A Little Girl Kidnapped-Her Father is

Returned to Reason. CHICAGO, Feb. 9. - Little Annie Redmond, kidnapped nearly a year ago, was restored to her home last night, after a -earch almost paratieling that for Charlie Ross. Annie's father had gone crazy from grief. The child has been in Chicago all the time, was at one time the subject of court proceedings, and for two months has been in a public institution. All the newspapers have devoted columns to the kidnapping. The little one's picture is as familiar to Chicagoans as that of any public official. She was discovered by a Mrs. Harper, who went to the Home of the Friendless to find a child to adopt, and who saw something familiar in the child's face questioned her. She was taken to the institution on Jan. 17th by a humane society officer, who had her supposed father, Harvey Gurley, arrested and fined for treating the child with great cruelty. It was supposed Annie was abducted by Gurley's mother. The motive is a mystery. The Gurleys have disappeared. The child was beaten by them almost daily. Annie's father was brought home from the asylum last night, and the sight of his child restored him to sanity.

THE BHOCKVILLE CASE,

Kaufman, the Forger, Appears in Court and is Fully Committed for Trial.

BROCKVILLE, Feb. 8.-C. F. Kaufman, the piano dealer, came before Police Magiatrate Deacon yesterday for examination. The court room was crowded. The prisoner, who has already been in gaol nearly two weeks, maintained the same quiet demeanor which characterized him after his arrest, and spoke pleasantly to his acquaintances present. A note, signed by E. A. Kantel, a commercial traveller, and purchased by W. T. McCullough, coal merchant, was declared a forgery by the former, and after Mr. Mc-Cullough had sworn to its purchase, the prisoner was fully committed to stand his trial. The fact that the prisoner's living expenses for years have been light, his family being self supporting, and the additional fact that his assets prove small, leads to an enquiry as to what has become of the proceeds of his forgeries. A remark of the prisoner's, after the examination to-day, that he couldn't see why he had to go up when others went scot free, is taken as an indication that startling developments will be made at the trial.

BROADBRIM'S LETTER.

SOME UNKNOWN FACTS ABOUT THE STREET CAR TIE UP.

Our Veteran Writer Talks About the Rioting in a Way That is Quite Fresh-The Theatres Have Been Doing a Rushing Business-The "Serosis" is Brewing Trouble.

(special Correspondence.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.-No doubt as you read the papers and despatches from New York you pitied us when you considered the desperate condition in which we were placed. Of course you thought all business was suspended, and that everybody barricaded their doors and windows against the murderous rioters. I confess it did look a good deal like it when I read the news-

Now, don't understand me to say that we have had no serious disturbance during the past week, for we have had a very serious disturbance. For several hours in New York travel was suspended on a number of car routes, and in Brooklyn on the lines carried on by Deacon Richardson not a car moved for six days. One man was murdered by the strikers. He was in the deacon's employ, and by the way, the reason they call him deacon is because he never was a deacon, and from present revelations is not likely to be one.

The deacon is very well-known in Brooklyn, and is one of those pig-headed men who is very fond of having his own way and very averse to letting any other person have his way. The deacon's men, to the number of several hundred, chose a committee of the knights of labour to arrange their contracts this year. This the deacon utterly refused to do. He said he would treat with his own hands individually, but with no outsiders under any circumstances. This brought matters to a climax, and his whole system of five city routes were place I under the ban. The men, a howling mob, surrounded the stables and threatened the lives of those who even attempted to feed the horses. For six days the rioters held a portion of the town, arrested men in the streets, beat and maltrested them, till at last the example of the New York police was so infectious that the Brooklyn finest sailed in, and after some lively clubbing the rioters were beaten and the strike was squashed. In New York the rioters massed their forces at various points and made a desper ate resistance. The east and west side of the city contain in certain parts as vile a population as can be found in any city of the world, and several of the cross town routes pass through localities where a man's life atter dark would hardly be safe if he were known to have five dollars in his poc ket. One of the favorite modes of resist ance was to blockade the roads with trucks, ashes, stones or whatever was handlest The strangest part of this is that the offence of obstructing a railroad car, or of laying anything on the rails is a felony, and al though the crime has been committed repeatedly in New York, Brooklyn, Chicago and other cities, rone of the criminals have been sent to state's prison, though the crime was committed in full sight of the police. Be it understood I have nothing but good words for the police of either New York or Brooklyn. A braver or better disciplined set of men does not exist on the face of the earth. The bravery exhibited by hundreds of them was fully equal to that of Horatius at the Tiber or Napoleon at the bridge of Lodi. It was no uncommon thing to see a policeman, single handed and alone, dash into a murderous crowd of strikers and seize a prisoner, and against the most des perate odds hear him off. In most of the encounters the odds were fully ten to one, and frequently twenty to one. Paving stones, knives and ristols were used, but in every instance the police were victorious and the strikers were compelled to fly. Too much praise cannot be accorded to the brave men who for several days have stood between us and anarchy. All the rebellious and destructive elements came to the sur face ready for tire and murder, and these were fairly beaten down and trampled under foot, and peace and security restored to our city. This is a desperate alternative, but it is all that is left us if we would have any thing remain that looks like order or law. The strikers appear to think that nobody has any rights or wrongs except themselves. If any poor fellow out of a job dares to apply for the situation which they have abandoned they beat him to death. That this state of affairs should be tolerated in a free country is incredible, and the whole power of the state and the nation should be invoked to protect the humblest laboring man in the right to freely walk the streets without the slightest dread or hindrance from labor picket guards, and to defend his right to dispose of his labor wherever he can find a market for it,

It is a little singular that in the midst of this social revolution business has gone right ahead and all the theatres have been doing a rushing business. While the theatres have been doing well it is gratifying to re cord that Shakespeare has been the princi pal feature of the week. Anthony and Cleopatra at Palmer's, with Mrs. Potter and Kyrie Bellew in the leading parts, and Macbeth at the Fifth Avenue with Mrs Langtry and Charles Coughlan as Lady Macbeth and Macbeth. It is not my purpose to criticise eithor of these performances; there is a square, honest endeavor to do the best they possibly know how. One's ideas of Lady Macbeth have been builded up on certain lines, and we cannot help it. The generation that remembers Charlotte Cushman as the wife of the Thane of Cawdor will be scarcely able to accept the handsome English woman whose very beauty is almost fatal to the part. Grand in scenery, lavish in properties, startling in effects, gorgeous in costume, it still fails to rise to the height of artistic and intellectual excellence which marked some of the performances given here forty years ago. Wao can ever for get, who saw it, the wonderful performance given by Macready and Charlotte Cushman? James Wallack, jr., and his wife gave a magnificent rendering of these parts, and many others that I could name. Those who remember them will not be satisfied by the performance of Mr. Charles Coughlan as Macbeth To those who have not seen Macbeth before the play will be a gratify ing surprise and a great relief from those artificial abominations, the so-called society

As a rival to Lily Langtry Mrs. Cora Potter holds high carnival at Palmer's, which was formerly known as Wallack's. Alas, poor Wallack! Not exactly Shakespeare, but near it. As I remarked before, Mrs. Potter at present holds her own at Palmer's, and everything that careful, conscientious staging could do has been done. Money has not been spared to make it a success. The reputation of Mr. Palmer himself was at stake fully as much as that of Mrsl. Potter and Kyrle Bellew, so that the spectacular part was fully assured, and the act ing, as far as the material on hand would allow. It is impossible to make a great actress out of Mrs. Potter. The timber is not there. There is the difference between her and a great actress that there is between a first-class ocean steamer and a little pleasure vacht. The one looks pretty, sails well in smooth water, but she is not built for heavy weather. The difference between reciting "Ostler Joe" in a ladies' parlor and acting Shakespeare's Cleopatra is considerable. Notwithstanding these drawbacks 1 am happy to record that the play is a financial success. The Eames divorce case, of which I spoke a few weeks ago, where the co respondent was the lady's own young brother, has finally brought all the parties to the accursed conspiracy to grief, and promises to land every one of them in state's prison. A fouler and more damnable piece of villainy, to blast the reputation of an innocent woman and to ruin the reputation of a worthy young man for life, has seldom been head of in our criminal courts. The man wanted to get rid of his wife, and two servants were suborned to swear that she was seen in a compromising position with a young gentleman who visited the family. The application was made secretly, and on the testimony of these perjured witnesses the decree was granted, the man all the time living with his wife, and the first she knew of it was while sitting at breakfast with him one Sunday morning she took up the paper and read the decree that had been granted the day before. At first she failed to under stand it, but her husband quietly looked across the table and assured her that it was correct. When the attention of the judge was called to the fact that it was her younger brother, whom she had nursed from a baby, he was shocked. The case was promptly opened and the lady was instantly acquitted, the jury not leaving their seats. The principal and witnesses have been ar rested for conspiracy and perjury, and it is hoped that the whole of the infamous gang will soon be landed in state's prison.

It is with grief that I record that trouble is brewing in the "Sorosis." A party has been formed antagonistic to sweet Jenny June Mrs. Croly), and while there has been no hair pulling-for they are all nice ladiesthere has been a most pronounced rebellion, which may eventually lead to the disruption of the best woman's club in the United States, if not in the world. It is but justice to Mrs. Croly to say that she personally would make any sacrifice rather than have discontent or hard feeling enter a circle which for many years has been the centre of the most blissful harmony. It is the earnest desire of all who wish well for women that the Sorosis may continue to be in the future, as it has been in the past the home of harmony. That it is what it is to day, has been through the untiring labors of Mrs. Croly and a few other estimable women, who are a blessing and an honour to their sex. Settle your difficulties, ladies behind closed doors; keep out the wicked reporters; and in New York let us have only one Sorosis. - Truly yours,

A MURDER IN MONTREAL.

A YOUNG MAN'S THROAT CUT IN A MELEE THIS MORNING.

The Origin of the Difficulty-The Circumstances Leading up to the Crime-A Woman in the Case-Illicit Love And What it Leads to.

MONTREAL, Feb. 9 .- A foul murder was perpetrated early this morning in the boarding of Mrs. Ennis, No. 73 Jurors street. In this house boarded a Mr. McGrath and his wife, a highly educated lady with negro blood in her veins. Her family belongs to Niagara Falls. At McGrath's boarding house also lived a white man named "Billy" Holden, and Mrs. Ennis' son, aged about 20 years. It seems that young Ennis was in the habit of bringing a woman named Jeannie Roberts into the house, to which his mother objected. Holden became enamored of the girl, also, and when ordered to get out of the house told Mrs. Ennis to get rid of these --- niggers. Mrs. McGrath heard this remark, and rushing up to him slapped his face. Her husband came in between them, and, with a razor it is supposed cut Holden's throat, completely severing the windpipe.

Word was at once sent to the police station, and Sergeant Loye was soon on hand. He telephoned for the ambulance, and sent his men out in pursuit of McGrath who had escaped. On the arrival of the ambulance waggon Dr. Stewart, who was in charge, found Holden lying in a pool of blood on the hall floor. His throat was cut from the left ear through the carotid artery, and the windpipe completely severed. The doctor is of opinion that the weapon used was a razor. He was told that Holden brought a white woman into the house and Mrs. Mc-Grath objected, when he used bad language to her, saying she was hot married to her white man, when McGrath rushed between them and cut Holden's throat.

Holden had evidently staggered about, as pools of blood were found in several parts of the hall. Dr. James Bell, who happened to be passing, was called in, but pronounced life to be extinct. Mrs. McGrath was found in No. 5 station with her hand bound up in a bandage. It had been badly cut by a sharp weapon, and she was sent to the general hospital to have it dressed. Before going she said the case of the fatal row which took place about 2 o'clock was that young Ennis would bring Jeannie Roberts into the house. Holden loved her also. She objected to this, and so did Mrs. Ennis. He said if his mother kept negroes he could keep his girl, to whom he was married. She said that was untrue, as he was already married. "Well," he exclaimed, "if I am already married I'll stick to my Jeannie." She then lamented the death of Holden and the flight of her husband. She then became hysterical and cried, "What have I done to be cursed like this? My life is cursed for ever and my husband's soul will be burnt in hell's flames. Oh! I will give my life for him. I have done wrong. I have been a curse to my family. I will amend. But a loving wife cannot see another girl disturb the peace of her husband. Why am I cursed to love such a man, who will bring the brand of Cain on my brow?" Other repinings and weeping bitterly. Jennie Roberts, the girl implicated, is held as a witness. She is rather prepossess ing, but was under the influence of liquor. She said Holden was a generous fellow, and had once pawned his shirt to buy her a drink. She loved both him and Ennis. She was in the house when the murder occurred and only heard the row. She was curses followed, the woman meanwhile not present. McGrath, who works at the Balmoral hotel, had not been arrested at latest ad-

MONTREAL, Feb. 9, (3 p.m.) - McGrath, who cut Holden's throat this morning, has not yet been captured. Ernest Hutt and Walter Bogart are farmers in the village of Barwich, Stormont, Ont. Bogart is alleged to have bitten Hutt's thumb. Blood poisoning set in. Hutt was in such a low condition last evening that it thought expedient to have his ante-mortem deposition taken.

MORE AROUT LE CARON.

A Man Who has Made an Unsayory Reputation for Himself in the West.

JOLIET, Ill., Feb. 9.-Dr. Le Caron, who has been testifying before the Parnell commission, is well known here. He lived in this country twenty five years, and bears an unsavory reputation. The sheriff of this county, who was formerly postmaster at Braidwood when Le Caron lived there, says the latter frequently received large amounts of money from England, and that he took an active part in politics. He first appear ed at Braidwood in 1866, and was hospital steward at the prison, from which he was discharged for irregularities in his accounts. He ran twice for mayor of Braidwood, getting the full democratic vote each time. His race for supervisor in 1876 was so close that a mob organized, led and incited by him, seized and destroyed the ballot box. He studied medicine and was a citizen of Lockport and Wilmington, near here. He remained in Braidwood till four years ago, when he went to Chicago and took Jee Machin's place on the state democratic committee, and when the latter was convicted he made frequent trips to England, and has endeavoured to secure from President Cleveland the appointment as consul to Bordeaux, France. The developments in his career have caused a tremenduous sensation here, especially among friends of Ireland, who have sworn vengeance against DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 9. - A leading Irish American citizen of Detroit said : Beach is well known here by the name of Henri Le Caron, was major of the union regiment during the war of the rebellion, and a pacticipant in the Fenian raid at Ridgeway, Ontario, in 1867. He graduated in 1872 from Detroit medical college.

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 9 .- Patrick Egan says LeCaron's testimony before the Parnell commission is made up of 5 per cent. of truth and 95 per cent, of fiction.

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—LeCaron's statements before the Parnell commission, connecting John Boyle O'Reilly and other Irish patriots with Sunday secret meetings in-Boston, are pronounced deliberate falsehoods.
