DOES RELIGION PAY?

hard in his dealings with his fellows, who had written over his banking house, or his counting house room: "No compromise." Then when some merchant got in a crisis and went down—no fault of his, but a conjunction of evil circumstances—and all the other merchants were willing to compromise—they would take seventy-five cents on the dollar, or fifty cents, or twenty cents—coming to this man last of all, he said: "No compromise; I'll take one hundred cents on the dollar, and I can afford to wait." Well, the wheel turned, and after a while that man was in a crisis of business, and he sent out his agents to compromise, and the agents said to the merchants: "Will you take fifty cents on the dollar?" "No." "Will you take anything?" "We'll take one hundred cents on the dollar. No compromise." And the man who wrote that inscription over his counting house door died in destitution. Oh, we want more of the kindness of the Gospel and the spirit of love in our business enterprises! How many young men have found in the religion of Jesus Christ a practical help! How many there are in this house today who could testify out of their own experience that godliness is profitable for the life that now is. There were times in their business career when they went here for help, and there for help, and yonder for help, and got no help until they knelt before the Lord crying for his deliverance, and the Lord rescued them.

In a bank not far from our great metropolis—a village bank—an officer could not balance his accounts. He had worked at that day after day, night after night, and he was sick nigh unto death as a result. He knew he had not taken one farthing from that bank, but somehow, for some reason inscrutable the accounts wouldn't balance. The time rolled on, and the morning of the day when the books should pass under the inspection of the other officers arrived, and he felt himself in awful peril, conscious of his own integrity but unable to prove that integrity. That morning he went to the bank early, and he knelt down before God and told the whole story of his mental anguish, and he said: "O Lord, I have done right; I have preserved my integrity, but here I am about to be overthrown unless thou shouldst come to my rescue. Lord, deliver me." And for one hour he continued the prayer before God, and then he rose and went to an old blotter that he had forgotten all about. He opened it, and there lay a sheet of figures which he only needed to add to another line of figures—some line of figures he had forgotten, and knew not where he had laid them—and the Lord delivered him. You are an infidel if you do not believe it. The Lord delivered him. God answered his prayer as he will answer your prayer, O man of business, in every crisis when you come to him. Now, if this be so, then I can persuade, as you are, of the fact that the vast majority of Christians do not fully test the value of their religion. They are like a farmer in California, with fifteen thousand acres of good wheat land and culturing only a quarter of an acre. Why do you not go forth and make the religion of Jesus Christ a practical affair every day of your business life and all this year, beginning now, and to-morrow morning putting into practical effect this holy religion and demonstrating in your life that godliness is profitable here as well as hereafter!

HOW AND WHY RELIGION IS INDISPENSABLE. How can you get along without this religion? Is your physical health so good you do not want this divine tonic? Is your mind so clear, so vast, so comprehensive that you do not want this divine inspiration? Is your worldly business so thoroughly established that you have no use for that religion which has been the help and deliverance of tens of thousands of men in crises of worldly trouble? And if that I have said this morning is true, then you see what a fatal blunder it is when a man adjourns to life's expiration the uses of religion. A man who postpones religion to 60 years of age gets religion fifty years too late. He may get into the kingdom of God by final repentance, but what can compensate him for a whole lifetime unalleviated and uncomforted? You want religion today in the training of that child. You will want religion to-morrow in dealing with that western customer. You wanted religion yesterday to curb your temper. Is your arm strong enough to beat your way through the floods? Can you without being incensed in the mail of God's eternal help go forth amid the assault of all hell's sharpshooters? Can you walk alone across these crumbling graves and amid these gaping earthquakes? Can you, waterlogged and mast shivered, outlive the gale? Oh, how many there have been who, postponing the religion of Jesus Christ, have plunged into mistakes they never could correct although they lived eighty years after, and like serpents crushed under cartwheels, dragging their mangled bodies under the rocks to die; so these men have fallen under the wheel of awful calamity, crushed here, destroyed forever, while a vast multitude of others have taken the religion of Jesus Christ into everyday life, and first, in practical business affairs, and secondly, on the throne of heavenly triumph, have illustrated, while angels looked on and a universe approved, the glorious truth that "Godliness is profitable unto all things, having the promise of the life which now is as well as of that which is to come."

The King of Siam.

"The present Siamese king, Somdech Phra Pharamindr Maha, known as Chulalongkorn, is a handsome man, 32 years old. He has absolute power, but avails himself of a council of nobles. He is of a kind disposition, easily approachable, and is very popular among his subjects. I once attended a grand garden party given by him, at which more than 5,000 guests were present. There were not more than 500 foreign residents in Bangkok, but the most elaborate preparations were made for their entertainment. English and French cooks were employed, and European wines flowed like water, the champagne especially being received with great favor by the natives. The king moved about among his guests with perfect freedom. His crown is worn only on rare occasions, as it is a very uncomfortable headgear. It is of solid gold, about eighteen inches high, and runs to a point. It is thickly studded with jewels of the largest size and first water, and is of great value. It is so heavy that the monarch is ill at ease while it is upon his head. The king's bedchamber, baths and other apartments are worthy the abode of royalty. His couch is made of rare wood and carved in the most exquisite designs, draped with rare lace fringed with gold, a gold embroidered spread covers the bed; the pillows and bolsters are also beamed with lace, and above the couch swings a handsome pumba to keep him cool.—Cor. East Francisco Chronicle.

A Severe Trial.

FATHER HECKER.

Founder and Superior of the Order of Paulist Fathers.

The Very Rev. Isaac Thomas Hecker, founder and superior of the Order of Paulists, who died in New York city not long ago, was, up to within a few years, one of the most active and hard working of the Roman Catholic clergymen of the metropolis.

Father Hecker was born in New York city, of German Lutheran parents, sixty-nine years ago. He received a mercantile education, and for a time devoted himself to business pursuits. But he was not long content to labor in a field in which his brothers, who established the Hecker flour mills, have been so successful. His first step toward carrying out a desire to benefit humanity in a larger way was to join the association for agriculture at Brook Farm, West Roxbury, Mass. This was in 1843, and later on he was a member of a similar society at Worcester.

FATHER HECKER.

He did not find in either of these organizations the field he was in search of, so he began to study for the Episcopal ministry. About this time he was a member of the Congregationalist church. In 1845, after long deliberation, he determined to join the Catholic church, with a view of becoming a missionary. He was received into the church in New York, and at once sailed for Belgium, where he studied to become a missionary priest of the Order of the Most Holy Redeemer. The period of his novitiate, from 1847 to 1849, was spent in Bruges. Returning at its close to England, he was raised to the priesthood by Cardinal Wiseman. At the end of four years' missionary work abroad he returned to New York and took his place among the Redemptorist fathers.

In the course of seven years' zealous work in his native land, he became convinced that a new order of missionaries, similar to that of the Redemptorists, but composed of American instead of foreign priests chiefly, could overcome many difficulties. In 1857 he went to Rome and submitted his views to Pope Pius IX, who approved them. The congregation of St. Paul was immediately formed, with Father Hecker as its head.

When Father Hecker returned to America he was joined by some of the Redemptorist fathers, and the members of the new order founded a church and convent at Fifty-ninth street and Ninth avenue and sent missions throughout the country. The order flourished even beyond the expectations of its founder.

Father Hecker gave much time to literature. He established The Catholic World, a periodical which has maintained a high standard of excellence.

Father Hecker was an extremely hard worker, and it is due to this that his nervous system was broken down about fifteen years ago, and he had to give up active church work.

CHARLES F. MAYER,

The New President of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Charles F. Mayer, the new president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, was born in Pennsylvania while his father and mother were temporarily living in that state, and is about 56 years of age. He is a son of Lewis Mayer, who was one of the first men to develop the anthracite coal regions of the Keystone state, and was a distinguished Maryland lawyer. When quite a young man Charles F. Mayer became a clerk in the office of his uncle, who was one of the largest merchants of his time in Baltimore. He was afterwards supercargo for some years on vessels trading to South America in his uncle's business. He returned from Valparaiso after two years and became the head of the firm his uncle founded. About 1864, together with a few associates, he organized the Despard Gas Coal company, with mines at Clarksburg, W. Va., becoming vice president and afterwards president.

In 1877 Mr. Mayer was elected president of the Consolidated Coal company and also of the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad company. In 1871 he established the firm of Mayer, Carroll & Co., to mine and ship coal, and subsequently became partner of United States Senator Peury G. Davis, under the firm name of Davis, Mayer & Co. The firm dissolved some time ago, and the two are now heads of competing railroad and coal companies. He is a director of a number of banking, steamship and other corporations. His connection with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad for years has given him an insight into its affairs that few possess, and he is no doubt well equipped for becoming a successful trunk line railway manager. The salary of the president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad is $25,000 a year.

The Policemen's Monument.

The statue which is to be erected to the memory of the policemen who were the victims of the Haymarket massacre, in Chicago, on May 3, 1886, was recently completed, and will be erected by Feb. 1, 1889. It is a heroic statue of a policeman, and Mr. Johannes Galert took for his model a man of the Chicago police conspicuous for bodily perfection.

THE ACCEPTED DESIGN.

The monument was first suggested at a meeting of the Union League club of Chicago. The Chicago Tribune called for subscriptions, and offered a $100 prize for a design. Mr. Charles F. Batchelder was the successful competitor, and made the design. The contributions thus far amount to $7,000.

A gold watch taken from Thomas Allerton, of Plainfield, N. J., over twenty years ago was returned to him recently with his name and the date of the theft engraved on the inside of the back case.
