The Order Got Into Difficulties With Parties Fighting Benefit Societies - The Order The Members Think Will Pay Back Every Con: Paid In.

The members of the order of Frateres suardiane in the city were surprised upon receiving circulars announcing the assignment of the order. The lodge in this city is called Oxford lodge and was organized by Warren Tot en, Q.C., of Woodstock, February, 1891. He expressed great confi dence in the system of incurance carried or by the order. Those who joined Oxford lodge were prominent business men and their wives who were energetic in working up the membership. There are between fity and sixty members. The leading offi cers are : Chief guardian, W. Langdon; vice chief guardian, Miss Miller; prolate, Rev. J. Kines; P.C.G., S. J. Kilpstrick:

recorder, J Rattenbury. The order was a combined endowment and mortuary institution. It promised to pay policies from $300 to $5,000 in a period of twenty-eight years, one-nighth of the amount of a member's certificate being paid on his withdrawai from the order after three and one-half years. There is no acting dishonestly and the public are dealt with in a straightforward manner. The scheme had the taking of insurance money without any expense to policy holders, making their position etronger than ordinary insurance companies The order of Fraternal Guardians dees not promise what other fraternal companies do, to pay the total amount of the policy at death, out they premise to pay simply a certain one-cighth portion in three and one-half years. Quite a reasonable arrangement for policy holders, and one which can be carried out honestly by the heads of the association. I am perfectly satisfied that the order will pay the full amount that has been paid by any and every policy holder. The order has been in existence three and a half years and the first instalment, amounting to $541, 375, is now due to those who joined it at its inception. JAMES REID. THE LEADING UNDERTARER, Princel

Capt. Estes, of the steamer St Lawrence, related an interesting story to a reporter last night. He told of his having taken President Cleveland and party on board at Cape Vincent, one fine day in the summer of 1886, for a cruise among the islands. The steamer was at the upper end of the Islands when dinner time came and as there was no particular destination to be made Capt. Estes consulted one of the heads of the party to see if he would run over near the Fiddler's Elbow and there lay until after dinner. The congressman did not like the idea of taking the president over in Canadian waters when he was finating under all the pump and glory of the United States flag, etc., but Capt. Estee pacified him by saying that the president would be none the wiser, he would not know where be was, and so the steamer proceeded to this particular place. When all were busily engaged at dinner in the cabin Capt. Estes, sitting on the hurricane deck, looked unconcernedly up from his paper and noticed a terrible squall beating down upon the steamer. The captain had barely time to leap to the wheel, put it hard to starboard, ring for full | this morning, a shed in the rear of Mrs. Folsteam and got the Sr. Lawrence nicely turned around when the squall struck her with terrific force.
