suspected he kept to himself. Deciding not to tell the men of the expected fare, he bade the crew get the forward anchor ready. Then with the lead Capt Freming took soundings, and finally, to his by and surprise, he sounded twenty-five set of water. Quick as a shot both anchors went down and held fast. This was about five o'clock, Saturday morning. The storm did not abate one lots, and Capt Fieming was unable to make shore till Monday morning. In the meantime the yawl Loat belonging to the vessel had become dilapidated. The rough usage was too much for it. The bottom was caved in and several alata gone off her sides.
