The question as to whether a person sent to jail and taken therefrom could be compelled to do hard labor outside the walls of the jail is a matter upon which I do not care to express an opinion but the general view has been that no authority exists and the question that arises is : "In what way can the labor of these people be used to make them pay

"Everybody knows that these people won't work unless they are compelled. Their object perhaps in getting to jail is to get a winter of idleness and then tramp on to the next place and so gain a subsistance by travelling through the country. If some scheme could be devised whereby each and every individual would be compelled to earn that which he eats it would be a good thing. The tramps would be abeliabed. If legislative action could be taken so as to accomplish that end it would come very near towards reducing the number of that class in the community and it is a matter you should consider and any recommendation you may nake will be forwarded to the proper authorities for their consideration." The duties of the grand jury would therefore, be parely prefunctory. They could visit the public institutions if they desired, and it was true stricter vigilance and discipline was maintained in those places visited by grand jurers. The judge referred to the change made by the law, passed in 1890, with regard to the evidence of infants. The judge presiding at the trial can now examine witnesses of immature years, and being satisfied that they under stand the difference between truth and falsehood can authorize the grand jury to receive their testimony just as well as that of the

Some fault was WALSH & STEACY. found with the selections but the singing was much appreciated and allowed to be of a much higher order than we are accustomed to hearing. The individual singing of the famous "Jimmy Lightfoot" was loudly encored while the remarks of the heavy "Lightfoot" during the intervals were excaedingly mirth provoking. The party was conveyed here in a body by one of Wm. Card's rigs, but being badly frightened on the way over, by the aleigh sinking into the alush a few inches, they concluded to remain until next day and return in detachments. They all avowed they would sooner go back in a baloon than on the ice, while one said she would not cross it again, if she got back safely even it it were fourteen feet thick. It is needless to eay they were never on ice before. Edward Smith, son of E. Smith, died on the 12th inst. after a short but severe ill pers. He had been slightly attacked by the measles, but not knowing this went to work at ice, when he contracted cold, which rapidly developed into inflammation on the lungs. Three doctors were called in and every effort made to save his life, but to no avail. He was twenty years old and a smart, steady young man, who will be greatly missed by his friends. His father, who was sick at the time and unable to attend the funeral, is still ill. Much sympathy is extended to the sorrowing family. Mrs. Richard Davis, an aged resident of our village, took suddenly ill last week, and as it was thought she could not recover all the members of the family were called home, but she has since rallied and there is hope that she will get over it. As regards this exacting profession, the aspecial qualities which go to the making up of the legal mind, I believe that quickness to see the revelation between cause and effect, combined with that knowledge of law and precision in its practice which prevents a man from going ahead till he is sure both of his cause and himself, form a good foundation for success as an attorney. As to the pleader in courts, a natural elo-
