Medicine for Throat and Lung Difficulties has long been, and still is, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It cures Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, and Asthma; soothes irritation of the Larynx and Fauces; strengthens the Vocal Organs; allays soreness of the Lungs; prevents Consumption, and, even in advanced stages of that disease, relieves Coughing and induces Sleep. There is no other preparation for diseases of the throat and lungs to be compared with this remedy.

"My wife had a distressing cough, with pains in the side and breast. We tried various medicines, but none did her any good until I got a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has curedher. A neighbor, Mrs. Glenn, had the measles, and the cough was relieved by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I have no hesitation in recommending this to every one afflicted."- Robert Horton, Foreman Headlight, Morrillton, Ark.

Cough Medicine

"I have been afflicted with asthme for forty years. Last spring I was taken with a violent cough, which threatened to terminate my days. Every one pronounced me in consumption. I determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Its effects were magical. I was immediately relieved and continued to improve until entirely recovered."-Joel Bullard, Guilford, Conn.

"Six months ago I had a severe hemorrhage of the lungs, brought on by an incessant cough which deprived me of sleep and rest. I tried various remedies, but obtained no relief until I began to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. A few bottles of this medicine cured me." Mrs. E. Coburn, 19 Second st., Lowell, Mass.

"For children afflicted with colds, coughs, sore throat, or croup, I do not know of any remedy which will give more speedy relief than Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I have found it, also, invaluable in cases of Whooping Cough."-Ann Lovejoy, 1257 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

YOUNG FOLKS' COLUMN.

FOR THE ENTERTAINMENT AND IN-STRUCTION OF BOYS AND GIRLS.

The Prophet Mohammed's Pet Cat-The Superstitions Veneration in Which Cats Are Held by the Citizens of the City of Damascus.

Mohammed, when he was at Damascus, had a favorite cat which he daily fed, fondled and carried about with him in the wide sleeye of his kaftan. One day, when pussy was fast asleep, the prophet was obliged to rise and attend to some public business, and rather than disturb the repose of his pet, he cut off the sleeve of his garment and left puss sleeping there.

MOHAMMED AND HIS PET CAT.

Cats have always been favorites in the far away east, but this circumstance is said to be the reason why they are held in superstitions veneration at Damascus. In that city there is a hospital for cats. It is a large house with a fine courtyard, in which latter the furry creatures sun themselves on bright days. In this hospital hundreds of cats of various breeds, ages and conditions are supported by the voluntary contributions of their faithful friends among the human family.

Daniel Webster's Blue Suit.

Daniel Webster went to college in a home soun suit, of which probably every thread was carded, spun and woven by his mother's hand from the wool of their own sheep. I was a dyed-in-the-wool suit, and the color was indigo blue-the old New England color. In the south it is butternut; but, though our Yankee grandmothers and great-great-greatgrandmothers knew all about what butternut bark would do, and the subtile power for slate color that lay in sumach berries and bark of white maple, and the various dyes that root and flower, bark and leaf, could be made to yield, through the agency of vitriol and alum and copperas to "set" them fast, the univeral stand by was the blue pot-par excellence the "dye pot"-that stood in the chimney corner of every kitchen worth

So Webster was fitted out in indigo blue from collar to ankle-unbecoming for his swart skip-and set off grand and sophomoric. Before reaching Hanover, there came on one of those drenching rains which, like the Scottish mists, wet a man to the skin. The suit held its own (for has not indigo blue been "warranted fast" since first indigo was heard of?) but it had parted with enough so that Daniel, too, was dyed blue from head to

Daniel Webster, says Wide Awake, from which the above was taken, had a liberal stratum of sentiment in his make up; and for some reason this color of his young manhood became his favorite wear through life. He wore blue coats to his dying day. If any one ever saw him in a different one, the fact has not been put on record.

How and Where Some Toys Are Made.

Some curious toys are made of cork. One of these is the well known little tumbler, such as is generally constructed of pith; but cork, especially if it be hollowed, will answer the purpose. Make the puppet of three or four corks; shape and paint it as skillfully as you can, and glue to the feet or under them a hemisphere of lead. When thrown into any position, the figure of course rights itself, and, like a cat, always falls on its feet. It is quite possible to make a cat also of pith or cork, which will indeed always fall upon its feet.

Many of the wooden toys that come to this country are made in the vicinity of the Black Forest, where men, women and children earn their livings in making what are known the world over as "Dutch toys." It is said that half a million dollars' worth are shipped from there every year, and, as they come to us through Holland, are christened "Dutch Sentences That Trip the Tongue.

Since the day when Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers, there have been many sentences coined to trip the tongue, and the following is the latest exercise to tie your tongue in knots. Read quickly, please:

A day or two ago, during a full in business, two little bootblacks, one white and the other black, were standing at the corner doing nothing, when the white bootblack agreed to black the black bootblack's boots. The black bootblack was, of course, willing to have his boots blacked by his fellow bootblack, and the bootblack who had agreed to black the black bootblack's boots went to work.

TOO GREAT TO BEAR.

Judge Johnston's Grief Was Too Much for Hin. Six months ago Judge Robert A. Johnston, of Cincinnati, was a happy man. One morning late in 1888 he blew his brains out. This is an extraordinary case. One reads in the papers every day of suicides. The tediousness of life is broken off short almost every hour of the day, by some disconsolate soul. Here is a highly respected citizen, a power in the community in which he lived, a man who has risen to a post of high honor, suddenly making away with himself, and all for love. In 1857 he took his bride to the altar, and until last September their life was an ideal one. Then came the blow. His partner in life was stricken down and the judge never recovered from the effects of the shock. His grief broke out continually. He could not control himself; day after day he mourned, until at last the burden became too great and he ended all with a bullet. Judge Johnston was born in Mount Carmel, O., in 1835. He chose the law for a profession, and practiced in Cincinnati from 186 to 1876. In 1876 he was elected judge of the court of common pleas, and in 1881 he was re-elected. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him. It is not too much to say that the judge owed much of his success to his wife. In the hour of discouragement she comforted him and spurred him him on to renewed efforts. She was indeed an ideal wife. Many prominent men have committed sui-was charged with improper acts in connection with cotton speculations. Hon. James Henry Lane, United States senator from Kansas, committed suicide at Fort Leavenworth about 1866, Hon. James J. Johnson, representative from Kentucky, committed suicide while suffering from ill health at Owensboro, Ky., Feb. 12, 1873.

Judge James K. Knight, one of the circuit judges of St. Louis, Mo., a few years ago suicided. Hon. James D. Colt, a judge of the supreme court of Massachusetts, shot himself at Pittsfield, Mass., in 1880. Hon. William L. Dayton, United States minister to France, shot himself in the rooms of the legation just after the war. Banker Ralston, a millionaire, a native of

THE PROPERTY OF THE PARTY OF TH This Marriage a Corspicuous l'ailure.

The Atlanta Constitution prints this as a dispatch from Chicago: Chicago is justly noted for swift divorces and the calculating coolness with which couples proceed to the severance of bonds matrimonial, but there is one pair who take the lead. The young man came from the east some monds ago with plenty of money, good locks, and recommendations. He met at the house where he lived a young lady of rare beauty and good family, and in a few weeks they were married.

But their bliss didn't last long. One day he departed for Kansas City, where, he said, be had been sent by his firm. The following week she left for Michigan to see her folks. Then two letters came to the house here a few days apart addressed to the husband and wife, and as neither returned it was concluded to open them.

The one addressed to the wife read: My DEAR EDITH-I am convinced that you and I are unfit for one another. We cannot be happy. I left $500 in the lower bureau drawer. Take it and get a divorce. You can do so on the ground of desertion, as I now tell you I will never live with you again. Good-by and may you have better luck next time. CHARLIE.

It was marked at Cincinnati. The one addressed to the busband was mailed at Duffalo. It read:

DEAR CHARLIE-I am tired of you and I know you are tired of me. You will never see me again. I took $500 which you forgot in the bureau drawer. I will never trouble you, no matter what you do. Good-by forever. EDITH.

A Remarkable Dream and Its Result. A woman living in the eastern part of Portland lost a fur collar last February, and though a thorough search was made for the missing article, it was never found. Last week her husband dreamed that it was secrete under a stump in a lot near his barn. The next night the dream occurred again, but the husband did not mention it to his family. The third time the dream was repeated, and at last, actuated more by curiosity than by faith, the man visited the field and found the stump. Brushing away some leaves he discovered a hole, and placing his hand in it, to his surprise it came in contact with a furry substance, which he proceeded to pull out. Then he went home.
