In the House last night Colonel dale, chairman of the Cochrane committee called attention to a statement in The Ottawa Free Press which said, "It is admitted that the report submitted by Lieut. Col. Tisdale last night was prepared by Mr. Osler, counsel for Mr. Cochrane, and that it was prepared before yesterday's discussion. In other words the lawyer employed by the accused member prepared the judgment of the Court before the evidence was completed, and that report not only exoperated Mr. Cochrane but declares that the committee on the Murray Canal and which was recognized by Mr. Cochrane did perfectly right in exterting campaign fands from applicants for offices." He said that so far as the allegation against himself was concerned it was an unmitigated falsebood. He never had a single word with Mr. Osler in reference to the investigation or any matter connected with it. With regard to the balance he could not say what trauspired in Committee, but they must be untre because he was sure none of the Committee would commit such a gross breach of privilege as to indulge the contents of the reports they had discussed behind closed doors. The girl who goes to the University of Michigan to-day, just as when I entered there in 1872, finds her own boarding-place in one of the quiet homes of the pleasant little city whose interest centres in the 2,500 students scattered within its borders. She makes the business arrangements for ber winter's fuel and its storage, she finds her washerwoman or her laundry; she arranges her own hours of exercise, of study, and o sleep; she chooses her own society, clubs and church. The advice she gets comes from another girl student of sophomoric dignity who chances to be in the same ouse, or possibly from a still more advanced young woman whom she met on the journey, or sat near in church on her first Sunday Strong is the comradeship among these ambi tious girls, who nurse one another in illness admonish one another in health, and rival one another in study only less eagerly than they all rival the boys. In my time in college the little group of girls, suddenly introduced into the army of young men, felt that the fate of our sex hung upon proving that 'lady Greek" involved the accents, and that women's minds were particularly absorptive of the calculus and metaphysics. And still in those sections where, with growing experienced the auxieties about co-education have been allayed a healthy and hearty relationship and honest rivalry between young men and women exists. It is a stimulating atmosphere, and develops in good stock a strength and independent balance which tell in after life. Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer in
