President Hoey's Betirement-A Complicated San Francisco Case. Political corruption, personal dishonesty a big "deal" and a queer sort of scandalthese are the principal features in the four great sensations of the hour. The first involves a country, the second a community, the third a corporation and the fourth a long established and wealthy business ment began to investigate serious charges formulated against people holding high official and social rank, the accusers were regarded with suspicion, and the accused received the respectful sympathy of the friendly and incredulous. But month ury had been despoiled of militons, and that the contractors had "stood in" with the politicians who got them the jobs, and contributed buge sums to the campaign funds and private bank accounts of their backers. It developed, according to one published summary of the situation, that "the taxpayer was robbed on the one hand and bribed on the other." The firm chiefly benefiting by the alliance was Larkin, Connolly & Co., which is reputed to be "a million dollars ahead of the game," One of the members of this firm was Owen E. Murphy, a person who left New York with some precipitancy several years ago, and who was unkindly referred to at that time as a "fugitive boodler." The recent inquiry caused the rupture of numerous confidential and business relations, and for this reason Mr. Murphy was moved to remark to a reporter the other day regarding his former comrades:

"We had one of the softest snaps any one ever had or ever will have in Canada. We, as a contracting firm, had everything in our own hands. Tom McGreevy worked Sir Hecter Langevin, and we were right on the inside edge, and it was a gilt edge, I can tell you. It cost us something to work Sir Hector, but there were big returns for the money invested. No one could touch us, as we had the department with us, and that meant a heap. Why, if the fools had not quarreled and tried to shove me out, we could have monopolized everything in the way of big contracts. There will be several million dollars spent by the government on Montreal harbor sure of getting that contract, while there will be several other big jobs that we could have captured. It was to be so, but the great combination has been broken up, for Sir Hector cannot give out contracts any longer. He is a dead letter."

Here is the result of the exposure up to date: Sir Hector Langevin, minister of public works, resigned; Thomas McGreevy, expelled from parliament; Henry F. Perley, chief engineer of public works, resigned; Chief Mechanical Engineer Arnoldi, dismissed; Andre Senecal, printing superintendent, a prisoner, and a lot of other or diagraced. Equally interesting fellows are the Standiford brothers, formerly of Chrisman, Ills., but now on their travels. There are two of them, Alexander B. and John Edgar, and if the published accounts of their doings are true no more despicable brace of scoundrels ever fled from justice. Sixteen years ago they established a bank at Chrisman and took a prominent stand in religion and politics. They gained the confidence of the villagers and of the rich farming community of Edgar county, and "ran things" about as they pleased. They loaned money to friends on verbal promises to pay, and in turn got accommodation notes from these friends for the ask-

Things went on in an apparently prosperous manner until a few months ago, when the brothers, after a series of preliminary nibbles, took to grain gambling on a large scale. They seem to have guessed wrong on the market every time. Last July fire destroyed their bank building, and from that event may be dated their apparent resolve to make or break. They bought notes right and left and credited the sellers as having placed the purchase money on deposit. They "borrowed paper" from a score of people and sold the obligations to banks in other towns. They used the funds in betting on wheat and The other day they made a grand clean up and fled. Their own father was despoiled of all the money he had in the world, and A. B. Standiford's wife has nothing left to show for the $90,000 she loaned her husband. Merchants, laborers and farmers are reduced to abject poverty. Even the Methodist minister to whose church the prothers belonged was bliked out of $300, he hard savings of years of toil. The only concern not swindled was the Sood Templars' lodge, for whose benefit Alexander left fourteen dollars he held as treasurer. But against this must be counted the fact that just before departing he drew fraudulent drafts for them. It is also hinted that he was accompanied in his flight by another man's wife. All in all the village of Chrisman and the county of Edgar are half a million dollars poorer for having known and confided in the Standifords.

Almost as sensational, but of an entir y different nature, is the case of John Hoey, for many years identified with the progress and prosperity of the Adams Exout from the right hand of the dead woman press company, and until recently president of the corporation. The board of managers removed him from that high office the other day, and at the same time promptly accepted the sysignation of Vice President Spooner. The charge against these two was that they bought some petty eastern express lines at a nominal figure and sold them to the Adams company, of which they had the direction, at a profit to worn on the left hand of the corpse, bemselves and two others of $600,000. This style of "deal" failed to meet the approval of Mr. Hoey's fellow shareholders so they dispensed with his services and are now suing him and Mr. Spooner for the one or two weekly papers, and were not seen by Mr. Fuller until he had reached New York with his family on his way to As soon as he had established his wife he returned to San Francisco and began an investigation. A king of Persia once sent to a tribe Redouine the caliph Murtsphe, a very orie-brate i physician, who inquired on his arriy-al how they lived. "We never cat till we are hungry, and then not to repletion," was the answer. I may retire then," said the doctor, "I have no business here."

How many cities, towns or villages on this North American continent should today give the same remarkable answer to the paestion, "How do you live !" From north to south, and from east to west we find one or two medical men existing comfortably in the amaliest settlements while in the larger towns and cities they form a mighty army. Why is this? Simply because people do not live properly. They disregard the plain and truthful laws of nature, and therefore bring upon themselves suffering and disease. Many cat and drink when nature does not require it, and many would eat, but owing to imperfect digestion they cannot do so. It is for this reason that we are a nation of dyspeptics, and continu-ally require the services of physicians. This dyspepsia in every case begets we kness of body and great nervousness. Unrest, sleep-lessness, a dejected state of mind, melan-cholis and morbidness are generally attend-ant evils. The condition often becomes to serious and alarming that life is positively

As Others Heard Him. Up town there is a phonograph, and the man who is running it is a hotel owner. He had a caller Tuesday whose "dander" was up. The room was quite full of people and the caller had an insane desire to, give his man a "piece of his mind." He did so. He berated him up hill and down. He didn't leave him, as he expressed it, in any the phenograph in action, only the caller didn't know it. When he had finished, the Lewiston man said:

"Are you done?" "Yes, I am done," was the reply. "Just one moment," was the rejoinder; 'I want you to hear what you said," and the merciless phonograph was reversed and the record pronounced through the machine so that all could hear it.

A blush overspread the caller's face. listened in wonder and surprise. As oaths and epithets flowed out of the machine, the exact reproduction of his own vituperation, he moved away, and when all was done a man more sheepish and ashamed could not be found. Said he, after a moment's thought, turning to the Lewiston man, "I have had a valuable lesson. No man who would talk like that in public has any right to be considered. I want you to pull that record, as you call it, off from that machine and give it to me. I'll pay for it." It was done, and the caller stood by the counter uttering apologies and whittling into pieces the wax cylinder that contained

Simeon Wenban had run the Garrison tunnel at great expense and was left a poor man, owing his creditors $150,000. There was not a pound of ore in sight whereby the debt might be paid. As a last resort, with a forlorn hope, after the mine had been closed, Simeon Wenban drilled a hole in the hanging wall, and blasted out a huge piece of rock, which he found to be almost a solid block of metal, and part of an immense vein which had been paralleled hundreds of feet. This fortunate last effort marked a sudden change that seldom falls to the lot of man. It was Wenban, the poor man, the laborer, before that blast was fired; 't was Simeon Wenbun, the millionaire, but a second thereafter.
