CARRIED BY CURRENTS.

PAT PURCELL'S BODY WILL NEVER BE FOUND.

The Divers at Work Searching for the Remains of Glengary's Millions Abandon Their Quest in the belief that the Corpse Has Been Carried Away by the Currents.

CONNAWALL, June 20.—The negotiations between the friends of the deceased and Norman Durieh for the removal of the body of the late Patrick Purcell have not resulted in the return of the body. The spot is pointed out by Durieh as being the place where the body had been sunk is directly opposite the Gies Waterhouse factory, on the other side of the river, and marked by three large rocks. William Purcell, a friend of the deceased, was hired to diversify the spot indicated, and Tuesday afternoon he went down with a saw in tow, having on board the diver, his assistants, some workmen and the diving apparatus, proceeded to the spot, but just as arrangements were made the raw came down in torrents, agitating the water so that the diver could not see any distance below the surface. The project was given up on Wednesday afternoon when the tide and the party left it again. Although the divers, though Glieher dove down to a depth of nearly 100 feet, no signs of the body could be found. He went again yesterday, but without success, and the search has now been given up. The general opinion now is that those who sank the body lost the place or that the heavy current of the St. Lawrence carried it further down. A deep grave had been dug at the residence of Michael Purcell and every preparation made for the reception of the body, but it is likely that the grave will remain unfilled. The place is visited daily by divers.

The body, according to Durieh, was sunk within an acre of the shore of St. Regis Island, almost opposite the Pointe. Owing to its close proximity to the scene of the outrage this part of the river had never been searched.

The ghouls evidently relied upon the publicity of the place, being almost in the steamboat channel, and the depth of the water to conceal the body. It is thought the body must be fearfully decomposed, as after lying in the grave for nine days, it has been in the river for months. Glieher, the diver says the current at the point indicated is very strong and the bottom rocky. Mr. Glieher was to receive $150 if he succeeded in raising the body.

A Snake Charmer's Peril.

CHICAGO, June 20.—Uno, the snake charmer, or Mr. Goshen, as he is known in private life, who is one of the sideshows at the Forepaugh circus, had a miraculous escape from a horrible death yesterday, while handling an immense box constrictor.

In fact, but for the quick, impulsive nature of Miss Jessie Yeaman of New York, of the "Blue Jeans" Company, who jumped to the rescue, the snake charmer was in imminent danger of losing his life.

At the request of the Wolfe Island agricultural society R. West wrote to the Ontario district agent of agriculture, asking if the township association could receive its grant in view of the fact that the county association did not intend to hold an exhibition this year.

The reply came: "In reply to your letter of yesterday, I am sorry to inform you that the amount of the government grant to agricultural societies, is not necessarily dependent upon the holding of an exhibition by such society, although this is implied by the fact that the most money available perhaps for an exhibition may be used for a long time the funds of a society are employed in a manner compatible with the provisions of section 37, and a report is duly made to the department showing that the number of bona fide members is not less than eighty, together with an account of the amount received and paid for the year that the grant is entitled to receive."

Miss Yeaman, according to the figure, struck the serpent a light blow on the head, from which it started back in fright, and suddenly sprung from its state of lethargy, coiled itself around the woman's left arm with the rapidity of lightning, and darting forward, bit her head, buried its fangs deeply in her forearm.

At this juncture Miss Jessie Yeaman, who was one of the spectators, forced her way to the front of the crowd and with a courage possessed by few women quickly jumped upon the low platform, and seizing the reptile just behind the head with both hands tore the fangs from Mrs. Goshen's arm. The woman, who had depended upon their coolness at this moment as no one had up to this time recovered their presence of mind sufficiently to come to their assistance.

Miss Yeaman, with both hands grasping the snake by the neck, clung to her prize for dear life. With a look of determination in her pretty blue eyes, she tenuously set her strength exerted to its utmost, she choked the deadly creature into a state of submission and compelled it to relax its deadly coils until it dropped limp and lifeless upon the platform.

As soon as all danger had passed Miss Yeaman jumped from the platform, and avoiding the spectators, who crowded around her to congratulate her upon her act of heroism and heroism, quietly withdrew from the scene and reclined herself in her hotel apartment.

Four Fought to the Death.

WATERBURY, Conn., June 20.—The steamship South Portland of the Western Line arrived from Boston yesterday afternoon. Chief Mate J. S. Lowell told the following story. On the afternoon of June 13 the Portland touched at Port Maria. Mate Lowell was sent on shore to get the mail. On his way to the post office he came across a crowd of blacks on the green village. Then when Mr. Lowell inquired what the row was about they informed him that a battle royal was just about to begin. Four couples, all natives of the town, had been involved in a sort of Merriweather County controversy, and one of them had arrived at the conclusion that Port Maria in this planet generally was altogether too good a place to harbor the other three any longer. So they had mutually decided to fight to the death. In the centre of the green enclosure had been roped off, and inside of it, at each corner, stood one of the four contestants. They were stripped to the waist, and each man grasped in his hand a knife. A single blade swiveled twice long. For a moment the two stood silent at each other and the word was given and the fight began. It was a case of every man for himself with a vengeance. Mate Lowell says that without any exception it was the most fearful fight he ever saw. In five minutes it was all over. When the police arrived upon the scene three bodies, hacked almost beyond recognition, lay inside the ropes. The fourth man was so crazed by his wounds that before the police could lay hands on him he drove his own knife through his heart.

Collation Near London Sterry.

LONDON, June 20.—An empty train collided with a single carriage at a body of militia on a single track railway near London Sterry today. The driver of the militia train was killed, the fireman was fatally hurt and scores of the militia and others were injured.

London Bus Drivers' Strike.

LONDON, June 20.—Last night the Street Railway Company discharged one of the company's drivers without assigning a reason, whereupon the drivers held a meeting and decided to go out on strike this morning unless a satisfactory reason was given for the discharge. The driving President Cronyn was on hand at the station and was deputed to answer the men's inquiries that had come in. Some of the office hands and stablemen were immediately pressed into the service, and by noon everything was running as usual. President Cronyn would not recognize the strikers in any way. He says that since the company advanced the drivers' wages and shortened their hours they have come to believe that they run the company, and he is determined that the drivers will be reinstated. The men have, however, declared that there is bad feeling between the superintendents and the drivers because of their receiving some concessions from the company in opposition to his wishes, and that he is simply trying to get even with the men by discharging them on the slightest pretext.
