LEAP YEAR'S FIRST BLOOD.

How Miss Pinkie McGraw Lost Time in Helping Him Out.

It was the last night of the year. The clock on the mantel had stopped; the floor was covered with broken tongs and painted face, until they pointed to 11:45.

Painfully upright in his chair sat the fat, balding, portly Miss Pinkie McGraw, having devoured her time and talents sensibly in entertaining since 8:30. With that rare artistic sense that now and then crops up even in the young and inexperienced, she had turned down the light in order that the contrast between his neck and the salmon-colored man he might have a little trouble in getting off.
