MEDICALITIES.

WHY!

WHEREFORE. The virtues or merits of a remedy for pain do not consist in its being as good for relief as other remedies, but in the fact that it's better, in being more prompt and sure, and therefore the best for the specific purpose. It is not an idle catch-line that strikes the eye thus:

ST. JACOBS OIL THE GREAT REMEDY FOR PAIN, IS THE BEST.

It is the best cure for all aches and pains, and it holds

THE TRUE PROOF.

To this specific fact Archbishops, Bishops, Clergymen, Lawyers, Doctors, Governors, Generals, Senators, Members of Congress and Legislatures, U. S. Consuls, Army and Navy Officers Mayors and Officials, testify and unite in saying: "We suffered pain;

OTHER REMEDIES FAILED, and St. Jacobs Oil cured promptly and permanently." For the same reason finds what he seeks and needs, is not deceived and will have it at any price.

WAS A SICKENING SIGHT

A NEGRO LION TAMER HORRIBLY LACERATED.

The Scene Occurred Before a Large Audience in Wombwell and Bailey's Circus in Staffordshire, Eng—The Animals Thought to be Docile Even to Strangers.

There was a terrible scene enacted recently in Wombwell & Bailey's menagerie and circus in Hednesford, Staffordshire, England. The London Pall Mall Budget gives the following graphic account of the occurrence:

Deliah Montarno, a lion tamer, was in the act of entering a cage containing two bears and a hyena, when the mud which had adhered to his boots caused him to slip.

He fell on the floor of the den, and the larger of the bears immediately pounced upon him and seized him at the back of his head with its teeth, causing serious injuries. Some of the spectators were so horrified at the ghastly struggle that they fled panic stricken from the menagerie; but a large number of coal miners and others remained behind. Montarno was only armed with a stick, and it was seen that he was completely powerless, the bear tearing him about the head and face in a most savage manner. The shrieks of the onlookers brought Mr. Frank Bostock from his office to the scene. His predicament was a terrible one, and makes his prompt assistance all the more commendable.

Both bears and the hyena were spoken of as being quite docile even to strangers, but for some unexplained reason the hyena has shown itself the bitter enemy of Mr. Bostock; in fact, on more than one occasion this hyena has exhibited an eagerness to get Mr. Bostock within reach. Mr. Bostock perhaps never realized danger so keenly before, but without a moment's hesitation he called for a stick. In response some one handed him a cane. Fragile a weapon as this was with which to enter upon such a deadly encounter, he sprang into the cage, and while keeping an eye on the hyena began to belabor the bear.

By this time Montarno, who had received injuries of the most shocking character, was becoming enfeebled from the loss of blood, and as though conscious of his mastery the bear attacked him with increased ferocity. After some minutes which seemed like hours both to Montarno and Mr. Bostock, the bear released its hold, and the lion tamer, with terrible gashes about the face and head, and with clothes torn almost to shreds, was dragged from the den. As he was carried out of the place to the Anglesey hotel, he remarked, "I know I am going to die."

Dr. Butler was summoned, but Montarno was beyond hope, and although retaining consciousness to the last, died within half an hour. The deceased, who was forty five years of age, was an African negro and had been connected with the menagerie for something like twenty years. During that time he had several encounters with both bears and lions; but these experiences, so far from convincing him of the danger of his calling, are said to have produced additional daring.

The Wife of Stanley.

Mrs. Stanley is an artist, is delighted with the grand and varied scenery which the colony affords, and colonial society is delighted with her fascinating powers of conversation. When in Christ Church Mrs. Stanley was prevailed upon to submit to the ordeal of being interviewed. As many people are aware, Mrs. Stanley is a descendant of Oliver Cromwell.

The protector had a daughter, Dorothy Lady Rice, and there has always been a Dorothy in the family. Mrs. Tennant is the seventh and Mrs. Stanley is the eighth of that name. Some time ago a skull, supposed to be that of Oliver Cromwell, was found, and it was brought to Mrs. Tennant, who, having no place in which to keep such a relic, was obliged to decline it, whereupon it was placed with other Cromwellian relics in the old hall known as the Chequers.

In her travels through Australia and New Zealand Mrs. Stanley found there were no street arabs for her to exercise her pencil upon. "No," she said, "I have not seen since I have been in the colonies any ragged waifs such as I depict in my picture of 'Heads or Tails.' In Auckland I saw some children with their little brown legs and without shoes or stockings, but it seemed to me to be more a matter of convenience than necessity.

"The street boys I have seen do not present that wan, pinched look we see in England. They more closely resemble Italians, with their brilliant dark eyes. I never saw such sturdy, rosy cheeked little fellows; I cannot help stopping them in the street to look at them." Mrs. Stanley, however, expresses the hope that she and Mr. Stanley may be able to visit Australasia again "unofficially," and in the meantime she is collecting specimens of such plants and seeds as may be likely to grow in the English climate to plant in her garden in South Wales as mementos of her visit.—Christ Church Cor. London Queen.

The Sensibilities of Children.

People as a rule very much underrate the keen sensibilities of the little ones. Children really hear much more than they appear to, their seeming unconsciousness while at play being very misleading. Moreover, they often dwell upon any conversation they may have overheard, and magnify petty annoyances into real trouble. "I can well remember," said a lady the other day, in speaking of children's peculiarities, "the agony of mind I endured because my father, who at that time was somewhat straitened in money affairs, grumbled a good deal over the household bills. I felt that we were on the brink of something terrible, and compared myself mentally to every ragged little waif that I saw in the streets, quite believing that that was my ultimate destination.

"Just at that time an aunt of mine sent me a ten dollar bill to buy a present for myself, and as the last complaint of the head of the house had been about the uncommonly high price of flour as he looked over the monthly bill from the grocer, I felt a thrill of joy that I could help the family in their straits, and then and there I ordered a barrel of meal, which I presented to my astonished parent. He was the kindest and best of men, and after he had by a few questions discovered my trouble, I well remember how he reproached himself for allowing me to form such an exaggerated idea of the family difficulties. 'This child has really suffered,' I heard him say to my mother. 'It is a good lesson to me not to fret at home over business worries.'

"It is needless to add, I suppose, that I received my ten dollars, which I spent according to my fancy with a light heart; but my own experience has made me careful not to bring unnecessary worry into the children's lives."—New York Tribune.

Art Designs on Schoolroom Walls.

Miss Pingree read at the meeting of the school board a communication to her from Mrs. Elizabeth F. Parker, chairman of the Boston Art Students' association, asking for an opportunity to do something for the embellishment of the public schools in the city similar to what has been accomplished by Mrs Turner in the Salem schools.

Mrs. Parker asks permission of the school board to begin the experiment in one or possibly two rooms of one of the grammar schools, suggesting the Bowdoin, on Myrtle street, as a good one for the purpose, taking a room on the first floor, where the younger girls are.

"As the photographs and casts which we should put into it," Mrs. Parker says, "ought to have a proper background, and as our design would be to make as harmonious a room as possible, I want to ask whether the school board would have the room tinted for us, allowing me the choice of color?

"Believing that this means may lead to valuable results, both in training the children unconsciously to appreciation of form, in assisting their historical interest and influencing them toward improving their home surroundings, I venture to ask your interest in favor of our plan," etc.

The letter was referred to the committee on schools.—Boston Herald.

MASCULINE MENTION.

Senator Frye takes a short vacation every year for the salmon fishing in Maine.

Baron Hirsch has decided to devote the whole of his turf earnings last season to the London hospitals.

They call him the Rev. Edward Everything Hale in Boston, and, judging from his versatility, that is a quite appropriate name.

Senator Proctor, ex-secretary of war, owns as fine a team of horses as there is in Washington, but he walks to the Capitol every fine morning.

Mr. O'Ferrall, chairman of the house committee on elections, is a tall, vigorous man, with an erect figure, youthful face and a frank, fearless look.

Ex-Congressman James S. T. Stranahan, of Brooklyn, who was a member of the Thirty-fourth congress, 1855 to 1857, celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday recently.

Senator Kenna is the most persistent sportsman in the senate. He has been all over West Virginia and he knows every spot where fish are plentiful or where game abounds.

Senator Sawyer sets dyspeptic statesmen a good example by swinging a pair of Indian clubs in his room every morning, and if report is true he takes his exercise in a state of nature.

Colonel Olcott, the successor of Mme. Blavatsky as the central figure in theosophy, has retired to a three room house in Ootacamund, India, to spend the remainder of his days in rest.

Among the valuable articles lost by Editor McClure through the burning of the Philadelphia Times annex building was the desk which Thaddeus Stevens used when in congress.

Ex-Speaker Reed is one of the many bicycle riders to be found among public men in Washington, and he was one of earliest residents of that city to indulge in this mode of transportation.

Mr. Edison is confident of his ability to establish telephone connection with Mercury and Mars, and says that he can find out whether the inhabitants of those planets are civilized or savage.

Richard W. Howard, who was with John Brown in his descent on and capture of the United States arsenal at Harper's Ferry, is living in retirement in the Rhode Island town of Warwick, where he was for years a manufacturer of woolen yarns.

Robert C. Winthrop, of Massachusetts, the venerable ex-speaker of the house of representatives, makes it a pleasant boast that he has enjoyed the acquaintance of every president of the United States with the exception of Washington and Jefferson.

Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, is a regular participant in paper chases. He was dragged from one of the meets by a deputy sergeant at arms during a call of the house two years ago and taken before the speaker in his riding boots. Mr. Lodge is a constant equestrian.

Ex-Senator Gibson, of Louisiana, who is a tall and handsome man, rides regularly. He bestrides one of the largest horses in Washington. He is accompanied frequently by one of his boys, who rides a diminutive pony, and the pair are in odd contrast as they jog along.

Secretary Tracy walks a great deal. If the weather is fair he walks to the department from his home on K street, near the Cochran, half a mile away, and, weather permitting, he walks home to luncheon at noon, reads the paper for half an hour and walks back to the department.

Although William Dewitt Hyde has been president of Bowdoin college nearly seven years and perhaps no longer deserves to be called, as formerly, "the boy president," he is still a young man, being only thirty-four years of age. He is fond of athletic sports and is a devoted father.

One day in 1830 Joseph Gillott, now the famous steel pen maker, accidentally split one of his fine steel tools. Being suddenly required to sign a receipt, and not finding his quill pen at hand, he used the split tool as a ready substitute. This happy accident led to the idea of making pens of steel.

Sir Edward Harlan and Mr. Wolff are both members of the shipbuilding firm that built the White Star line steamers, and both are members of parliament sitting for Belfast. So the sobriquet of "the Majestic" has been invented for Sir Edward, who is a stately and dignified person, while Mr. Wolff, who is of German origin and appearance, is called "the Teutonic."

Notice.

"The Persian Lotion" is a medicinal preparation, transparent and limpid like water. It radically removes pimples and other eruptions, either by destroying the unhealthy skin, and the parasitic germs which produce the same or inclosing the pores of the skin, so as to prevent the minute particles of blood or purulent matter from exuding. It disperses freckles and the masque, by dissolving and removing the particles of foreign matter which when introduced into the pores of the skin produce these blemishes. It is not the skin which undergoes a change of color but the pores which become filled with the foreign matter which water will not dissolve, but which is removed more or less easily by the 'Persian Lotion" in proportion to the age of such spots.

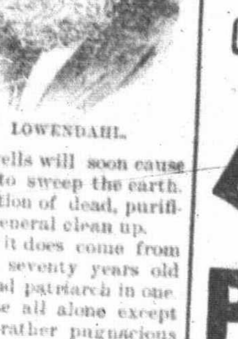
HE PREDICTS A PLAGUE.

A Jerseyman Who Looks for Terrible Times Next Year.

The prophets have broken loose again. Lieutenant C. A. L. Totten says the millennium is but seven years away, a dozen others set the time nearer, and Israel Lowendahl, of Vineland, N. J., declares that unless extraordinary measures are taken at once the World's fair of 1893 will start the most destructive plague known since the awful era of the "Black Death."

He has written to President Harrison about it, and expresses deep grief that his letter has not been answered. He shows from history that the great plagues began at great assemblages of pilgrims or traders, but the cause was that waste matter had been neglected till the earth and air were contaminated. The greatest modern evil is burial of the dead. The earth near all cities is getting poisoned, and the water of springs and wells will soon cause cholera and influenza to sweep the earth. He recommends cremation of dead, purification of water and a general clean up.



LOWENDAHL.

His advice is good, if it does come from a "crank." He is over seventy years old and looks the apostle and patriarch in one. He lives in a nice house all alone except for the company of a rather pugnacious bulldog. Two years ago he declared there would be an epidemic of influenza. It came sure enough, and so a few (very few) people think there may be something in his last prognostication.

DESERONTO DOINGS.

The Notes of the Week Briefly Chronicled for Our Readers.

DESERONTO, May 17.—The open air concert given by the citizens' band, last Friday evening, was much enjoyed by a large multitude. The playing was particularly good and critics pronounced it in every respect superior. The band loses the services of two valuable musicians by the departure of R. Huff and John Walker, attached to Burtch's pavilion theatre company for the summer. The schooner Julia arrived here Monday with a cargo of coal for the Rathbun company.

Miss Rathbun and E. Walter Rathbun left by str. Reliance, Saturday evening, for New York. John Bell, Q.C., and Mrs. Bell, Belleville, are the guests of H. B. Rathbun. The employees of the sash factory were photographed Saturday. The big mill employees were photoed Monday. Mr. Bennett and Mr. Embury, Napanee, have entered on duty in the Rathbun company's central offices. Mrs. J. G. Hampton and Mrs. D. N. Armstrong spent Monday in Belleville. J. L. Blaikie, Toronto, has returned home after spending a few days at Bay View ranche.

The much-needed sidewalk is being laid on Centre street. Wm. Smith leaves, Friday, for Glasgow, Scotland. Schr. Annie Minnes is loading ties for Oswego. Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Hull, sr., arrived home, Saturday, after spending a week with friends in Barriefield. The str. Resolute left, Monday evening, for Charlotte, loaded with ties and posts. The sloop Sovereign is on the dry dock this week. The str. Rocket arrived on Sunday. The Rocket will be fitted out for an excursion boat and will run between Picton and Trenton in the Ella Ross' place. The Ross takes the Napanee and Picton route.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.

The most effectual Cure for Gout and Rheumatism. A frequent cause of these complaints is the inflammatory state of the blood, attended with bad digestion, lassitude, and great debility, showing the want of a proper circulation of the fluid, and that impurity of the blood greatly aggravates these disorders. Holloway's Pills are of so purifying a nature that a few doses taken in time are an effectual preventive against gout and rheumatism, but anyone that has an attack of either should use Holloway's Ointment also, the powerful properties of which, combined with the effects of the Pills, ensure a certain cure. The Ointment should be thoroughly rubbed into the parts affected at least twice a day, after they have been sufficiently fomented with warm water to open the pores to faciliate the introduction of the Ointment to the glands.

Colebrook Cullings.

COLEBROOK, May 16. — Henry Bush's gang of Rathbun drivers has pitched its tent here and intend to remain with us a short time. The men have a large part of the drive over here now. Miss Ordacy Benn is home from the Kingston hospital quite improved. Her parents have every confidence in her recovery. Harvey Warner spent Sunday with friends here. The band of Uncle Tom's Cabin troupe gave us a fine street parade on Saturday and played some good selections. We are late in reporting the arrival of a daughter at Peter Hart's. He has a family of six children and all boys but this one. Charles Calpeck and Dafoe have started for Big Creek on a froging expedition.
