THE STEAMER CORINTHIAN IS NOW A BLACKENED HULK.

The Fire Caught About the Smoke Stack as She Was Hunning the Espide-Capt. Craig Showed Much Bravery-lke

Passengers All Safe. MONTHEAL, Sept. 21 .- A great sensation, last night, was created by the story from Coteau du Lac that the str. Corinthian had been fistned to the water's edge within a few miles of Luchine. The rumor added to the tale that a number of passungers had lost their lives and that the scene was one of exampled horror. It is true that the boat was destroyed, with most of its freight, but apart from this there was but little of the seasational in the catastroph

The story of the disaster is as follows: The Corinthian had just passed Cedar Rapids, about half past four, when the second mate ran up from below and informed Capt. Oraig that the vessel was on fire. The captain, who was on the bridge, ran down between decks and remained there for ten minutes. He discovered that that part of the vessel in the vicinity of the smokestack was in flames. The hose was at once put to work and every effort made to subdue the

After seeing to these arrangements Capt. Craig again accorded to the promet ade deck and requested all passengers to go aft. It was just then that the passengers discovered their peril. The flames had broken through the woodwork surrounding the amokestack and were fast becoming a raging confisquamile from shore, and the captain, at once, little delay as possible. All this time the St. James chapter of the brotherhood of captain and erew exhibited admirable cool-

During this time and officers, had lowered boats in order to be prepared for the last emergency. Happily there was no necessity for passengers taking to boats as the Corinthian was run on shore before the fire had gained such head way as to render the attuation of the passengers dangerous.

When the steamer was beached one of the boats was swung around the bow, between were thrown from it to the shore. Every-Ald.
