STANLEY HEARD FROM.

He Writes to a Tippoo Tib Who is Now in Brussels-Interesting Story. BRUSSELS, Jan. 16.—The following letter, written by Henry M. Stanley, has been received in this city: "Boma of Bonaliza Muretia, Aug. 17th. To Sheikh Hamed Ben Mahomed: From his good friend Henry M. Stanley. Many saalams to you. I hope that you are in as good health as I am, and that you have remained in good health since I left the Congo. I have much to say to you, but hope I shall see you face to face before many days. I reached here this morning with 130 Wangwana, three soldiers and 66 natives belonging to Emin Pasha. It is now eighty-two days since I left Emin Pasha on the Nyanza. I only lost three men all the way. Two were drowned and the other decamped. I found the white men who were looking for Emin Pasha quite well. The other white man, Casoti, is also well.

"Emin Pasha has ivory in abundance, thousands of cattle and sheep, goats, fowls, and food of all kinds. I found him a very good and kind man. He gaveall our white and black men numbers of things. His liberality could not be excelled. His soldiers blessed our black men for their kindness in coming so far to show them the way. Many of them were ready to follow me out of the country but I asked them to stay quite a few months that I might return and fetch the other men and goods left at

"They prayed to God that he would give me strength to finish my work. May their prayer be heard and now my friend what are you going to do? We have gone the road twice over. We know where it it good and where it is bad, where there is plenty of food and where there is none, where all the camps are and where we shall sleep and rest. I am waiting to hear your words. If you go with me it is well. I leave it to you. I will stay here ten days and will then proceed slowly. I will move hence to Big Island, two hours march from here, above this place. There are plenty of houses there and plenty of food for the men. Whatever you have to say to me, my ears will be open with a good heart, as it has always been toward you. Therefore if you come, come quickly, for on the eleventh morning from this I shall move on. All my white men are well but I left them all behind me except my servant William who is with me. (Signed) HENRY M. STANLEY."

Sheikh Hamed Ben Mahomed, to whom the above letter is addressed, is the Arab Tippoo Tib. The letter which was taken to Stanley Falls by a messenger, and which reached Brussels by post last night, is the only one from Stanley which reached the coast of Africa. A number of other letters which the messenger conveyed to Stanley Falls still remain there, but it is expected they will arrive in Europe in two or three months.

WILL NOT BE PUNISHED

No Disrespect Was Shown to the Court-But it Must Not Occur Again.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Upon the resumption of the session of the Parnell commission this morning presiding Justice Hannen said Wil liam O'Brien's article in United Ireland, for which he was summoned to appear before the court, exceeded a fair discussion of the case under investigation, but he admitted that there was some force in Mr. O'Brien's arguments regarding the continued circulation of the Times' pamphlets. He believed no disrespect was intended to be shown towarde the court by the article, therefore he would not punish Mr. O'Brien, He added, however, that in future cases of a similar nature would be more severely treated. Patrick Delaney, a convict in the Mary. borough prison, testified that he belonged to the fenians until September, 1882. The principal leader of the organization were Messrs. Egan and Brennan, Dr. Macallister, John Lavey and John Doran. About 1879 a number of delegates, including John O'Connor, John Devoy and Gen. Millen came from America. Gen. Millen inspected the mili tary organization. It was arranged that arms be provided and the expenses paid. At a meeting held in the Rotunda, Messrs. Davitt, Parnell, Egan, Biggar, Dillon, Breman and Harris attended. Curley, at this meeting, attacked Mr. Davitt for not adhering to the principles of the or ganization. After the meeting witness was told that the circles were not opposed to the league, which would organize the Fenians in the country and supply them with arms. Witness said he had forgotten a portion of the Invincible's oath, but the principal was to assassinate the viceroy and the whole executive of Ireland. The Invincibles received money from the league. Messrs. Egan, Byrne, and Tynan paid some to Daniel Delaney, Mullett and Brady. Witness was deputed to watch the movements of Mr. Forester at that time chief secretary for Ireland. Joseph Brady and limothy Kelly were to shoot Mr. Forester while witness was to intercept persons crossing the Queen street bridge, while Kelly and Brady endeavoured to carry out their purpose. Witness took no part in the Phoenix park murders. Mrs. Byrne brought over the two knives that were used in committing those murders. At a meeting of the committee of Invincibles held after the Phoenix park marders a quantity of gold and banknotes were laid upon a table. Afterwards more revolvers, daggers and money came.

GOING AFTER STANLEY:

THE NEW YORK WORLD IS FITTING OUT A PARTY.

Bicyclist Stevens Will Lead the Way-The Dangers He Will Run From the Massai - The Route He Will Take-An

Intrepid Leader. New York, Jan. 16 -The World has made arrangements for an exploring expedition into Central Africa to obtain auchentic news of Stanley and Emin Pasha. It will be led by Thomas A. Stevens, who made himself famous by his tour around the globe on a bicycle, and who is now on his way to Zanzibar, whence the expedition will start. In case the two explorers shall have returned to civilized regions before Mr. Stevens reaches Wadelai he will devote himself to an investigation of the African slave trade, against which Cardinal Laviegerie, primate of Africa, is conducting a crusade. There is magnificent work to be done in this dark continent, even should the fate of the two famous explorers be cleared up before Mr. Stevens arrives at Zanzibar. To a great extent the World's special correspondent will be left to decide upon his own plans on reaching the ground, though he will always keep in mind the fact that the greatest interest is felt in all parts of the civilized world respecting Stanley and Emin Bey, and that his duty will be to reach them in case they are yet alive, to find their records if they have perished, or to follow them if they are held as prisoners in the hands of the mahdi.

The point at which Mr. Stevens will touch the dark continent for the purpose of carving out his work will of course be Zanzibar, and he will have to decide on the information gained there as to his future movements-whether he shall proceed to the interior in search of Stanley and Emin, or whether he shall devote himself to independent travel; for the purpose of describing the native tribes of Central Africa, the conflicts of the Germans on the east coast, or the horrors of the African slave trade.

Among the many African travellers and explorers whom the World caused to be interviewed on the subject there has been a remarkably unanimous opinion that Stanley's selection of the Congo route to Wadelai was a mistake. The general opinion among them seemed to be that the expedition should have started into the interior from the east coast near Zanzibar. While acknowledging the claims of these gentlemen to speak with the weight and authority that always belong to experience, both the World and Mr. Stevens thought that Stanley, in choosing the Congo route, probably knew what he was about much better than anybody else could have told him. By this route the expedition certainly had a comparatively plain and easy journey to within four hundred miles of its destination, and up to that point it was also within touch, so to speak, of civilization.

Nevertheless, whatever Stanley's motive for preferring the Congo route might have been, Mr. Stevens, after carefully considering the question, decided to start for the interior from the east coast. He elected to reach the territory north of the Victoria Nyanza from Mombasa, following the route traversed by Joseph Thompson's royal geographical society's expedition in 1833-1834, through Massai land

These Massai warriors are the Apaches of East Africa, and from them may be apprehended, perhaps, the only very serious danger between Mombasa and the Victoria Nyanza. They are a wild and exceedingly interesting people, and in crossing their country lively and dangerous, though not necessarily disastrous, times may be expect-

The domestic life of the Massai is a curious and interesting study. The people live in kraals, much like the kraals of Zululand. They make no attempt to cultivate the soil. Their sole possessions are herds of cattle, which are recuperated from season to season by the cattle raiding exploits of the El-Moran. Meat and milk are their daily food, and the only eatables, in fact, up to a certain age. Up to about forty years of age every male is an El-Moran, or warrior, who, when on the war path lives in a kraal with a hundred or two of his comrades, and about the same number of young unmarried women. These young women are known as Ditto, and are described by the very few travellers who have seen them, as slender and well formed, with features distinctly European, and in their manner "aristocratic and lady-like." The duties of the Ditto are to attend to the wants of the El-Moran, to cook the beef and milk the cows that are set apart by the tribe for the support of the military kraals. In their domestic relations the Ditto and the El Moran form a community of which, from our ideas of social morality, the less said here the better. In case of war the whole camp, cattle, Ditto and all take the field, the former to provide sustenance for the warriors and the latter to milk, cook and attend to their wants, as at home.

Rapidity is to be the first aim of the expedition, and although splendidly equipped throughout with firearms of the latest pattern, only at the last extremity will a shot be fired. "He who goes gently goes safe" is to be Mr. Stevens' motto, King M. Wanga would, it was believed be the most likely person to know just what had become of the Stanley expedition, as he was keenly interested in its movements. He had a half disciplined army of many thou sand Waganda, and exercised despotic sway over a large and populous region about the Victoria Nyanza. Just how the African-Arab despot would have received Mr. Stevens would be, of course, one of the questions that could only be settled by going there. Mr. Stevens hoped, however, to not only be received hospitably, but to be able to enlist the services of King M-Wanga in his search for information, and if the Stanley expedition should, unfortunately, be found to have perished, then the king was to be asked to lend his great power and influence in assisting to recover Mr. Stanley's valuable jour

The Late Mrs. J. E. D'Avignon. Windsor. Hearts will be saddened here to day by the announcement of the death at Windsor, this morning, of Mrs. J. The news was as unexpected as it is depressing, and the deepest sympathy is felt for the loving and devoted husband, and warmly attached sisters in this invasion of a very happy home. The deceased was a lady of the kindliest disposition and will be missed in many circles in Windsor, where her activity and cheerfulness made her a general favourite. Mr. d'Avignon will have widespread sympathy in his untimely bereavement, since to know him and his estimable wife was to regard them highly. CONDUCT OF AN HOSPITAL.

Serious Charges Preferred by the New York Herald Against It.

New York, Jan. 16. - The Herald says, in regard to the New York hospital, that the conduct of the authorities is absolutely brutal. A young woman died there on the 9th inst. An aged woman died there about the same time. The young girl was given to the friends of the old woman and by them buried. In the meantime the friends of the former applied almost hour after hour for information about the body of the young woman, and were treated in a shameful way by the superintendent who, when he found out his mistake, had the body exhumed and sent to the proper parties.

It is expected that Most will claim police protection.

A CUT AT SIR MORRELL.

HIS CONDUCT IS CENSURED BY THE ROYAL COLLEGE.

An Appeal to the Queen And Empress Frederick, And All in Vain - Professional Jealousy at Work-It Seems to Have Gone a Little Too Far in This

NEW YORK, Jan. 16. -Henry Labouchere cables to the World: "The key note has been struck for another big fuss about Sir Morretl Mackenzie. It involves a probably unprecedented snub to royalty. On Saturday night an official announcement was made that the Royal college of surgeons had adopted a resolution severely censuring Sir Morrell Mackenzie for publishing his book about the illness of the German Emperor. This amounts to notification that the most distinguished body of medical men in England that they want nothing more to do with him.

Sir Morrell Mackenzie got wind of the intended rebuke and invoked the direct interference of the Empress Frederick to head off the resolution of censure. The empress wrote a letter to the college through Sir Spencer Wells beseeching the members of the college not to take any such step, since it would seriously impair her position in Germany. This letter was written from Osborne on the queen's letter paper. The empress indicated farther that Sir Morrell Mackenzie wrote the book in question at the solicitation of herself and the queen, and that any censure passed on him must necessarily reflect on them.

This letter was read to the college, and yet the college threw Sir Morrell Mackenzie overboard and sided with the German doctors. The letter has not been made public yet, but surely will be when the matter becomes the subject of controversy in the papers. The great subject for surprise will be the fact that certain well-known doctors who depend in a great degree on royal circles for patronage could have afforded to disregard such a request.

A prominent surgeon, who refused to allow his name to be quoted, said to day: "It will be hard to convince people that the college has been actuated by motives of profession honour and not by an acute attack of professional jealousy, which is undoubtedly at the bottom of it. Few people outside the prefession realize what a blow this is to Sir Morrell Mackenzie. Yet the vote of the college lacked only two votes of being unanimous. In my opinion the empress bungled as badly in heading off this move as Sir Morrell Mackenzie aid in publishing the book. If, instead of writing the letter to the college, she had quietly summoned Sir Spencer and or two other prominent men to Osborne, and had made the matter a personal affair instead of a college affair, I think the resolution might have been suppressed."

The Empress Frederick has such a hold on popular sympathy here at present that the publication of the facts will probably cause the tide of public feeling to flow towards Dr. Mackenzie. The empress feels persecuted enough by the course of events in Germany without additional burden from the people here. It is known that she personally wrote to her son, the emperor, a lew days ago, asking him to put a stop to Bismarck's revenge in keeping alive the Morier incident.

A CARNIVAL OF CRIME.

Londoners are Startled With Another Epidemic of Startling Crimes. LONDON, Jan. 16.-What space the London newspapers are able to spare from the contest for the new county councils they are giving to what is called rather luridly the carnival of crime. The sensational burglary, with a liberal use of revolvers, at Spell, a suburban villa, during the dinner hour, with a savage attempt on the life of an unfortunate in the east of London by a Malay purser of a steamship, and a half dozen or more ordinary murders occurring within three days are the basis of this new alarm. In the meantime the milkman, Barrett, who was supposed to have murdered and cut up a little boy at Bratlford, has been discharged, and no satisfactory arrest has been made. A similar case is that of a little girl at Yeovil. These failures to trace the criminal, coming upon the heels of the Whitechapel horror, naturally create a panic in weak minds; but it is properly pointed out that a worse result still is the effect the newspaper discussions and long reports of these butcheries are having on the class of even weaker minds by impelling imitation. For journalistic purposes all Eugland is one vast town, where everybody hears about everything happening anywhere, and the absence of other readable matter gives a gloomy and harmful prominence to crin.inal

BELLEVILLE HOSPITAL'S ROW.

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 16. - Dr. Youker, has retired from the hospital staff. In December he advised Prof. Holgate, of Albert college, to go to the hospital for treatment for an abscess. He went to a private ward paying $5 a week. Dr. Youker, after his patient had been in hospital a day or so, made complaint that the sheets on the bed had not been changed. A day or two afterwards he asked for some cotton batten, and when the nurse brought it the instrument which he required to use was besmeared with blood and other substances which might have been poisonous. Dr. Youker spoke of this negligence to the nurse, who gave an impudent answer and left the ward. Prof. Holgate complained to his physicians that he was not receiving proper treatment, and urged that he be taken away. A few days later the patient was removed and Dr. Youker wrote Mrs. McLean, president of the association, of the treatment his patient had received. It is said Mrs. Maclean answered this letter in a very uncourteous manner, exonerating the hospital attendants from all blame, and informing Dr. Youker that while this was his month for attendance at the hospital his services would not be re-
