A TREAT ODE.

"Scourios like!" said the tree toad,
"I've twittered for rain all day,
And I got up soon,
And I hollered till noon,
But the sun just blazed away
Till I just climbed in a crawfish hole,
Weary at heart and sick at soul!"
"Dozed away for an hour,
And I tackled the thing again;
And I sung, and sung,
Till I knowed my lung
Was just about give in,
And then, thinks I, if it don't rain now,
There's nothin' in singin', anyhow
"Once in a while some farmer
Would come a-drivin' past,
And he'd hear my cry,
And stop an' sigh,
Till I jest laid back at last,
And hollered rain till I thought my throat
Would bust right open at every note!"
"But I fetched her!" O, I fetched her!
"Case a little while ago,
As I kind o' set
With one eye shtet,
And a-smilin' soft and low,
A voice dropped down on my fevered brain,
Sayin'—'If you'll jest hush, I'll rain!"
—James Whitecomb Riley.

Brains Always Win.

Stranger—Beg pardon, madame, for calling you to the door, but will you be kind enough to tell me who that ignorant, vulgar, commonplace woman in the house across the way is?
Mr. Gabb—That's Mrs. Stuckup.
"Stuckup. Thank you. I must remember the name so as not to waste time on her in future. How did such a hopelessly ignorant woman get on this very respectable street, I wonder?"
"I'm sure I don't know. I called on her once, but she never returned it, and that ended our acquaintance, you may be sure, the odious thing."
"I should say so. Why, that woman wouldn't know a lady from an orang outang; she wouldn't know a bright spoon from a black one. It's an actual fact that it isn't five minutes since she said she never heard of the Skighigh silver polish; and when I even went to the trouble to brighten a spoon for her she said it looked just the same. Never saw such ignorance. I suppose you have always used the Skighigh polish, of course. You have the bright, cheery, beautiful appearance of ladies who do, but perhaps your supply is most out, and in that case—"
"I believe it is. I'll take a package."
"It comes in cans, ma'am. One dollar, please. Thanks."—Philadelphia Record.

Social Amenities.

Mrs. A. (blandly)—Perhaps you do not remember me, my dear, but your aunt was my music teacher.
Mrs. B. (sweetly)—Ah, indeed; I was so young at the time; but I do remember having heard her speak of your father, the boss brewer, was he not?—Harper's Bazar.

A Division of the House.

An old fellow in a Mississippi town stood with his arms resting on a rail fence, when a man drove up in a buggy and asked:
"What is the population of this town?"
"Negroes."
"Yes; but how many?"
"The Lawd only knows."
"How many do you suppose?"
"Don't suppose."
"But can't you give me some idea? I am out getting statistics of the agricultural districts."
"Would give you an idea, but ain't got none."
"You seem to be in trouble?"
"Am."
"What's the matter?"
"Wife left me this mornin'."
"That is bad, I must say. Why did she leave you?"
"Oh, on account of a little fool thing. Couldn't eridge erbout the Scriptur. She 'lowed that Cain was older than Abel, an' I 'lowed they was twins."
"She was right."
"You don't say so!"
"Yes, and can prove it by the Bible."
"You ain't a foolin' me now, air you?"
"No; it's a fact."
"Wall, now, here, I don't want to be pigheaded. Jim, oh, Jim!" calling his son. "Hitch up old roan an' go over to Posey's after yo' mother. Tell her that yo' pap 'lows that she is right. An' say, Jim, tell her not to furgit that bottle o' lickar she tuk away with her. Stranger, I am powerful glad to see that you have been of some use ter the community."—Arkansas Traveler.

What Puzled Pat.

"Look at that now," said an Irishman as, in company with a friend, he passed a couple of Italians who were engaged in animated conversation.
"Well, what of it? They are talking to each other, nothing more."
"Yes, but here's the wan thing Oi want to know."
"What is that?"
"How the divil can they tell phwat they're talkin' about?"—The Merchant Traveler.

Of a Numerical Nature.

Visitor (who has been talking with convict)—Oh, by the way, you didn't give me your name.
Convict—We don't have names here, sir; my number is 1,355. Are you a resident of the place?
Visitor—No, I am stopping at Blank's hotel, room 106. I may see you again before I leave town on the matter we spoke about, but I doubt any favorable result. So good-by, 1,355.
Convict—Good-by, 106.—The Epoch.

A Doubtful Future.

Minister (at dinner, to Bobby)—I suppose, Bobby, you want to grow up to be a good and useful member of society?
Bobby—Oh, yes! I want to be in the best society, but I don't b'lieve that I can get there. Pa and ma never could.—Life.

SOCIAL ETIQUETTE.

Good Form in Stationery—The Note Paper and Cards Used by Society Women.

The various ornamental, high colored stationery recently in fashion is already discarded by persons of good taste. A plain white, cream white or an English blue paper are the only colors now used. Correspondence cards are entirely out of date. Three sizes of paper are used by society women; the largest is a sheet about the size of commercial note paper for letters which may be folded once and fit a large, square envelope, or twice and fit a long envelope. The next size is about half an inch narrower and an inch shorter. This is for notes and the tiny billet note is reserved exclusively for regrets and acceptances.

All invitations are answered now in an informal manner on a sheet of billet note paper, except invitations to church weddings, which do not include also an invitation to the reception. Good Housekeeping, which is authority for the above, adds that visiting cards for ladies are engraved in script on large and nearly square cards of heavy unglazed card-board. A gentleman's card is exceedingly small and slender, of thin card board. The new dinner cards are long, slender shapes of rough etching paper, delicately painted with a wild rose or violets, or decorated in colored metals and often tied with a ribbon to harmonize with the decoration.

A Recent Wedding Custom.

A new wedding custom is the carrying by the maid of honor, in the place of a bouquet or basket of flowers, one of the bride's satin slippers slung to her arm by ribbons and filled with flowers. This slipper is of a shade to match the gown of the maid of honor, and has broad ribbons sewed to either side, which are tied over the arm in a bow of long loops and ends. Flowers to match or contrast prettily with the gown are used to fill the slipper, small flowers being preferred, such as violets, pansies, primroses, or lilies of the valley. This shoe is thrown after the departing bride in the traditional fashion in order to insure good luck.

The Correct Thing.

At morning weddings brides wear either a full dress white tulle or a traveling dress, according to their own taste.

Invitations to afternoon teas and receptions do not require any answer. Guests leave their cards as they enter the house or send their cards if they are unable to be present on the occasion.

Some persons imagine that because invitations are written or engraved on visiting cards it is proper to answer by writing on their own cards. This is a mistake. It is not thought "good form" to accept or decline an invitation in this way.

The Seven Years' War.

Charles VII, who bound himself by the famous Pragmatic sanction not to press his claim to the imperial throne of Austria, and whose violation of that pledge occasioned the war of the Austrian succession, beginning in 1741 and terminating in 1763 with the peace of Aix-la-Chapelle, died on the 20th of January, 1745. His decease cleared the way for the accession of Maria Theresa, which is conspicuous in history for the part she played in the prolonged struggle of the Seven Years' War.—Philadelphia Times.

Advice to Mothers. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, for children teething, is the prescription of one of the best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and has been used for forty years with never-failing success by millions of mothers for their children. During the process of teething its value is incalculable. It relieves the child from pain, cures dysentery and diarrhoea, griping in the bowels, and wind-colic. By giving health to the child it rests the mother. Price 25c a bottle.

The adjourned case of stealing sleigh robes was called at the Gananoque police court last Monday, but as no one appeared the case was dismissed. The young man implicated settled with the prosecutors.

A Forebible Fact.

Constipation is the most frequent cause of headaches, bad blood, humors, dizziness, vertigo, etc., and because of this should never be allowed to exist. It may be readily cured by using Burdock Blood Bitters, which never fails to cure even the most obstinate and chronic cases.

On Wednesday a fire broke out at the residence of F. W. Smith, Napanee, but was discovered by Mrs. Smith just in the nick of time. The umbrella rack, umbrellas and carpet were the only things destroyed. It is thought the fire started by a match being through carelessly in the umbrella rack.

An Apt Quotation

From a letter by Mrs. Sullivan, 124 West Ave., Hamilton, says: "After trying a number of medicines for liver complaint, from which I suffered for years, I bought two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters and found it a complete cure. My house is never without it."
