream." One of the fireplaces is said to have been incrusted with precious stones.

Another place which has been offered for sale through the commonplace medium of a newspaper advertisement is Myrtle Grove, near Youghal, Ireland, which was the home of Sir John Pope Hennessy up to the time of his death, which occurred recently. This fact may have served to make

THE RALEIGH MANSION.

Myrtle Grove interesting, but it was famous centuries ago as the home of Sir Walter Raleigh. The yew trees which sheltered him while he smoked the tobacco he had just brought from the New World, and gave directions to the laborers engaged in planting the potatoes, which are now a staple article of food in Ireland, are still standing. The library is filled with the literature of the period, which is perhaps the most interesting in England's history. The collection includes engravings, seals, etc., all of which are said to be remarkably well preserved, and yet, when the present owner offered Myrtle Grove for sale, there was no rush of prospective purchasers.

Don't Forget

That to remove corns, warts, bunions in a few days, all that is required is to apply the old and well-tested corn cure—Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Sure, safe, painless. Putnam's Corn Extractor makes no sore spots hard to heal, acts quickly and painlessly on hard and soft corns.

The Destruction of Forests.

A prominent Montana man sounds a note of warning well worthy attention. He says: "When over 50,000,000,000 feet of lumber are being cut each year it behooves the government to make more definite arrangements for the conservation of American forests. The railroads alone are using 100,000,000 ties a year. Already we have arrived at a stage where the natural wood crop in certain directions shows signs of exhaustion, and the mere question of material supply assumes a national importance."

WOLFE ISLAND WAFTS.

Death of a Respected Resident—A Death in Chicago Reported.

WOLFE ISLAND, Jan. 13.—A meeting of the I.O.F. lodge of this place was held on the 5th inst., when the following officers were elected or re-elected for another year: C.R., Job Watts; V.C.R., C. M. Vanhorne; R.S., C. D. Christie; F.S., W. Cooper; treas., Dr. Botts; Chap., G. Keyes; S.W., John Whitmarsh; J.W., James Stevenson; S.B., H. Davis; J.B., G. Friend; C.D.H.C.R., Rev. Mr. Christie. The A.O.U.W. also held its annual election and the following officers were elected: M.W., Dr. Spankie (re-elected); foreman, D. Cattanach; receiver, W. Grimshaw; recorder, C. Horner; guide, W. Fawcett; I.W., J. Brown; trustee, F. Whitmarsh; P.M.W., S. Going; representative to grand lodge, Dr. Spankie.

Miss Lacey has been re-engaged to dispense learning in the village separate school at an increase of salary. The following teachers have charge of other schools on the island: No. 3, Miss Cliff; No. 7, Mr. Saunders; No. 8, Mr. Lefleur; No. 3, Miss J. Reid; No. 14, Mr. Wright. Mrs. James Metior, severely, burned some time ago, by her clothing catching fire while working around the stove, has nearly recovered. Her face and neck suffered the most. Capt. T. Crawford, who sailed the Grantham last season, will sail a steam vessel for Mr. Leslie next season. Capt. Phillips will dispose of his scow and sail the Grantham. Mr. Armstrong is building a store in connection with his office. He should get a large patronage, as the location is central and remote from other stores. Malcolm McDonald has the contract for erecting the building.

Messrs. D. Dawson and G. Baker are touring it with a phonograph and are meeting with much success. They will give an entertainment in the Methodist church here on the 18th inst. T. Keyes was elected secretary-treasurer of our public school board on the 30th Jan. J. Kyle was appointed to complete the remainder of G. Wills' term. The late Frank McAvoy, who died a short time ago in Chicago, spent his boyhood days here where his friends now live. Three years ago the family were also heavily bereaved; the father and two brothers dying within a short time of one another. Their bodies were all in the Roman Catholic vault at the same time, and all were buried in the one grave. The afflicted family have the sympathy of the community. Mr. Sanderson, who has suffered for the past year from the effects of a tumor in his side, passed peacefully away, yesterday, about two o'clock. He had been confined to his bed for some time and, although at times his sufferings were severe, yet he bore up with remarkable spirit, feeling conscious that he could not recover. He calmly awaited the end. He conducted the tailoring business here for many years and was esteemed by the people as an honest and industrious citizen. Being a member of the masonic lodge that body will conduct his burial according to the rites of the order. The service will be held in the Presbyterian church with which he was identified.

Dear Sir,

Please receive as a token of gratitude, the following testimony which, I hope, may be useful in some of those who, like myself, are suffering from the pernicious effects of intoxicating liquors.

I had been using alcoholic liquors to excess for thirty years (I used to drink on average, one gallon every week) and I tried at different times, and by different means to get rid of such a noxious habit; but I always failed in my attempt. One day I read your advertisement of the Father Mathew Remedy and I resolved to try it at once. A few doses afterwards I received a bottle of that remedy which you had sent me by express, and as soon as I had taken the first doses, I felt an astonishing relief. Encouraged by this fortunate outset, I went on taking the remedy until the whole bottle was emptied, following with a strict regularity the direction given. For the last four months I am using this bottle of Father Mathew Remedy, and I am now quite another man; my appetite is excellent and do not feel the least desire for intoxicating liquors. This remedy has done me so much good in every respects, that I believe it is my duty to recommend it whenever I have opportunity to do so. Some persons to whom I have recommended your invaluable remedy and who wish to give it a fair trial, asked me to order some for them; therefore you will find herein enclosed, five dollars ($5.00) for six bottles of Father Mathew Remedy, which you will kindly send to me as soon as possible.

Your obedient servant,
PIERRE AUGER.
