STOP THE RACKETS.

The Canada Health Journal speaks feelingly on the subject of needless noises and their effect on the nervous system. The slow and almost insensible effect of noise on the nervous system, it says, tends to wear and break it down. The sensitive ear and brain are tortured by the shrieks of locomotive whistles, the hideous yell of the factory horn and the clatter of traffic on the stone paved streets; when evening comes "saloons pour forth their life, and youths and intoxicated revellers wend their homeward way with loud talking, songs and shouts. Dogs and cats often keep up the racket until soon the milkman and newsboy in the early morning connect the endless chain of noise again with the clatter of the street traffic. And so it goes on, and life is not only rendered miserable from want of refreshing sleep, but is incalculably shortened." The Journal suggests that legislators and the press should strive to make the night as well as the Sabbath a period of rest.

GET READY FOR IT.

The die has been cast. The muffled roar of indignation from farmers, merchants and manufacturers, heard by Sir John A. Macdonald, who has had his ear to the earth, has alarmed him, and he has endeavored to forestall public opinion by bringing on the elections at once. A despatch this morning announces the dissolution of the house, with nominations on Feb. 26th and polling on March 5th. The time is short, but let no liberal be discouraged. Every man who has an interest in the advancement of liberal principles and the betterment of the people has now a duty such as never before presented itself to enter into the contest with a sturdy determination to win. The liberal party was never more united, never more energetic, never keener to the needs of the hour. Let them spring to action! The rally, in Kingston, of Friday last paved the way to a stalwart fight. And with the best available man to lead, Kingston need no longer be the pocket borough of anybody no matter how eminent. The city wants a representative of its own not a non resident who spends one day per year in a Pullman car.

KEY NOT FOUND.

The skeleton key which the mayor under took to find some time since has not been found, and so the municipal deadlock continues. The conservatives—who outside of the mayor only number ten, and are so in the minority—undertook to run the civic business, and so brought down a by law by which it was proposed to borrow $100,000, enough to run the civic business until after the budget was brought down, and until after the election. The liberals objected. They did not demur to the passage of a sum sufficient to pay the salaries of the city officials, and of the school teachers and other pressing incidentals, but they were not disposed to borrow just now any more than there was an absolute need for. The situation is, of course, annoying, and the tories are so eager to cast all the blame and responsibility on the liberals. But what of the mayor? Does he not create the deadlock? Can't he break it if he will? Of course he can. But he will not simply because he is inclined to listen to the voice of the tempter, and believe that he and the minority can carry their point. But they can not. The people of the city are fully aware of the nature of the struggle, of the fact that the majority in the council, has the commonplace mayor, have not had fair treatment at the hands of the presiding officer, that he has stood in with the minority and not permitted the others the courtesy of submitting their committees as the conservatives did, that it has been all the way through ostensibly a struggle for principle while it has been really a battle for political patronage through the streets department. Conservatives laugh to scorn the apologies that have been offered for the ticket scandal and pronounce them the rankest nonsense.

MEDICAL WOMEN.

Cardinal Gibbons, the highest dignitary of the Church of Rome in the United States, recently, at the opening of the Johns Hopkins medical school for women, took occasion to laud the work of educating women in the science, of medicine and his thoughtful words will be read with interest by those in Kingston whoare engaged in the same noble work:

"I do not hesitate so say, with due deference to the judgment of others, that in my opinion it is important to the well being of society that the study of medicine by Christian women should be continued and extended.

"The prejudice that allows women to enter the profession of nursing and excludes them from the profession of medicine cannot be too strongly censured, and its existence can be explained only by the force of habit. It has been urged that women do not, as a rule, possess the intellectual powers of men, but their ability to pursue the usual medical studies has been sufficiently demonstrated, and it is admitted, even by those who concede to men a higher order of intellect and greater powers of ratiocination, that what women may lack in that direction seems to be supplied by that logical instinct with whice they have been endowed by God. It is evident also that if female nurses may with propriety attend men as well as women, that privilege cannot reasonably be withheld from the female physician; indeed, the position of the nurse might be regarded as open to much graver objections, inasmuch as the physician makes but a brief visit to the patient, while the nurse occupies the sick room day and night. The attendance of female physicians upon women is often of incalculable benefit. Much serious and continued suffering is undergone by women, and many beginnings of grave illness are neglected, because of the sense of delicacy which prevents them from submitting to the professional services of men. There is also an infinite number of cases, known to all who have been concerned in charitable or reformatory work, in which no influence or assistance can be so effectual as that of a physician who is also a woman and a christian.

"The alleviation of suffering, for women of all classes, which would result from the presence among us of an adequate number of well trained female physicians cannot but be evident to all; but I wish to emphasize as strongly as possible the moral influence of such a body, than which there could be no more potent factor in the moral regeneration of society."

CORRUPTING THE PEOPLE.

It is our contention, and the contention of all who are honestly inclined in politics, that it is just as wrong to bribe the constituency as the individual. The St. Catharines Journal does not think so, and so gives place to an article which seriously reflects upon itself. It finds fault with the sweet scented Rykert for paying so much time to himself and so little to the city. Speaking in the name of the people, it says: "They will now insist on having an honest, straightforward man, rather than a place-hunting and boodle-grabbing politician. We want a man in parliament who is not only capable but who is also willing to raise his voice and demand justice and a fair share of government favors for this long neglected city and county. We have had a surfeit of alleged politics. We have, to use an inelegant but decidedly expressive vulgarism, too long been fed on wind pudding. We have grown poor and lean and lank on the diet. We now require something more substantial. We demand the fulfilment of the oft-broken promises made to us. We demand a turning-basin and a dock on the new Welland Canal. We also ask for the utilization of the waste water on that channel for manufacturing purposes." And so the Journal's idea of a popular and honest representative is that which rests upon his ability to plunder the state for the sake of the constituency." If St. Catharines needs the things it demands in the interest of the country's trade and commerce, it should have them, but they should not be undertaken by the government simply because Rykert asks for them. The truth is that the member for Lincoln has such an unsavory reputation that parliament would be justified in thinking twice before granting his request. But the people and the Journal endorsed him with all his foulness, and it ill becomes them now to hurl their insults at him.

CONCERT AND SUPPER

A Joyous Event Given at Kingston Mills Recently by the Mechanics.

KINGSTON MILLS, Jan. 28.—The concert and oyster supper held in the bridge builders' boarding house, under the auspices of the various foremen and tradesmen employed here, was a brilliant success. It was an opera of no mean order, and to look on the stage which they had erected, so tastefully decorated and curtained, you would not imagine you were in a country house, but in a theatre. Still more surprised were the spectators, when the curtain was drawn, to see seated on the stage twelve gentlemen, of the iron mechanics, with their faces as black as coal tar and dressed in negro style, Mr Baldwin acting in the capacity of master of ceremonies in a becoming manner. Having borrowed their southern friends' tongues for the occasion they sang with the most exquisite taste, making those present feel that they were down on the old plantation or sailing on the "Swanee Ribber." Interspersed, in sandwich style, after each song, were conundrums, bringing down the house every time. One was: "How is it that this year is two days shorter than last?" The answer showed that it was in consequence of a drop of two days, one over Niagara Falls the other from a scaffold. The conundrums were of an original character and speak well for the wit and clever traits of these gentlemen who, upon leaving the platform, were given a hearty ovation. Then again the time was passed pleasantly by listening to the remaining part of the programme in which the following gentlemen distinguished themselves: In a farce, "The Hotel Keeper," Mr. Hamilton; characteristic song "Raffle For a Stove," Messrs. Bones and Hamilton; humorous song, "Charge of the Light Brigade," Mr. Baldwin; character, "Ben Low," Messrs. Max and Smith; comic, "Lather and Shave 'Em," Messrs. Scissors and Payne; pathetic song, 'Old and Only in the Way," Messrs. Sambo and Metcalf; comic, "Sailor's Grave," Messrs Bateman and Dick; comic, "Mrs. Johnston," Mr. Rothwell; comic, "Miss Fogarty's Xmas Cake," Mr. McKendrick; comic, "Old Bob Ridley," Mr Chamberlain; recitation, "The Old School Boy," Mr. Rose; comic, "Billy Goat," Mr. Hamilton; characteristic song, "Paddy Stole the Rope," Mr. Baldwin; comic, "Simple Simon," Mr. Smith; humorous song, "Don't give up the old Friend for the New," Mr. Payne; comic, "McGinty," Mr. Irvine; comic, "Many Names," Mr. Rothwell; comic, "John Malone," Joseph Irving.

It would be unfair to make any special mention of those taking part in the programme, since each one of them is entitled to the highest praise for the able manner in which he contributed towards the success of the concert. But, by the way, it is not improper to mention that Mr. Smith, who played such an important part, once travelled with a minstrel troupe, and his time was profitably spent there, for to hear him sing once means "call him back again," and indeed he was not spared in that respect, he having responded to several encores during the evening. Mr. Hamilton, personating the Irishman, was another admirable feature of the entertainment. By special request Messrs. Adams and Bryant sang a song each in a charming manner. Stepping forward on the platform Mr. Baldwin, in choicest terms, called on Rev. John Gallaher to make an address. His reverence said he was pleased to say a few words to those gentleman who had acquitted themselves so credibly, and more especially because they were mechanics who had hands to do what their brains dictated. The hands that were hard from honest work were something to be proud of. Men who could use their hands were the right kind of material to build up a country. Hard hands were to be preferred to the kid gloved ones any day. Referring again to the intellectual treat received, he concluded by saying that a very important part of the programme was yet to be gone through, and that was the supper, or material part. Squire Deane being called upon, said he heartily concurred with the rev. gentleman's remarks. The procession towards the dining room was then formed, where three tables were overflowingly filled with choicest delicacies, fit to tickle the palate of the most fastidious. The numerous courses were begun with oysters, and finished with fruit. It is needless to say that ample justice was done the edibles which were served so unstintingly.

Mr. Gallagher, chairman, after the inner man was satisfied, moved, on behalf of the visiting Free Masons and fellow men, that a vote of thanks be tendered the committee of management. It was seconded with great enthusiasm. Then Mr. Rose, on behalf of the committee, assured the visitors that it was a pleasure for them to entertain them, and that he hoped that on some future occasion they would meet under similar circumstances. As you might expect he was flowery in his remarks. Messrs. Morrison and Little, were also painstaking in having the time pass pleasantly, gave happy addresses.

They were followed by speeches from Squire Brown, Mr. Adams, R. Patterson, of Pittsburg, and Mr. Gardiner, Gananoque. In recognition of Mr. Branpigau's kindness as host Mr. Rose proposed his health, which was drunk. He responded in graceful terms. "God Save the Queen" being sung, the party dispersed after spending one of the pleasantest evenings of their lives, all "sorry to part but happy to meet again."

Notice.

We wish to give the public notice that our carpet sale continues all the year round. 1,875 yards sold during January. We have some handsome patterns still left, which we will offer at a still further reduction. Remember the price of carpets have advanced, and our present prices for Brussels and tapestry carpets are far below the manufacturers' present price. We guarantee you a saving of 15 per cent. by buying your carpet now and buying from R. McFaul. All other dry goods proportionately cheap. R. McFaul.

Our reporter dropped in to the auction sale at 166 Princess street to see what sort of prices were being paid, and we must say "poor" Salter, for if ever a man was salted he was. Dress goods, velvets, gloves, and I do not know what not, brought ridiculous prices, and notwithstanding Mr. Salter says his intentions are to continue the sale every night this week and afternoons of Tuesday, Thurday and Saturday.

A COUNTESS FOR A DAY.

ROMANCE WOVEN ABOUT A DOWERY DIVE FREQUENTER

A Touching Tragedy of Domestic Life—The Mistress of a Noted Nobleman—The Real Facts in Regard to the Conduct of Count Szirmoy.

Some days ago the people of New York city were regaled with particulars of a thrilling romance in real life. The principals to the affair were Count George Szirmoy, grand chamberlain to the Austrian emperor, the count's wayward daughter Virginie, and a hopelessly wicked housekeeper.

VIRGINIE SZIRMOY.

As the story ran—and a very touching tragedy of domestic life it seemed to be—the haughty count some years since lost a cherished wife, who left him as a memorial of their happiness a lovely little girl.

The nobleman ill brooked his bereavement, and plunged into colossal dissipation and unbounded extravagance. While in the very maelstrom of his mad career he met a beautiful adventuress named Marie Polska, and installed her as mistress of his lordly palace. After a while the unlawful union ceased to charm him, and in 1888 he sent his daughter to a convent and gave Marie Polska notice to quit. The woman tearfully acquiesced and disappeared. But her heart was bitter, and she plotted vengeance.

Going to the convent she secured possession of Virginie, and took her to America. Arrived at New York she surrounded the girl, then 16 years of age, with the vilest associates, and soon had the fiendish joy of seeing her grow as bad as the worst of her companions. Some weeks ago the frantic count, who had been hunting his child for months, reached New York, and engaged the services of a United States deputy marshal, who located both the exhousekeeper and the depraved countess. The tale of shame poured into the haughty Szirmoy's ear so affected him that he boarded the next steamer for home. Indeed, his grief was so great that he even forgot to pay the marshal for his time and trouble.

Meanwhile the public had been told in pathetic phrase the woes of the count and the degradation of his daughter, who refused to seek the paternal arms because it was "too late." Marie Poiska was also exploited in the finest style of the literary art.

Now it transpires that Szirmoy is no count at all, and never held a position at the aristocratic Viennese court. He is a postmaster of a small village, and during the last twenty years has visited America twice, both times making the voyage to and from Europe in the steerage.

Virginie Szirmoy left home to better her humble fortunes, and after reaching New York became the wife of a barber named Monderer. Three months ago the two separated, and the young wife has since been a hanger on about the Bowery concert dives. As for the "lovely Polska" she is a poor old washerwoman of homely visage, who formerly lived in the same hamlet where Szirmoy—if that be his name—resides. She didn't abduct Virginie, and didn't know the girl was in America until she met her by accident one day on the streets of New York.

The tale was beautifully somber as originally told, the only trouble being that it contained few facts and lots of fiction.

Knocked Out of the Coffin.

No more shocking affair has come to light recently than the row at a wake in Rondout, N. Y. A number of people had assembled at the home of a family named Dooley on Pierpont street. Pipes and cigars were smoked and the growler was freely worked. Near midnight some of the party became hilarious and a free fight ensued in which two sons of the dead man took a prominent part. The coffin was upset and the corpse rolled on the floor. For a time this quieted the ruction, but after the remains were picked up and replaced in the coffin the men came to blows again, and the fight was renewed with increased vigor. It didn't stop 'till every one was exhausted and well "tumped."

Wanted to Fight "Injuns."

The small boy still has aspirations to slaughter Indians. One of the genus recently visited the rooms of the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and announced that he wished to go west, as he had been abandoned by his parents. Close inquiry broke him down. He burst into tears and confessed that he had lied, saying: "A lot of us boys made it up to go west and fight Injuns. I want to go home." He gave his name and address, and was led away to undergo the parental spanking.

Seeking to Loose Their Chains.

The present session of the Delaware legislature is still young, yet that body has before it ninety-five applications for divorce. At the last session sixty-three divorces were granted; thirty-nine to women and twenty-four to men.

The Garb of Superstition.

A physician of Philadelphia recently secured from a friend one of the shirts used by the Sioux Indians in their now famous ghost dances. The garment is white fringed, and is adorned with pictures of a sparrow hawk and a tomahawk. The former is said to represent the soul, and the latter authority. The figures are roughly painted with some yellowish brown pigment.

The International League.

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—Patsy Powers, the well known baseball manager of Rochester, was feeling Toronto's diamond pulse Friday in the interests of the new international league. The recent Troy meeting, when Fasset, of Albany, and White, of Utica, were elected president and secretery respectively, adjourned to await Powers' investigations. His trip to this city was perfectly satisfactory. He interviewed Mr. McConnell, proprietor of the grounds, and other local baseball men. McConnell is willing to join other men, as stated before, and place a club here. Six cities are already secure, namely, Troy, Albany, Utica, Rochester, Syracuse and Buffalo. This sixth are particularly anxious to take in Toronto, but they don't want London or Hamilton. The league will retain its old name of international. Secretary White will call a meeting shortly, when representatives of the seven clubs are expected to report and an eighth club will be decided on. Mr. Powers was in this city only a few hours in the afternoon.

Still the good work goes on. Bargains for this week: Real hand loom tabling, worth 40c. for 25c., damaged. All our damaged carpets selling at one third less than their regular price. Come to morrow and see our bargain counter. Special drive in black cashmeres. Cousineau, Qu'ne & Corrigan.

THE CIVIL WAR IN CHILI.

Its Probable Origin—The Extent and Resources of the Republic.

The news of insurrection and something like civil war in Chili comes to Americans of the north as an unpleasant surprise, for they have considered Chili the most orderly of the Spanish American countries. In 1849 the United States sent to Chili an unusually well equipped expedition, for the purpose of making astronomical and scientific observations. It remained there three years, and its official report excited an interest rarely accorded to government publications. Following this came various popular productions by attaches of the expedition and others, and at the same time a large trade between Chili and the newly opened mining regions of California, all showing many points of difference between Chili and our nearer neighbors on the south. The most important, perhaps, was that there had been very little mixture of blood, and so the Chilians proper were and are about as purely Aryan as the people of the United States. The Araucanians of Chili, alone of all American Indians, held their ground against Europeans, and after 200 years of war the Spaniards entered into an honorable treaty with them, and they remain practically independent to this day.

PRESIDENT BALMASEDA.

The climate is favorable to the energy of the whites, and of late years the country has made great progress. Since 1852 the government has been stable, though from 1864 to 1871 Chili and Peru as allies were at war with Spain. The recent war between Chili and Peru ended in complete prostration of the latter, but it added unduly to the power of the executive, and the attempt of President Balmaseda to increase and prolong that power appears to have been the cause of the present trouble. The presidential term is for five years; his will expire next September, and in his desire for a re-election he claimed the right to manage the whole election machinery, exclude a part of the people from the franchise, have "troops at the polls" and all that sort of thing. Hence the rebellion.

Chili extends from the hot deserts near the equator to within twelve degrees of the antarctic circle, and from the level of the sea to the summit of the Andes (average 12,000 feet high), and has therefore every variety of climate and production. The plateaus, however, and high valleys, where the whites chiefly reside, are temperate and healthful. The population is given at 3,000,000 and the general condition quite good; the natural resources being very great.

FOR HOME ENTERTAINMENT.

How a Party of Friends May Pass a Very Pleasant Evening.

The following will be found suited for a club or coterie of friends who desire to make their meetings of intellectual profit as well as pleasure. Arrange a tourist party, the idea being for each guest to represent in costume some country or provinces, and contribute appropriate selections to the evening's programme.

A TOURIST PARTY.

If the entertainment is to be given at home state in your invitations what is expected of the guests; if given by a club, of course the necessary explanations will be made verbally to the members. Let each dress as nearly as possible in the costume of the country chosen. After the costume is under way investigation will bring to light some description of the country or its people, some good story—not too long—which shall hit off the national characteristics, some interesting historical narrative, or a fine selection from a representative writer or poet. Select something of general interest and to the point as regards the nationality represented. If one is a good dialect reader, a recitation or reading affording scope for that talent would help to make a pleasing variety in the programme.

For a gentleman representing Japan the costume should be a loose silk robe extending from the neck to the feet, and fastened at the waist by an elaborate girdle. A loose wide sleeved jacket is worn over this. Of course sateen or any similar material might be substituted for the silk. The feet are incased in white stockings and straw sandals. A selection from "The Mikado" would be an appropriate contribution to the programme.

The costume of the Japanese women is very similar to that of the men. Paint and powder are used lavishly for the face, and the hair, which is worn high, is plentifully adorned with ornamental pins placed at every conceivable angle.

A typical Chinaman in the everyday walks of life wears short, wide trousers and a sort of sacque reaching nearly to the knees, the material being either cotton or silk. White stockings and toe slippers of silk or cotton and having very thick soles are also worn. A wig would be necessary in order to have the queue. The gentleman taking such a character might read the "Heathen Chinee."

The Chinese woman wears a costume of the same pattern, but the material is usually black. The hair is dressed like the Japanese with the same abundance of pins. A short sketch of the life or the teachings of Confucius would be interesting.

A good pianist might well wear the characteristic costume of Germany and play one of Mendelssohn's "Songs Without Words" or Beethoven's sonatas.

France's representative would find a vast field for fine selections in the writings of Victor Hugo.

Italy, the land of song, should surely be the chosen country of one whose voice gives pleasure to her friends.

A varied programme and one full of interest might thus be arranged, and the evening be most enjoyably spent.

Descriptions of costumes, a few of which have been hinted at, may be found in books on the various countries, stories of travel or encyclopedias. J. D. COWLES.

Pain from indigestion, dyspepsia and too hearty eating, is relieved at once by taking one of Carter's Little Liver Pills immediately after dinner. Don't forget this.

Warden McKibbon, of Prince Edward county, entertained his associates in princely style on Tuesday evening last.

If sick headache is misery, what are Carter's Little Liver Pills if they will positively cure it? People who have used them speak frankly of their worth. They are small and easy to take.

William Harman, nearly ninety years of age, living in Rednerville, has never been known to laugh, sing or whistle.

All cases of weak or lame back, headache, rheumatism, will find relief by wearing one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters. Price 25 cents. Try them.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE,---CHLORODYNE.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

ADVICE TO INVALIDS.—If you wish to obtain quiet, refreshing sleep, free from headache relief from pain and anguish to calm and assuage the weary achings of protracted disease, invigorating the nervous media, and regulating the circulating system of the body, you will provide yourself with that marvellous remedy discovered by Dr. J. Collis Browne (late Army Medical Staff) to which he gave the name of CHLORODYNE, and which is admitted by the profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis and Asthma.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation and Spasms.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

From Symnes & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Medical Hall, Simla, Jan. 5, 1880. To J. H. Davenport, Esq., 33 Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, London. Dear Sir,—We embrace this opportunity of congratulating you upon the wide-spread reputation this justly esteemed medicine, Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne, has earned for itself not only in Hindostan, but all over the East. As a remedy of general utility we must question whether a better is imported into the country, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and judging from their sale, we fancy that their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances ad infinitum of the extraordinary efficacy of Dr. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne in Diarrhœa and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Cholera, Diarrhœa, and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power. We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of the opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a DELIBERATE BREACH OF FAITH ON THE PART OF THE CHEMIST, TO PRESCRIBER AND PATIENT ALIKE. We are, Sir, faithfully yours, Symnes & Co., Members of the Pharmacy Society of Great Britain. His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.

CAUTION.—Vice Chancellor Sir Page Wood stated that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say, had been sworn to.—See "Times," July 13, 1864.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle.

CAUTION.—Beware of Piracy and Imitation.
