LAUNCH OF THE CEYLON: AN INTERESTING EVENT AT GAR-

DEN ISLAND YESTERDAY The "Probs." are The Bost Slid Off the Ways And Acted randly in the Water-Great Work to Preparing For the Final Plunge, the Company Not Believers in Supersti

> The little municipality of Garden Island was gay with flags and bunting yesterday, the occasion being the launch of the big schooler Ceylon, one of the largest grain boats on the great lakes, and almost as big as our own Minnedons. The Calvin company are evidently unbelievers in the ill-luck which is ascribed to the number thirluck which is ascribed to the number thirteen, for the Ceylon was begun Aug. 13th, 1890, and took just thirteen months to complete, but if the launch is any criterion of the future of the Ceylon we would prophesy all kinds of sunny skies and gentle, favorable winds. All day yesterday a detachment of forty-five brawny islanders, under foreman Tom Bryan, labored preparing for the afternoon's event, and in the afternoon when attention was directed to clearing when attention was directed to clearing away the prope and supports excitement began to grow. Every person, not otherwise engaged on the busy little isle, turned out to see the event, and a contingent from the city, which arrived on the Pierrepont, helped to swell the throng, which monopolized all the vacant space on timbers, wharves and vessels surrounding the good ship, which rose high and sturdy above all like the price of Kingston natural gas shares.

> The propellor Armenia, which was in

The propellor Armenia, which was in waiting to take the Ceylon in tow when she had taken her initial duck, was dotted, to the top of her wheel house, with the fair daughters of the island, who have a keen interest in marine matters and a special weakness for the sturdy sailors. All eyes were turned on the Ceylon as timber after timber was knocked from beneath her and the sledges of the workmen resounded on the wedges, every blow loosening the hold of the vessel on mother earth. At last nothing remained but two heavy cables at the how and as the last wedge was hammered in these were severed with a broad axe. Then the Ceylon appeared to know what was expected of her. She slid slowly and majesti cally down the ways, her speed gradually increasing to a rush as she took the water. Not once did she sway from her erect position and every one showed his or her appreclation of the good conduct by a cheer or frantic acream, according to sex. The momentum carried her far out into the channel and it was some time before she was secured and brought into the dock to be admired. The dimensions of the Ceylon are 207 feet over all, 200 feet keel, 15 feet 2 inches depth of hold, 37 feet beam, registered ton nage 908, grain capacity about 55,000 bushels. Six hatches give ample accommo dation for the transhipment of cargoes, which will be greatly facilitated by several steam hoists, with which the vessel is provided, while an independent engine will work the windlass. Peaches were retailed to-day at 60c per public money to this national monument was desired, but felt that the strength already given by the patronage extended as vice-chairmen of all the lieutenant-governors, would be enhanced by the approval of the ministers, representing the government.

Hon. Mr. Abbott felt the force of this movement for a memorial in the old home, old constituency and burial place of Sir John, and though other places were asking their private support he personally, and he was sure his colleagues also, would assist the movement as generously as means would allow. Hon. Mr. Dewdney and other personal friends of Sir John were visited. Hon. Frank Smith and Roderick McLennan, M.P., Glengarry, tendered hearty assistance. A kindly interest was also shown by Messra. Allison and Dawson, members for Lennex and Addington. The governor general did not arrive as expected, and the members of parliament were not systematically convassed because such work would now be fruitless, the long session having now be fruitiess, the long session having reduced their purses and closed the usually well-tested springs of their generosity. Indeed, the members are not now appreachable on the subjects of their long session and finances; they will be a very sore lot unless they can vote themselves an extra sessional Very vicorous efforts must be undertaken the movement is to be the success desired. Never was it clearer than now that a living better than a dead lion. There is not the spontaneity in memorial gifts that the regard for the late premier when living | which protract the sessions of parliamen

WHAT MR. MOORE WANTS

GOOD GOVERNMENT AND HOW

TO SECURE IT. de Abominates Partylam And Thinks It Has Rulued The Country—The Plan He Has Conceived to Have The Government Run Decently And Honestly. WILLIAMSVILLE, Sept. 16 -(fo. Editor): In perusing the columns of truly worthy paper, I am shocked to such bare-faced robbery as has been brou to light at Ottawa, the perpetrators which should be models of purity to public at large. It is not the member ment they should get. A few days ago was shown a strip of paper emenating from that party, calling the public to arms is view of the coming election. I am shocked to think they have the andacity to their neads again, but why should They don't know what shame is. not bark? Perhaps some of them got a bone to keep them quiet. At the last election, when the country at over $35,000,000, I told several persons there was robbery some where. I have always scorned the idea of party politics. There never was, nor never will be, good government by parties. Party-ism has led to the present disgrace. The party has been robbing the public to keep with unnecessary debating and obstruction and proves a source of ruinous expense to the country. Another evil is, the party in power will create offices for their lackeys where none are required. Many such offices could be pointed out at the present time.

We should form a new government on the following plan : Let each constituency select a committee of three trustworthy members: let that committee salect a representation to parliament rejecting all office-seekers; let their pay be $5 per day while sitting and nothing for absentees. This would put a stop to partyism and secure good government. It would pay each member more than the difference from $5 to what they now get and leave no inducement for worthless, dishonest, office-seekers. If this course was adopted we would soon outstrip the states for it is evident, to any intelligent observer, we are blessed with far superfor natural facilities than the states are. I hope to hear, from all parts of Canada, the Kingston, Sept. 17.-(To the Editor) Having been engaged in other duties, I have not been able to devote any time to the burning question of natural gas for the past three weeks. My progress was reported in your standing the failure at Belleville, my confidence in results, to be obtained here by effort, had not abated. On the 8th Sept. 120 names were on the subscribers' list for a test well, at $10 each (providing that 300 were obtained). Not more than twenty of those names were voluntary, the balance being solicited, some of them more than once. I presented the list to more than 600 signature, and the result was discouraging Some thought I was on the road to Rock wood, others said that "my next project

T. sta tin on Tuesday, the 8th inst., when leaving to city, who informed me that they had that day struck granite at the depth of 171 feet, and that the water procured was not what they desired, being somewhat brackish. The object of Dr. Clark, in sinking an artesian well, was to secure pure water for demestic purposes in the asylum. Putting the Belleville record of granite at wood my arder was considerably dampened been looked in the station house. Officer Judge my surprise and delight, three days

Yesterday I visited Dr. said : "The men who drilled the well used the common well drill, driven by horse power, so common to the country. They complained of the extreme hardness of the rock from the first, and as the well despend the hardness increased so that some days their progress was not much more than a try ginewhere," Having curiosity to analyse the mater he had the well pumped, and after pumping out to ninety feet the pump foamed. Dr. Clark immediately suspected the presence of gas, and, standing off, placed a lighted sorch to the five-inch hole and ignited the gas, which blazed up with great velocity. The well was plugged with a five-inch pipe and capped. A cross pipe with tap was inserted, and from which I saw the gas blass out quite strongly for a few seconds at a time. The Kingston and Pembroke railway, were in remittent flow is owing to the fact that over Pembroke urging upon the business men of the town the advisability of aiding them in well. Not looking for gas the proper pretheir project of taking advantage of their caution of casing while boring was not cally termed by gas borers a "wet well," in do as they do at Lake Shore, Utah, the old Utab central batting resort, by putting down a dry well alongside and convert the beine into sait.
