REFORMING THE PARTY.

Mr. Ives, M.P., has undertaken the reform of the conservative party in Sherbrooke. He saw that the liberals were gaining ground, attributed it to the generosity with which they treated the French, and so startted every one by insisting that a French conservative should have the vacancy new existing in the commons. And having created a commotion in his party, and invited defeat, he whines : "The part I have taken in the reconstruction of the party may cost me my political life. That often bappens even when the movement is accossful. am quite prepared to step aside when my time comes, if such be the wish of my party. | hard an hour was cut off the men's time an Tais consideration, I hope, will not deter me from deing my duty to my party, for I should be unworthy of the position I hold if order that they might not be closed down. I allowed any personal consideration to influence me in the slightest degree." He is a brave man who does his duty fearlessly, standing on principle, but Mr. Ives will not be created out of the heroism which comes of patriotism alone. He has been considerable of a demagogue in the past, and has not had time to show he is a patriot out and out. In Renfrew there is a liberal, a Mr. Find-
