HAMILTON, Sept. 1 .- Shortly before mix night yesterday a serious railway accident occurred at the canal at Burlington beach, involving the loss of two lives and muc damage to rolling stock.

cars left Fort Erie for Toronto, drawn engine 259. Conductor Campbell was in charge, and Engineer William Hall was on the engine with Fireman W. J. Crouch. Beach from Stoney Creek, instead of soming around the end of the buy. The night was stormy and a gale was blowing from the east. Engineer Hall had been along there before, but he seems to have got mixed with the lights and the noise and darkness. There is a heavy grade northward towards he was so near the canal until it was too late to do anything. Then he shouted to his fireman and jumped.

Engineer Armstrong, who operates the bridge, had heard the train approaching and was just preparing to close the bridge, when, to his horror, he heard the train come thundering on towards the open chasm. "It was all over in an instant," said Armstrong. With a tremendous plunge the great engine shot over the brink and disappeared beneath the black water. Nine cars went tumbling after it, crash after crash, the lights were extinguished, and a terrible silence followed. For a few moments the few men who rushed to the scene were paralyzed by the occur-rence, not knowing in the storm and dark-ness what to do. Then the cries of a drowning man were heard in the canal as if the swimmer was being swept along by the cur-

When the train crew got together it was found that the fireman and a breakman named Robert Shaw was missing. The fireman probably jumped into the canal, for it was his cries that were heard, and this morning his body was found about 50 feet from the ferry, where he had sunk. The breakman was on the cars, and it is thought his body is under the wreckage. Both men come from Point Edward, as do all the rest of the crew. Shaw is a married may and his friends live near Dorchester. Crouch was

On the news of the disaster being teleoned to the city a wrecking train with a gang of wen was sent. A coal car hung suspended over the brink of the canal, and in the water beneath a few mounds of coal and wreckage were visible above the surface. The engine went down completely out of sight, and then the cars popped over on top of it, one after the other, until the wreck was piled as high as the surface of that point. The train must have been running at a high rate of speed, for its momentum carried the cars nearly across the canal. Luckily, however, there remains an open space between the wreck and the north pier wide enough for the steamers to pass if they feel their way carefully. By 2 a. m. a large gang of workmen with flaring torches were hard at work clearing the approach to the bridge. After pulling the overhanging car on the track, it was found that the rails were all right and the bridge was swung into posi-tion, making the road open for traffic again. by 5 o'clock, The most of the wreckage is still in the canal and it will be a big task clearing it out. Superintendent Stiff is going to send to Kingston for a marine Scribbling, Exercise coal will have to be dredged up and lightered, and the heavy engine lifted on to a flat boat with the detrick. The cars that went down are smached to pieces and some wrecking outfit and a steam derrick. The of the car boxes floated away.

There will be an inquest on the bodies of the killed, in order to find who is responsible. The bridge-tender is exonerated from any COPY BOOKS blame in the matter, as every train is ordered to stop before reaching the bridge and wait until signalled to come on. The cause of the accident is ascribed to the fact that the men were not familiar with the road, having only been over it once be-

INVENTOR MCCOWELL SHOT.

The Clover Machinist Lying at the Point Hamilton, Sept. 1.—With a bullet in his brain Inventor John T. McCowell lies at the point of death at his residence 39 Dundurn street. The chances of his recovery are slim, and it is doubtful if he will live to enjoy the fruits of his many years of toil and anxiety. Mr. McCowell is the inventor of a clever piece of mechanism, (The Little World), consisting of over 100 automatic figures which was on exhibition here recently. He used to work at Greening's bored at his invention, spending all the time he could. He completed it a couple of months ago and resigned his position to go on the road with it.

Monday ugly rumors were flying around that McCowell became despondent because his invention was not the financial success he anticipated and that he had shot himself. It was said that he expected to exhibit it at the Toronto exposition, but the directors wanted $1,500 for the space and McCowell determined to rent a store. The reports of the attempted suicide were denied and it was claimed that the shooting was purely accidental. The doctors say that shortly before eight o'clock Monday morning McCowell was making preparations to go to Toronto. He was sitting on the bed cleaning a 32-caliber revolver when it suddenly discharged, and the bullet penetrated the centre of the forehead, entering the brain. Mrs. Mc-Cowell was at church, and the only ones in the house were the children, Mamie, the eldest, being ten years old. She was in the adjoining room and heard the report, but thought it was caused by the shutting of a gate. When Mrs. McCowell returned from church she was horrified to see her husband lying on the bed. He was unconscious.

There was an ugly wound in his head, and the bedelothes were saturated with blood. The revolver was on the floor. The frightened woman immediately summoned medical aid, and Dr. McCabe arrived shortly afterwards. He did what he could for the sufferer. Doctors Ridley and Malloch were summoned. After a consultation they decided to probe for the bullet, but they were unsuccessful. They have very little hope of McCowell's recovery. Mrs. McCowell denied that her husband shot himself. "The invention has been very successful," said she "and my husband was not despondent. He had completed arrangements to go to St Catharines and then to Toronto. I was not in the It is to be hoped McCowell will recover.

The great mystery was not long unsolved. Lillian is among the Thousand Islands and a delighted passenger, on the steamer St. Lawrence, up and down the river. She occupies a neat cottage at Alexandria Bay. The members of her party are W. C. Sanford and valet, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Westford. She managed to escape notice until Saturday, when several summer visitors recognized her. This is her first visit to the Thousand Islands, and she has already expressed hereelf as being enamored with river and its islands, adding that it is the most delightful and beautiful spot she has ever visited. She has looked at several cottages with a view of purchasing one for a summer home here. She has much delight in fishing, and on the homeward trip de lighted the company on the steam yacht General W. B. Franklin. As the twilight crept on, the fair actress, elated over her big catch, began to hum her favorite song.

"I want no star in heaven to guide me, I want no moon, no sun to shine, While I have you, sweetheart, beside me, While I am sure that you are mine." She sang all the way to the Bay. captain said he would make such trips free of expense just to hear Lillian sing.

A BAND OF FEMALE THUGS. Brutal Deeds of the "High Rip Gang"

Liverpool LIVERPOOL, Sept. 1.—The police are having a good deal of trouble with a gang of women known as the High Rip gang. It is a crowd of female roughs, who assault and beat other women. THE LAST ACK IN CHILL. SANTIAGO SURRENDERS TO THE RE-VOLUTIONARY FORCES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The Herald's cable from Valparaiso, Chili, says: "The Chan-

aral Regiment of the Congressional army took formal possession of Santiago last night and practically the last act in the drains of revolution which has torn Chili to pieces for the past seven months is closed. The capital city was in the hands of a blood-thirsty mob last night, and while it was unable to satisfy its murderous instincts it did destroy a vast amount of property. As soon as the news reached Santiago yesterday of the overwhelming defeat of the Gevernment troops on the height of Placilla and the far off Valparaiso, and the people knew that Balmaceda's power was gone and they had nothing to fear from his wrath, their ensuity to his government broke forth. The cry was raised that the President should be killed and a mob started for his house. It grow in last night, and while it was unable to satisfy and a mob started for his house. It grew in numbers and fury as it went through the streets, and by the time it reached the executive mansion was ripe for any bloody deed. Short shrift would have been allowed to the President had he been caught. He knew that he would have little chance for his life if he remained in Santiago, and at the first recept of the news of his defeat he hid himself, and the blood-thirsty desire of the mob was balked. The mob's desire for revenge found vent in the application of the torch. Soon Balmaceda's house was a mass of flames. Before it had been destroyed the mob marched off to the house of Senor Godar, the ex-Minister of the Interior, and an ardent Balmacedist, and set his house on fire. Then the residences of Balmaceda's mother, General Barbona, who was killed at the battle of Placilla. Senors McKenna and Eastman, the Government newspaper offices were burned to the ground. The city was panic-stricken. Business was suspended, and people outside of the mob-kept close to their houses, The sky was lurid with light from the burning buildings. The police, the fire department and the army were demoralized and made not the semblance of an attempt to maintain order. Balmaceda, when he heard of the fail of Valparaiso, sent for General Bacuedano, commander of the Government troops in Santiago. A council of war was held, at which President Balmaceda, the generals, and other leading Balmacedists were present. The situation was thoroughly canvassed and it was decided that a further continuation of the struggle was hopeless and that the surrender of the capital was the only proper course. There are all sorts of rumors about the movements of President Bal maceda. It is stated on good authority that he went by a special train yesterday to Talcahuano on Conception Bay and that there he will make connection with the Condell and Imperial, and in one of these ressels, probably the former, make for Buenos Ayres or Monte Video. If this is so ness Marie Vetzera, then 17 years old, fell n love at first sight with the Crown Prince, and that she frequently met him in the orlinary social way. Finally she intrusted her secret to Couptess Larisch, the Empress of Austria's niece, and this lady at same indertook to act as a go-between, while taking advantage of her knowledge of the Prince.

At one time the mother of the girl suspected that something was amiss, but Countss Larisch was ready with some plausible tale. The facts of all this are given in great detail in the mother's pamphlet. At last the girl fled to Mayerling, by pre-arrangement with the Prince, and a few hours later her death wasknown by the Emperor, but not by the mother, who in vain implored the chief of police and Count Tuafe, the Austrian Premier, to cause a search to be instituted for her daughter. The truth of the double suicide or murder and suicide is at last definitely established by this publication. The news of the death was broken to the mother The pamplet shows that the Prince's mind had long before been given to thoughts of Miss Corn Sutherland.

"Kingston, Ont., may justly boast of being the town of the nativity of the fastest lady runner in Canada. Miss Sutherland is employed in a laundry and lives three miles rom the place where she works. She comes this distance, twice a day, rain or shine,

Her spurts of speed are said to be wonderful by those among her intimate acquaintances who have witnessed her performance, during colidays, near her home. On such occasions, in the company of friends, she does her exercise in a close-fitting jersey, a skirt reaching down within three inches of her knees, and trousers that fit fairly close, down to her ankles." So runs an article in the Pictorial Sporting Times, a Toronto

journal, which evidently does not have as strict a regard for the truth as it might.

Kingston does not claim this impossibly at

It is a Good British Subject The Oswego Times says the lion bought there by Capt. Gaskin was purchased from R. G.
