He telegraphed to Cork city and the new leader of the Parnellite party, to repudiate all responsibility for the violence noted in connection with After the county convention had adjourned there was a serious fight in the streets between the McCarthyites and the Parnellites. As soon as the convention had closed its proceedings Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien passed through the city, still accompanied by the procession which met them at the railroad station. Suddenly the McCarthyites were attacked by a large mob of Parnellites, and both sides fought desperately detachment of mounted police was sent for and they spurred their horses in between the two lines of combatants, striking right and left with the flat of their sabres. The mob replied with showers of stones and bricks. A large number of wounded were stretched bleeding and groaning in the streets before the troopers reatored order. The neighboring hopitals had to find accommodation for many wounded persons by the time hostilities were suspended. There is great excitement in Cork this evening and danger that the battle will be renewed.

Action for $10,000 Against The Globe

-The Pot nubbling Both at Ottawn QUEEZC, Oct. 28.—Calm and smiling as usual, Mr. Pacaud entered the box yesterday morning. Judge Jette took him in hand. Almost at the beginning of his enquiry it ame out that Mr. Mercier received in all $10,000 through Mr. Pacand's intervention, $5000 by draft on May 15 and $5000 cables over on July 2, came from, it was stated by Mr. Pacauc that he made about $5500 by another private transaction about this time.

The judge wanted to know why he had not included this last sum sent to Mr. Mercier in his personal account, and the reply was that it was entirely foreign to the Baie des Chaleurs business. In all, according to the judges' reakoning, Mr. Langelier received about $15,000 advance from him during the summer, and the honorable commissioner wanted to know very much whether Mr. Langelier was not anxious to know how or through what transaction he was enabled to lend so much

Mr. Pacaud stated that there had been some joking about the sudden manner in which he had become righ, but no explana-tion was given. He had always kept the matter religiously secret even from such an intimate friend

The most sensational point raised was about the discounting of the third $2000 note, which was realized upon at the Banque du Peuple in Montreal, Mr. Pacaud told how in the course of his visit he met a gentleman who asked him why he Fredericksburg, but a reply not arriving he thought the Czar did not care to reply. Who Were the Subscribers? Mr. Pacaud was next examined as to ertain letter written by Mr. Webb to Mr. Bousquet in Montreal and which was attached to the $20,000 check, which Pacaud sought to discount in Montreal. Witness said that he was not aware that the note went to a Mr. Lefebvre in Montreal to be discounted. He expected to raise his election money by means of subscriptions. Witness' objection to state the mode by which he hoped to raise the subscriptions was sustained by the commission Mr. Casgrain wanted to know since when witness distributed the amount granted by and for election contestations. This was objected to by Mr. Irvine. Mr. Casgrain [wanted witness to withdraw from the court, and commission granted the request.

Mr. Casgrain then explained his pleas, which purport that a vast conspiracy was yot up by witness and by Messrs. Mercier, Langelier, Duhamel, Robidoux and probably by Mr. Garneau.

Mr. Irvine ridiculed Mr. Casgrain's plea of conspiracy and claimed that witness could not be questioned on matters so equi-

The Commission allowed the question, however, and witness was recalled and answered. I think it is since 1878, at the general election. Witness lived then in Arthabaska, subsequently he was prothonotary in Three Rivers until 1887. Then he edited The Concorde, after which he came to Quebec, where he was the financial secretary of the party. Friends well knew that when something was required they had to go to L'Electeur, where he (Pacaud) kept his office. The funds distributed were raised by subscription.

Mr. Mercier asked of witness the $5000

He and Charles Langelier bought and paid for L'Electeur by flint of hard work and sacrifice and also by subscription from friends. He couldn't say how much he gave Mr. Langelier.

Witness wrote of his own accord to voted political friends about the revision of the electoral lists telling them to push the work-that he was sending a small sum which would defray part of their expenses. This refers to say given in Pacand's state-

A True Statement of an Important Royal

the last two weeks the whole European press has been speaking of the Monyea inter-view out of what was said between the King of Italy and the Russian minister of foreign affairs. Several versions have been given. Here is the truth: I have spoken with one person who assisted at the meeting. I am not at liberty to say who it is but I am authorized to say that the persons who were in the room were King Humbert, Mr. De-Giers and Count Nigra, the Italian ambasea dor at Vienna. It was Count Nigra who
