NEW AFTERNOON GOWNS.

Dainty, Light Costumes Brought Out for the Hot Days.

Two dresses designed exclusively for the "summer girl" are here sketched. One is of white embroidery over pink silk. The skirt is bordered with a full flounce of Valenciennes lace festooned on the right side with bows and loops of satin ribbon. This trimming is very stylish, and much improves the appearance of a plain skirt. The baby bodice with high sleeves is ornamented with ribbon bows on the shoulders and a belt. The hat worn with this gown is of Tuscan straw, with bows of lace and pink and crimson roses.

TWO SUMMER COSTUMES.

The second dress is of cream gauze, with a pattern of violets scattered all over it. A double frill of Valenciennes lace, put on with a gauging of the gauze, finishes the bottom of the skirt. There is a long sash of white faille ribbon. The fichu is of the gauze edged with lace, and the elaborate sleeves are made to match. The hat consists of white lace and foliage.

Another charming costume is of delicate heliotrope foulard, covered with a fine "all over" pattern in black. Two ruches of satin ribbon border the bottom of the skirt. With the round waist is worn a jabot of beige colored lace. A black straw hat, with bows of heliotrope satin ribbon and white daisies, is designed to be worn with this gown.

Fashions in Jewelry.

Elsie Bee writes in Jewelers' Circular of new things in jewelry as follows:

Silver nets about six inches square and fringed with tiny silver balls are worn by some young women in the hats.

The new sleeve buttons are button and bar, the centers polished and surrounded by broken raised edges.

The newest backcombs with metal tops have the centers of lattice work like the intercurving of twisted ropes, with olivines, topazes and more precious stones set in the crossings.

Next to the bowknot comes the round brooch made up of narrow curving or geometrical forms. The knife edges are coated with enamel and sprinkled with small pearls and stones.

Sprays of white currants are new brooches for summer wear, and very pretty they are. The currants are perfectly imitated and the broad leaf is inlaid with chips of diamonds. If of metal, silver is more appropriate than gold for the pure translucence of the currant.

The latest bowknots are of colored enamel, with rows of tiny pearls or small stones on one side introduced like a stripe.

Pretty studs, earrings and brooches consist of a ring of tiny pearls circling a ground of pink, blue or green translucent enamel, with a rippling pattern on gold showing through the enamel.

Foulard Gowns.

Foulards are so comfortable, as well as pretty, that it is not surprising they are in great favor. The patterns this season are exquisite. A pretty foulard, with tiny white feathers printed on a white ground, was recently made up with lace and loops of heliotrope ribbon placed over the lace. This was draped diagonally across the skirt and the high bodice, the lace being used for the lower portion of the full puffed sleeve, the upper portion opening inside the arm to show the lace and ribbon. The color was exceedingly delicate. As foulard is a thin material which requires some adornment on the skirt, the difficulty was surmounted here by introducing a trained piece which flowed gracefully at the back.

Some of Worth's foulard gowns are trimmed with buttonholed flounces on the skirt.

Summer Cloaks.

Summer cloaks that are not made entirely of lace are trimmed with lace—and very lavishly, too, some of them. It is rather a favorite fashion to veil a delicate colored cloth with fine black lace. For example, one of the new capes in a very pale shade of green, with a yoke formed of a graceful arrangement of black velvet ribbon, has the lower part entirely veiled with lace. There is also a frill of lace around the shoulders. Another dressy cloak is pink cloth covered with ecru guipure and trimmed with long cream ribbons.

LONG EVENING CLOAK.

An elegant new evening cloak is white corded silk with a Watteau back, long white ribbons in front and a quantity of lace flummery about the neck and shoulders. A graceful cloak in pale yellow cloth laid in folds at the back to show the waist is trimmed with coarse white lace and ribbons.

The handsome cloak here illustrated figured in the trousseau of a recent bride. It is in cream guipure lined with pink silk. A full ruffle encircles the throat. The yoke and small cape below, reaching to the shoulders, are in gold embroidered lace.

The Mephisto Millinery Ornament.

One ornament conspicuous in most of the new bonnets is the "Mephisto." Sometimes it is made of something in flaming red, but often it is jet. It consists of two or four horns. A large hat made entirely of cream point de venise had for its chief trimming jet horns that reached from the front to the extreme back.

Monthly Prizes for Boys and Girls.

The "Sunlight" Soap Co., Toronto, offer the following prizes every month till further notice, to boys and girls under 16 residing in the Province of Ontario, who send the the greatest number of "Sunlight" wrappers: 1st, $10; 2nd, $6; 3rd, $3; 4th, $1; 5th to 14th, a Handsome Book; and a pretty picture to those who send not less than 12 wrappers. A Prominent Feature!—A Blessing to the Family!

The best physicians in Canada readily admit that Lactated Food is superior to all other foods now on the market. They are aware that it possesses all the necessary elements that the young infant requires, when it is derived of nature's food—breast milk.

One prominent feature of Lactated Food is the employment of pure milk sugar, thus bringing it near to the standard of healthy human milk. The best medical authorities recommend the use of milk sugar in food for infants, in place of cane sugar.

Cane sugar is largely employed in the common prepared foods, and has a tendency to produce fermentation in the stomach, and break up in carbonic acid and alcohol, and thus augments irritation. It also produces gastric catarrh and diarrhœa, and frequently conduces to constipation.

All these dangers are avoided when the mother feeds her infant on pure Lactated Food, which is relished by the little one, and is always retained on the weakest stomach. Lactated Food is, in hundreds of cases, the salvation of the child, and mothers readily admit this fact. Mothers who feed their infants on Lactated Food, are saved from the many worries which harass the mothers who use cow's milk and other foods. Lactated Food is a grand blessing to every member of the family, as well as to the little infant.

Hard Hit.

Young Man—Are you the man what tattoos?

Boatman—Yes, my lad.

Young Man—Well, I want you to put the name of Lucy on my arm in a heart, and make the heart very large!—Life.

Little Things.

"It is shameful how the newspapers talk about the women's bathing suits," said Mrs. Dupois as they sat at the breakfast table.

"Yes," said Mr. Dupois from behind his part of it. "These newspaper scribblers can make more fuss about a little thing than anybody."—Boston Post.

AFTER MANY DAYS.

A Lifelong Search for a Pole That Would Do.

"George!"

His mother called to him sharply.

"Ya-a-as," drawled the boy.

"I want you to go over into the grove and get me a long, straight pole for the clothesline. Do you hear?"

"Ya-a-as."

"And if you come back without it I'll skin you alive! Do you hear that?"

"Ya-a-as."

He walked lazily away, whistling as he went, and his retreating form was lost to view in the thick shadows of the wood that skirted the premises.

His mother sat on the kitchen steps, waiting for his return, and the sun sank lower and lower, and the melancholy note of the whippoorwill sounded through the still air and the stars came out one by one and twinkled feebly.

And the boy came not.

Twenty-eight years passed, with their burden of joy and sorrow, their mellowing touch beneath which golden heads ripened into gray and the full, rounded cheek of rosy youth paled and grew furrowed with care, and the light of hope died out of the eager, sparkling eyes that watched the seasons come and go.

One dreamy Indian summer day a man past the prime of life, footsore and dusty with travel, walked slowly through the streets of the thriving, populous town which he remembered as the little frontier village of his boyhood. He looked uncertainly from side to side, as if searching for some familiar landmark. Finally he stopped in front of a plain, unpainted, old and time worn cottage, scanning it with tired and dejected eyes, opened a gate that creaked drearily on its rusty hinges, went up the grass grown path and knocked at the front door.

A wrinkled old woman, bent with age and rheumatism, answered the knock.

* * * * * * *

"Where is that clothesline stick, George?"

"I couldn't find one that I thought was long enough and straight enough, mother, and I kept on hunting it. Went over into the next county. It wasn't there. Been looking for it all these years. I have travelled thousand of miles trying to find it. I know exactly where it is, and I have made many a trip to reach it, but never got there. I've given it up. You don't need it now, anyhow, do you?"

"What do you mean, George?"

"And I don't think you could use it for a clothesline prop if you had it."

"You say you've made several long journeys to find it?"

"Yes."

"And couldn't?"

"That's what I said."

"Yet you know where it is?"

"Yes."

"George, what in the world are you talking about?"

"The north pole, mother."—Chicago Tribune.

Seven Years Suffering.

GENTLEMEN,—I have suffered very much from inflammatory rheumatism, which through wrong treatment left ugly running sores on my hands and feet. With these I suffered for seven years, during which time I had neither shoe or stocking on. I commenced using B.B.B. externally and internally, using the pills also, and I can say now that the sores are entirely cured, and have been for some time. I believe the bitters were the means of saving my life. MRS ANNIE BARR, Crowson's Corners, Action, P.O., Ont.

A Cautious Tramp.

"Mister," said a seedy personage to a gentleman going along Woodward avenue the other evening, "can I speak with you a minute?"

The gentleman could not well refuse so simple a request, and the seedy one asked him for ten dollars.

"Ten dollars!" was the astonished exclamation. "Of course I won't give it to you. What do you want with that much money?"

"I want to get a feed with it," responded the tramp meekly.

"You don't want that much money to get something to eat with!"

"I'raps not, sir, but the change will come handy."

"No doubt of that, but you don't get it."

"Well, gimme ten cents then."

"Nor nor I won't give you ten cents, either."

"You refuse my request for a dime, do you?" said the tramp ominously.

"Emphatically I do."

The tramp turned away.

"All I've got to say to you," he said sadly, "is that I wouldn't take a dime from a man who didn't have business judgment enough to compromise a claim of ten dollars at one cent on the dollar for fear I'd be arrested for [illegible] once on a person of [illegible] he disappeared in the shadows [illegible] the gentleman in a state of [illegible] wilderment.—Detroit Free Press.

A Great Surprise

Is in store for all who use Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs the great guaranteed remedy. Would you believe that it is sold on its merits and that any druggist is authorized by the proprietor of this wonderful remedy to give you a sample bottle free? It never fails to cure acute or chronic coughs. All druggists sell Kemps' Balsam. Large bottles 50c and $1.

Might Have Known the Hardins.

A respectable looking colored man of the old school was standing near the family carriage, on Fourth avenue, the other day. He was gazing at the display of laces in the windows when a seedy white man, who looked as if he was about to beg, approached and said:

"How do you do, uncle?"

"Howdy, sah?" responded the old fellow, lifting his hat.

"You were born in Kentucky, were you not?"

"Yes, sah."

"Didn't you once belong to the Hardins?"

"Yes, sah."

"I used to know the Hardins," said the tramp, getting ready to make his request.

"Yes, sah; dey was lots a people dat knew de Hahdins dat de Hahdins didn't know," and he proudly opened the carriage door to allow his mistress to enter.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

What is Dandruff?

A disease of the scalp that causes falling of the hair, fading of the hair, in fact death of the hair. It irritates the scalp and causes scales and eczematic eruptions—produces baldness. Bear in mind that Anti-Dandruff removes Dandruff with three applications—stops falling and restores fading hair to its original color. Sold by druggists at 75c per bottle.

Wrinkle for the Blind.

A blind man sits in the corner of a doorway, and when he hears the light footsteps of a lady he takes off his hat and bows his head, covered with the snows of seventy winters, saying:

"Oh, madam, take pity on a poor blind man who is deprived of the pleasure of seeing you!"

That fetches them.—London Tit-Bits.

Definition of Love.

"Nonsense," remarked Synnek, "it isn't love that makes people marry. It's flattery, rank flattery. The man is pleased because the woman took a fancy to so inferior a being as he knows himself to be, and the woman's vanity is tickled for a precisely similar reason. In a word, each loves the other for showing poor taste in choosing a mate."—Boston Transcript.

Rapid Relief.

DEAR SIRS,—I had for years been troubled with dyspepsia and sick headache, and found but little relief until I tried your Burdock Blood Bitters, which made a perfect cure. It is the best medicine I ever had in my life, and I will never be without it.
