Under the general heading of Disconnected Syllables may be classed the PREFIXES AND AFFIXES given on pages 48-jf of the "Manual"., We have already shown that the final syllable ted in words size entreated, concentrated, credited, doubted, etc., is better disjoined and written near the preceding part of the word. Of words that require a somewhat similar treatment the following are examples: Leastness, Le maptness, Le deliler. ateness. Va abruptness; in like manner write appropriationers, gorrapiness, loidness, badness, morbidness, turbidness, largeness (100 the grammalogue large, page 56), adaptedness, mildness. C misbelieve, Dany mittalienlated, Cas misfortune, P misthought; So passionless, Jo shellas; was marticulation, on indiscernible, " inartificial, " unsiritien, " superabundant, 2 midshipman, 2 oldish, 2 offipring.

Of words joined by a hyphen the subjoined are specimens :-A grid fiend, De tond servent, the re ordain, the reordained, Pom p. re-organized, By South-eastern, A Southeasterly, So field piece, 2 sea-fight, A hard-headed, To hard-fought, of a hold-fast, S.J. over-strain, S.J. overspread, (-1 thunder-storm, 6 foster-father-mothersister-brother-son.

When preceded by a consonant, either in the same or the previous word, am or com (in addition to the dot) is denoted by writing the syllable immediately following UNDER or CLOSE TO the consonant immediately preceding, as shown in the examples in par. 147. In the same way write the words now following :-Accompaniment, accommodation, circumcise, of circumcision, circumference, circumvent(-ed), not-content, non-content, malcontent, disconnecting, encompassed, pre-concerted, excommunication, preconceived, incomplete, incongruous, inincombustibility, incomparably, uncontroverted, misconceived, misconjecture, misconstrued, non-conductor, recumbent, recumbency, re-conquer, reconnoitre, recompense, unconcernedly, unconditionally, unconsciously, unconnected, nonconformity, circumscribe,

As will be seen in par. 147, short phrases may be formed by the aid of this mode of indicating con, com, or cam. Write, similasty. ), they are contained (the phonograph there being allowed to stand for the phrase they are), they are contented, I am confident, we compare, it is commencing, you are complimentary, in his condition, I um concerned, etc.

With the prefix inter or intro write these words :- Enterprized, entertain, intercede-d, interchanged, intercession, intramission, intercourse, interfere, introduced, interjected, interleave, interlined, intermediary, intermingled, intermittent, interpret, interrogated, interrupted, intersect, interviewed, intercept. With the prefix magna or magna write :- Magna-Charta, magnanimity, magnificat, magnificent-ce, magnitude; magnolia-With the prefix self-write: - Self-denial, self-respect-esteemsame-love-wiff; selfish-ness. With the prefix in write; -- Inscribed, instructor, inheritance, inhumanity, inherent, inhibition,

With the affix alife, slick write the following words :- " acceptability, credibility, culpability, legibility, responsibility, capability, excitability, notability indelibility, irritability, Vy nobility, & suitability, of godelity, generality (see grammajogue for general), e-y- similarity, . plurality, . liberality, neutrality. L juvenility. The plural s may be added to the as to most of the other prefixes and affixes, than a empoundables. The primary a and adulty or above must be written in full; thus, VIV

With the affix & write; -- Constantly, diligently, firely, hisvently, evenly, fondly, friendly, faintly, flippantly, -- y in figneatly, confidently, improvidently, to indolently, & incoleatly, negligently, prudently, sternly, obediently. uninterruptedly, slovenly, inclegantly (/ down).

With sever ( - ) write :- Announcement, defacement, confinement, accompaniment. The word mental should be written in but as an affix it may be written thus, rudimental.

With the affix grap write :- Apprenticeship, chancellorship, clerkship, collectorship, companionship, hardship, generalship, Yadyship, judgeship, heirahip, leadership, > 1, wardship.

The following are examples of logograms and grammalogues used as prefixes or affixes (refer to pages $6-7) :-- 4 aftercrop, & afterthought, & afterward, & understood, of underwood (as a general rule the logogram and should be written ander the after part of the word, as in underground, but, where convenient it is allowable to join them, as in anderstand, undermach, I underground, IT undergo, A underwrite; and similarly with undervalue, under-let, underhanded, undermine, under-current, underbid, underaction, underbred, underdone, tinderlie, underneath, undersigned, y understand, y particularly, of gentlemanly, goodly, greatly, of firstly, spiritually, 2 shorrly, of merely.

The foregoing examples are to be well practised. They afford ample exercise on the prefixes and affixes; and, indeed, in conjunction with Exercises 13-16 in the "Manual," form the best means of learning them properly. .

The GEAMMALOGUES on pages 54 and 55 should now be taken in hand. They seem a formidable task; but, in reality, are not so. Before commencing to learn them, paragraphs 162-164, 167-171 should be read. You will there find the rules for writing them ABOVE, ON, and THROUGH the line. In going through the ifff on the pages already mentioned you will notice that many of them are words written in position. the vowel being omitted but indicated by its position with respect to the line; as, \ Augur being represented by : I done, by ]: ], down, by ]. There are a few grammalogues not written in accordance with the above method. These are divided into two classes-(1) Words of frequent occurrence written on the line for the sake of convenience; and (2) words which, if written-in their proper position, might be misread for some other grammalogue. These are given on the top of page 59 of the "Manual," and it would be well that you should carefully examine them; and, with regard to class 2, endeavor to ascertain why they are not written in position in accordance with their vowel; for instance, any is written above the line because _ so is written on the line; _ me above because ... firm is on the line. It is absolutely necessary to distinguish the foregoing words, which are dissimilar in meaning, by difference in position. Many other grammalogues, you will observe, are represented by the first letter or syllable of the word; as, - different, I general; others again by the final letter or syllable; as, I derge, I pleasure. If you take the trouble to analyse them in this way you will the more readily commit them to memory.

Another way of learning the grammalogues is to construct sentences in which they occur. If you find difficulty in constructing sentences which shall contain a goodly number of them, you may, perhaps, find the following an easy method of learning them; namely, Take a sheet of paper and copy out all the grammalogues, prenouncing them aloud, and wro its next them in full Phonography the words for which they stand : then take a strip of paper and cover over the column in the "Manual" containing the grammalogues and write them out as nearly as you can from memory Do this two or three times and you will get them pretty well by heart.

The alphabetical arrangement on pages 56-57 is convenient for reference when turning longland toto shorthand and you are in doubt as to whether a certain word is a grammalogue or not

DEATHS OF THREE PERSONS. Two of Them Were Very Sudder-Remov. I of a Clergyman. May 17 .- We have had a very sad week

-three funerals within seven days. Mrs. George Learmonth was suddenly taken from our midst almost at a moment's warning. She was a most beautiful bride less than e year ago, and looked as well as usual up to a few days before her death. The funeral was one not soon to be forgotten. Strong men and women wept with relatives. Room could not be found in the seats of the church for the people. Several remained standing throughout the service. The church was Toronto. Mrs. McBride, whose death was Contains no Alum, Ammonia, L. not entirely unexpected, was the next to be called away. Deceased was eighty four years of age. Her sons and daughters are beginning to blossom for the grave. She was one of the most noble women that ever lived in this county. Her name, as well : s that of her sons and daughters, is an honor to the place. None more respected ; nor e more honored ; none more highly esteemed, and none more worthy. Her three sons are leading officials in the church, and she herself was an ornament to it to the hour of her death. The last of the three was as sudden as the first. The first anybody seemed to know about it Mrs. Campbell was dead, Her maiden name was Higgenson. A fail caused her death. The funeral was large attended in the Episcopal church. most appropriate service was held by Rev. Mr. Snowden. She also leaves a large circle of acquaintances and friends -While death is doing its work fields are becoming most beautiful, and we are charm d with the sounds of spring. The grain looks first-class. - Rev. Mr. Hyland has returned, His absence was caused by a most pleasing event, viz., a golden wedding.-Rev. Mr. Topping's full term having almost expired he most reluctantly contemplates moving to parts unknown, for the present, as does also his botter half - Few people seem at all anxious to leave this country.
