BROADBRIM'S LETTER.

DANGER AHEAD, AS MURDERESSES ARE BEING ACQUITTED.

The Story of Her Infancy Told Without a Tremor—A Shock All Round at the Verdict—The College Blackguard on the Rampage—A Turf Surprise.

(Special Correspondence.)

NEW YORK, June 26.—Danger ahead, look out! Another murderess acquitted; the second within three weeks!! There was no darkness, no doubt, no uncertainty about either accusation; both were committed before high heaven and in the face of day, and whatever excuse there may have been for the acquittal of the Italian girl Pasqualina, there is no possible palliation for the shameful miscarriage of justice which let the murderess Ella Nelson go free. The story is like a hundred others—crime from the commencement; wickedness from the beginning—dashed all through with depravity and sin. The legitimate end of such a life was murder, and he who was slain no doubt deserved his fate.

Matt Post, the victim, was well known about town, and was a fair sample of a class of the genus drummer. Fellows naturally smart; always able to make a good living, but cursed with lax principles, or no principles at all, they float through life without any sense of moral obligations to God or man. He had deserted his wife and children for a creature that he picked up at Coney Island about five years ago, and with her he lived and even consented to be supported by the wages of her sin. The plea was put forth in the behalf of the murdered man, that he was trying to reform and was about to return to his wife. There was not the slightest evidence of it. It was more likely true, as asserted by the unfortunate woman who killed him, that he had tired of her and found another, and in the attempt to leave her met his death. When he had completed his arrangements to depart he went to the woman's house to get his things, she remonstrated with him and begged him not to desert her, but he persisted, and when she found her appeal in vain she killed him.

The killing was witnessed by a friend of Post's, who had accompanied him to Mrs. Nelson's flat, who ran away when he saw his friend fall, and who kept out of the way till all danger was past. No sadder commentary on the utter worthlessness of our jury system can be made than this notorious trial.

All the parties in it appear to have been about as bad as bad could be. With an audacity unparalleled this brazen creature availed herself of the privilege accorded by our courts of testifying in her own behalf. A woman with the slightest shade of womanly feeling left would have shrunk from the terrible ordeal of trumpeting her own infamy but it became necessary to do it to blacken the character of the man she had killed, and she told the story of her shame without a tremor.

Her counsel was the celebrated Tombs lawyer, William Howe, a man who has figured in more criminal cases than any other lawyer in New York. He knows all the thieves and crooks of every degree, bank burglars, general cracksmen, counterfeiters and confidence men. There is no sharp point of law or practice that Mr. Howe does not know. He had a pretty tough case in defending Ella Nelson, and was one of the most astonished lawyers, last week, that ever pleaded at a bar. The law and the facts were all against him and his client, but that did not make the slightest difference to Mr. Howe; he made a tremendous appeal to the jury hoping to change their verdict from wilful murder to manslaughter, so that the murderess might escape the electrical chair, and be sentenced to imprisonment for life. But when the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty in the face of the evidence on the trial, the judge was shocked, the big lawyer was paralyzed, and the unfortunate woman herself so dazed that she could scarcely believe her senses.

How the jury ever arrived at this infamous verdict may never be discovered; but it will stand for all time as one of the most shameful miscarriages of justice that ever disgraced the criminal records of New York. It would seem to be quite safe for any disreputable women to assassinate a man in open day; she need not hereafter put in the worn out plea of emotional insanity. All she will have to do is to acknowledge the assassination, and the chances are ten to one that our intelligent and conscientious jurors will bring in a verdict—served him right.

All in all this week we have been affected with that loathsome nuisance, the college blackguards, who as an evidence that they are improving or finishing their education make it a point to get drunk, and see how shameful ruffians they can be. We have a bad lot of our own, fellows who delight in being considered tough; but as if this were not a sufficient affliction, we have to shoulder the sins of every college within a thousand miles of us; none of whose gentlemanly students think a spree of any particularly account, unless they can have a go in New York. This week it was Princeton and Yale, and a more disreputable set of ruffians could scarcely be found in the lowest slums of our city. Drunkenness is bad enough, but in addition to this the language was vile, and for two days and nights it was unsafe to be anywhere near them. The disreputable resorts and low saloons where thieves and harlots congregate seemed to have a special attraction for these college gentlemen; there certainly seemed to be nothing worse there than themselves, and no doubt, they felt quite at home. We have a college here, and a very good one—a college that in a short, we hope to see a university. It the famous old Columbia college. It is our oldest and most respectable collegiate institution in the state, and was founded about one hundred and fifty years ago. It got a boost by a lottery when it was in trouble after the revolution, hence its high conservative character. The present is Seth Low, a very young man, formerly mayor of Brooklyn, a graduate of Columbia college, and a gentleman of great prowess. When he assumed the presidency we hoped to see some of the barbarous practices which have disgraced the college in the past put a stop to and finally suppressed, instead of which the burning of Legendre on the college campus two weeks ago was made the scene of a wild orgie that would have disgraced a lot of Hottentots; their evil example has corrupted the boys in the college of New York, and lads of 15 and 16 seem to think it the proper thing for a college man to get drunk and make a blackguard of himself. Last week fifty of these young ruffians started out upon a tour, and after several scenes of shameful riot, a number of them landed in the police cells. But what can be expected of minor institutions when old Harvard gives the pace. It is not the first time that the statue of old John Harvard has been disgraced, and if anyone has been punished for the crime, I have yet to hear it. Even pious Cornell has an unsavory reputation for the character of its students; we need a reform in this matter thorough and radical, and if the penitentiary is not sufficient, try the whipping post, but stop it.

It is with unqualified satisfaction that I announce that the parties who engineered the prize fight between Slavin and Kilrain lost nearly $5,000 by the venture. The Hoboken club put up a purse of $10,000 to be fought for, and placed the tickets at ten, fifteen and twenty-five dollars. They hoped to have at least $45,000 in the house, and make a nice little pile of money. But the pugs did not come to time, the receipts were not half of the purse offered, and the gamblers who put up the job will have to go on their uppers for the next three months till business commences in the fall. Slavin did not get any $10,000, he only got $5,000, and out of that he has to pay Charley Mitchell and Tony Moore, his father-in-law, $2,000 for the expense of training; then there are his own personal expenses for the last four months, and his passage to and from England, so that if he gets back to England with $200 in his pocket he will be very lucky; not much of a prize for the worst drubbing that he ever received in his life.

The begins has set in and as many as can are getting off to the valleys and the hills. Our minister has gone and we shall have the stillifying tones of his voice no more till the chestnuts are falling and the hour frost is on the grass. He needed a change of air. Preparing a sermon once a week broke him down. The doctors recommended the air of Jerusalem and the waters of Solomon; they thought a week or two in London and Paris might be beneficial and, if not too fatigued, Rome and Naples might be taken in by the way, and would, no doubt, do him a world of good. We saw him off on the steamer on Wednesday. The doctor declared he must have an entire change of scene to rest his mind, so he began with his clothes. At the great steamer moved into the stream he stood by the flagstaff, and his photograph will never be effaced from my memory. He wore a blazer jacket of red and black, a straw hat with a blue ribbon, an outing shirt covered with pale stars, pearl pants, lawn tennis shoes, English striped stockings and a black sash around his waist. The great ocean greyhound steamed away and faded into the offing; but our minister lives in our memory still with the sweet melody the band played as he vanished from our sight. "Bright things can never die."

One of the greatest surprises that the turf has had for many a day took place last week at Sheepshead Bay, when Lamkin, rode by Jockey Bergen, captured the Brooklyn suburban and $30,000. When the field was up, embracing some of the finest blood that ever faced a starter, there was a little black scrub at the tail of the hunt that nobody knew and nobody cared for; he belonged to no great stable, his owner's name was unknown—that is among the great guns of the turf, and the bookmakers thought so little of him that they offered fifty to one against him, and no takers.

What a thing the judgment of these betting sharps is! You get tips and tips and tips from the fellows who know it all; but the whole batch of them came to grief on the suburban, and their mourning was bitterer than the cry that went up out of Rama of old. A round million would not pay the losses on the favorites, and the bookmakers walked off with a bag full of money. Racing men all over the country were disgusted, they bet on their judgment, and their judgment wasn't worth a ——; well, it wasn't worth a worth a cent—that's a mild way of putting it. In view of this uncertainty of horse flesh and jockies, if you have any spare coin, youthful friend, don't bank it that way; it isn't safe, it isn't really, and you have only got to try it long enough to find it out. I am now, my dear young friend, giving you a bit of knowledge free gratis that cost me several dollars. Racing is nice amusement, I like it; but let some other fellows do the betting and you do the looking on. You may not get suddenly rich on your winnings, but you'll be happier than the other fellow. Try it.—BROADBRIM.

THE CITY BUSINESS.

The Meetings of the Various Committees—Appeals Against Assessments.

The court of revision met yesterday; present Alds. McIntyre, Cliff, Skinner, Wright and Dunlop. Appeals against assessments for local improvement sewers were heard on the following streets: Ann McGuinn, Mack street, charged 56 feet frontage instead 54 ft., had her assessment reduced accordingly. The name of John Fisher, Johnson street, was substituted for that of J. R. Laidlaw by mutual consent. W. D. Greaves, Frontenac street, objected to the cost of lot 66 as it was a corner lot and already had frontage. His frontage was reduced to 34 feet.

John Mudie, St. Catharine street, was assessed for lot No. 22 instead of Thomas Sands. The assessments of Robert Bell, Gordon street, reduced to 66 feet, Robert Gaw to 50 feet, and James Davlin to 34 feet. George Smith, Charles street, commercial traveller; was assessed for lot No. 17, which he had bought from B. M. Britton. William Wilson, Cataraqui street, was assessed for 48 feet formerly charged to John Brannigan. Alex. Potter, Collingwood street, agreed to be substituted for James R. Laidlaw.

Regarding the Cataraqui street sewer, B. M. Britton for himself, W. Nelson and the Dominion cotton mills company, objected to assessments on the ground that the drain was entirely unauthorized and was of no benefit to the parties mentioned. E. H. Smythe, on behalf of the Grand Trunk railway, and R. M. Ford, for Ford Bros., put forth much the same arguments, but the assessments were all confirmed.

W. H. Sullivan, for the estate of Catharine Mallett, argued that the latter had only 30 feet of land and urged the objection that a sufficient number of signers had not been obtained. The trustees were assessed for full amount. Judge Price, for himself, R. V. Rogers for the Spellane estate, Dr. Dupuis, and the synod of Ontario objected to assessments for Brock street drain. The cases will be considered Monday. The frontage of Hugh McBratney, Balaclava street, was reduced to 65 feet and that of Thos. M. Kane to 50 feet, and confirmed.

The Light Committee.

Alds. McCammon, Martin, Elliott and Dunlop were present at the meeting of the fire, water and light committee yesterday afternoon. The chairman stated that a settlement had been made with Frank McDonald, for injuries sustained last winter by a falling telegraph pole, for $40. He was also of the opinion that had the case gone to court the city would not have been compelled to pay a cent.

Plans of the ground-floor of the Brock street fire hall were submitted and examined showing that three doors were provided for the front of the building, one each for the engine, reel and hook and ladder cart. Poles for the men to slide down from upstairs will also be placed. W. Newlands, architect, stated that $2,780 would cover the cost of alterations, but in order to provide for contingencies it was decided to ask the council for $3,000. A detailed statement of the cost of the electric light service in various towns and cities was submitted for consideration. The figures will be considered later.

Parks Committee.

At the parks committee meeting Alds. Steacy, Skinner and Cliff were present. The intensely warm weather of late has evidently affected the park fathers, for their attention was turned entirely upon the delightfully cool city park and the best method of making it still more attractive. The result is that the big ring will be traversed by the watering cart in future, so that bicyclists and citizens may enjoy riding upon it. The sum of $100 will be devoted to band music for the months of August and September, and next fall the newly filled in part of the cricket field will be seeded.

Water Works Committee.

At the meeting of the water works committee, yesterday, the principal subject of discussion was tenders received to supply the department with 550 tons of hard and soft coal. All were rejected, and Alds. Polson and Gaskin were authorized to buy coal at the cheapest possible rates. They expect to save the city about $300.

Power & Sons reported that the proposed new roof on the pumping station would cost about $400.

The matter of purchasing new service boxes was deferred.

Petitions for water service between Montreal and Patrick streets; for the extension of the water pipes on Elm street, and for water service on Brock street, between Albert and Nelson streets, was granted.

It was the opinion of Alds. Gaskin, Polson and Elliott that all supplies for the water works department should be authorized by the committee before being purchased. In future tenders will be received.

The Rochester Burns club will hold their fourth annual Scottish games at Windsor Beach, Charlotte, July 4th. To meet the growing popularity of the games the committee are arranging a programme of events on a much larger scale than in former years. The athletic competitions will be taken part in by some noted athletes, while the football and dancing competitions will be special features. A large amount of money as prizes, in addition to the usual medals, will be offered, and will ensure the attendance of the best amateur and professional competitors in the United States and Canada.

This change has been made by Grand Trunk trains, No. 2 going east, 1:05; No. 6 going west, 5:10; No. 3 for Ottawa, 1:45.

Mr. Dickenson, managing editor of the Utica Globe, and wife were in the city last night. They left on the steamer Armenia for Bath, where they will spend several weeks visiting friends.

On Thursday Ald. Ross, Messrs. C. Birmingham and Holden-Orde have very pleasant time on Loughboro Lake. They caught a great many fish. Ald. Ross says the mosquitoes were thick and troublesome.

Dr. J. E. Macnee, of Perth, a recent graduate of the Royal medical college, died on Thursday, aged twenty-five years. He died from a disease of the spine. P. C. Macnee, of Picton, was his brother.

The delivery agent of the locomotive works, E. Nagner, returned on Thursday from Montreal, after delivering the 140th engine of the G.T.R. contract. Ned's popularity along the line is without question.

A bet has just been decided here of an interesting character. One man bet another that it was unlawful to fire a gun on a country road. The statutes were searched but no prohibition is found in them. To make shooting illegal a by-law must be passed by municipalities.

D. Jackson, E. Horsey, T. Regan, and H. LeCroix went to the top of St. Mary's tower in a basket yesterday. Their experience was rather thrilling and they would not like to repeat the trip. When they got to the top they were unable to land because of the absence of the scaffolding.

The Renfrew Mercury speaks well of the lacrosse match there with the Kingstons: "Kingston's field captain was a 'cocky' and determined little fellow, and occasionally there were hot words, but the affair passed off with no one badly hurt except about the tongue. The Kingston team played a great deal better game than the one which they attempted to play here a year ago."

The twenty-sixth volume of the Magazine of American History opens with a bright July number. The frontispiece is an admirable portrait of Sir William Dawson, the Canadian geologist and educator of world-wide fame. The editor gives a graphic account of "The Royal Society of Canada," of which Sir William was the first president, with portraits of the Marquis of Lorne, who founded it and of Lord Stanley, its honorary president and patron; the text also includes descriptions of the early historical features of Montreal. "The Fairy Isle of Mackinac," by the graceful writer, Prof. Richards, is handsomely illustrated.

CITY AND VICINITY.

The Offer May be Accepted.

The light, heat and power company will light the city all night for 300 nights yearly at 30c per light. The offer was made last year and refused, but it is now likely to be accepted.

Made Another Raid.

On Thursday night, James Tierney's grocery store on Ontario street was again burglarized. This is the second time within a couple of months. On their last visit the thieves got $1 in cash. They appropriated goods also.

The Drop Occurs Monday.

Sugar still sells here at the old figures. Dealers are wiping out their stocks preparatory to securing the new. On Monday the drop will be made, and the happy housewives will have struck luck for the preserving season.

A Fine Market.

There was another large market to-day, and plenty of produce for sale. The prices were steady. Butter sold for 15c per lb., and eggs from from 12c to 15c per dozen. Strawberries were purchased at three boxes for 25c. There were no changes in the prices of green goods.

False Economy

Is practiced by many people, who buy inferior articles of food because cheaper than standard goods. Surely infants are entitled to the best food obtainable. It is a fact that the Gail Borden "Eagle" Brand Condensed Milk is the best infant food. Your grocer and druggist keep it.

The Boys Want Exercise.

E. Halladay, of the Hub, has accepted a challenge from H. Boyle, of the Frontenac, who claims to have beaten Hanlan's time in a skiff, for a race any distance and in any weather for a purse of money. The former also offers to back M. Quinn or V. O'Toole against Boyle on even terms.

Boy Drowned.

Stanley Shane, about 7 years old, was drowned at Camden East on Tuesday. In company with other boys he went to bathe, and unobliviously jumped into about ten feet of water. He was unable to swim, and before assistance arrived sank for the last time. The water was drawn off the pond and the body recovered.

He is Doing Well.

John Walroth, late of Ernestown, is now at Bernie's Corners, Mich. He is a thriving little village on the banks of the Rapid river, about twenty five miles from Grand Rapids, Mich. The grain there looks good, and crops raised. Mr. Walroth has charge of a fifty barrel roller mill, and is having the best of success.

A Bird Story.

A few years ago J. J. Watson, of Adolphustown, found on his premises an oriole's nest and two of the young birds were taken and transferred to a cage accessible to the old birds, who regularly fed them. At the end of the season, when the time came for them to depart for a southern clime, they deliberately killed the young birds in the cage and took their departure.

A Valuable Memento.

Joseph Pope, private secretary of Sir John A. Macdonald, writes to E. W. Rathbun, Deseronto, informing him that a letter sent to Mr. Rathbun was the last ever signed by the late premier, and the last signature except one that he ever wrote. This valuable memento of the distinguished statesman, it is unnecessary to state, is greatly appreciated and prized by Mr. Rathbun.

Will Be Further Protected.

The authorities at Ottawa are determined that ghouls shall not have the remains of [illegible] as the robbery can be prevented by workmanship and skill. George Newlands, contractor, has been authorized to excavate two feet around the vault and fill it in with cement mixed with cut stone. Two detectives are still living in the vicinity of the grave.

The Resolution Despatched.

Mayor Drennan, this morning, sent the resolution of condolence, passed by the council at a late meeting, to Lady Macdonald, enclosing the following letter: "I have been entrusted with the mournful duty of transmitting to you the enclosed copy of a resolution passed by the council of the corporation of the city of Kingston. I take the liberty of adding my personal assurances of the profound sorrow which affected all classes here on learning of the lamentable death of your beloved husband, our esteemed premier and member for Kingston."

A Double Wedding.

An unusual event took place at Belle Ewart, Tuesday, when two young clergymen of the Methodist Church led to the altar two daughters of a respected citizen of that place. The grooms were Rev. J. Akenhead, of Port Carling, who claimed for his wife's companion Miss L. H. Dimsdale, and Rev. Mr. Jamieson, Rat Portage, to whom was married her sister Gertrude. The first-named couple were married by Rev. Dr. Griffin, Galt, and the last mentioned by Rev. Dr. Savage, of Bond Head. The officiating clergymen were in each instance assisted by Rev. P. Addison, of Aurora. Both the young ladies are successful conductors of evangelistic services. The caisson in which the contracting parties are held was testified to by the valuable wedding presents each received. The brides were attired in travelling costumes, and left for a brief honeymoon trip.
