It is surprising what very little interest is taken over here in Canadian politics, an Amurath succeeds, governments rise and fall, but considering how much nearer we are to Canada than we, are to India or Auctralia, one would imagine that a better knowledge of what was proceeding to the deminion would be displayed by the mother country. The change of one premier to an other has been effected, so quietly that the Canadians thomselves can scarcely have shown much appreciation of what in most ountries would be esteemed an important
