Standing there overpowered by the overmatching splenders of God's glory, and unable longer with the eyes to look upon them, and wishing those eyes shaded from the insufferable glory, the pinions gather over the countenance.

With twain he did cover the face. Then as God tells this scraph to go to the farthest outpost of immensity on message of light and love and joy, and get back before the first anthem, it does not take the seraph & great while to spread himself upon the air with unimagined celerity, one stroke of the wing equal to ten thousand leagues of air. With twain he did fly.' The most practical and useful lesson for you and me, when we see the scraph spreading the wings over the feet, is a lesson of humility at imperfection. The brightest angels of God are so far beneath God that he charges them with folly. The scraph so far beneath God, and we so far beneath the seraph in service, we ought to be plunged in humil-ity, utter and complete. Our feet, how laggard they have been in the divine service! The Csar is Weak and Fat. A near kinsman of the Czar, who visits Russia frequently, and who is wellknown for his frankness as well as fairness, told a writer for Harper's Magazine recently that many of the things done by the alleged order of the Czar were repugnant to that guler's feelings. The prince's conversation might be summarized in this way:

"Alexander has no idea of doing wrong to any one. His heart is full of | to suit purchasers. kindness. He is happy only when surrounded by his family circle. It is true that the foulest maladministration and spersecution are going on all about him, doing more than an exercise in penmanship. He is physically and mentally incapable of supervising any department of the Government-not even the military-and as a consequence the country is left entirely to officials, who divide up power among themselves and do what they can to remain in office.

At Leicester, Cardiff and Swansea there was the same eagerness to hear him, and be was received with unbounded enthusing asm. The sermon selected for publication this week is on Isaiah vi, 2: "With twain he covered his face, with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did fly."

In a hospital of leprosy good King Uzxiah had died and the whole land was shadowed with solemnity, and theological and prophetic Isaiah was thinking about religious things, as one is apt to do in time of great national bereavement, and forgetting the presence of his wife and two sons, who made up his family, he has a dream, not like the dreams of ordinary character, which the solution of the contain half the people who tried to get entrance. At Leicester, Cardiff and Swansea there was that military guard must stand at the graves of Grant and Garfield, and that old shade trees must be cut down for firewood, though fifty George P. Morrises beg the woodmen to spare the tree, and that calls a corpse of cadaver, and that speaks of death as going over to the majority, and substitutes for the revergence of the re from fine paintings, in the chipping of

THE LOVE AND THE JUSTICE OF GOD.

The Bible gives us two descriptions of the Bible says God is a consuming fire. The explanation is plain as plain can be. God through Christ is love. God out of Christ is fire. To win the one and to escape the other we have only to throw ourselves-body, mind and soul-into him what he wants to do with me." So hammer tries to break a thunderbolt, so the breath of human nostrils defies the heaven bow the head and bend the knee as the King's chariot goes by, and the archangel turns away because he cannot endure the splendor, and the chorus of all the empires of heaven comes in with full diapason, "Holy, holy, holy!"
