RESULTS OF AN EXPLOSION.

A Great Upheaval on Fifth Avenue—Some Effects of the Foul Gas.

New York, March 25,-A tremendous explosion took place in the electric subway at Twenty Third street and Fifth avenue shortly before noon. The pavement on both sides of the street was ripped up and scattered in every direction. Heavy iron plates covering the manholes were thrown high into the air and broken in pieces by the force of the explosion and for a considerable distance along Fifth avenue, in front of the hotel, the huge flag stones were overturned and shattered. People on the street were panic-stricken. Some thought an earthquake had taken place. There was a general rush for the doors and stairways of the hotel in the frantic haste to get out of the

A Broadway car, which had just passed the corner, barely escaped injury from the flying debris. The windows of the store on the corner, under the Fifth avenue hotel, were shattered. There is a a huge hole in the sidewalk next to the hotel, beginning at a point about ten feet from the corner on 23rd street. The explosion was probably caused by gas which accumulated in the subway. A lady was slightly injured.

DISGRACEFUL CHARGES.

Minneso's Legislators Accused of Being Bribed-A Scene in the House.

St. PAUL, March 25. - There is much bitterness in the hearts of some of the senators who supported the Duluth and Winnipeg land grant bill over its defeat. It cropped out in the upper house when Senator Pope, flourishing a newspaper clipping, asked permission to send it up to the secretary's desk to have it read. This was granted. It proved to be an article which appeared in a St. Paul newspaper making covert insinuations that a large amount of money had been used to defeat the Duluth and Winnipeg

BOULANGER IS NOT AS STRONG AS HE WAS LATELY.

The Conditions Under Which Some of His Followers Are Hanging Together-Vietory With Him, in Getting the Command of Power, Only Means Defeat.

NEW YORK, March 25.—The Herald's Paris says Boulanger's Tours speech has been during the last week the subject of daily comment and discussion in the Paris press. It is interesting to notice how the monarchial sheets, or those which with more or less enthusiasm or resignation have accepted the elector alliance between their party and the Boulangists, receive the republican profession of faith so energetically formulated at Iours. It is evident that the journals and monarchists of this stripe are not at all pleased with Boulanger's declaration. He would not give them any manner of assistance in their restoration projects, and the duty of a battering ram for the destruction of the republic or of a king maker that they had complacently assigned to him was not at all one that suited him. Monarchists of this category have not, however, on that account thrown over Boulangism. They have persuaded themselves into the belief that after Boulanger has aided them to retain their seats in the chamber and to secure new ones they will be strong enough to throw overboard their powerful ally and protector. They indulge in the pleasant anticipation that it will then be in their power to force the president of the republic to convene a constituent assembly and to so shape its action that the result will be in accordance with their wishes These monarchial acts and combinations are treated with much incredulity by independent conservative journals. The Figaro, in an article which attracted much notice, pointed out the weak points of these plans, and expressed the belief that the adventure could public by bringing into existence a strong government of which the head would be Boulanger. It is also interesting to observe the interpretation that the radical element of Boulanger's supporters put upon the conservative declarations, the moderate ideas, and the toleration and respect for religion that are contained in the Tours speech. The article by M. Naquet, which appeared in the Presse, merits attention from this point of view. Naquet says the adherents of the national party, as the Boulangists now call themselves, should not be either clericals or jacobins, and he blames those who have been in power during the past ten years for the line of conduct they have followed in religious questions, and for the petty warfare they have waged against the clergy. The republican press has not failed, in this connection, to recall the fact that the radical members of the Boulangist party took a very active and willing part in this anti religious policy, that M. Laguerre, M. Le Herisse, and M. Naquet himself showed themselves very warm partisans of the secularization of public schools, that the military services for seminary students and priests have all along been an article of faith Count Herbert Bismarck is making ar- with Naquet. All these discussions show how difficult it is for Boulanger to have a programme which will bring into accord his followers, who have come from the most opposite corners of the political horizon. In spite of this an alliance of monarchists and radicals is still kept up under his leadership. The former submit to hearing the republic lauded as the only possible form of government for France, and the latter consent to forget for the present that war on clerical. ism has always been the first and most important plank in their platform. Queer stories, most of them groundless, are in circu-

Out-A Jaw Broken. SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 25 .- A fight for $5,000 took place in a barn here early Sunday morning between Jack Burgess, of Boston, who once bested Le Blanche, the Marine, and Tom McDonald, of Eikhart, Ind. The fight lasted eight rounds, and McDonald was knocked out. The men wore skin tight gloves. Burgess weighed 195 pounds, and McDonald 180. The latter was in the pink of condition, while the other man looked fat and flabby. Marquis of Queensbery rules governed the fight. McDonald was knocked down in the first round. In the second round Burgess receiv. ed a terrible blow on the mouth which gave McDonald first blood. The third round was all in Burgess' favor, he forcing McDonald to his corner with terrible right and left hand blows. In the fourth round McDonald sent Burgess to his knees with a heavy upper cut. Hard infighting clesed the round, both men bleeding freely. In the fifth round both men were groggy. Burgess received a stunner in his bellows. Burgess ended the round by knocking Mc-Donald over the ropes. The sixth round was dull, the men sparring for wind. In the McDonald receiving a blow which nearly floored him. Both slugged for all they were worth, McDonald being very weak at the close of the round. The eighth round was all one-sided, Burgess making a regular chopping block of McDonald and finally ending the round with a terrific right hander, knocking McDonald senseless and breaking his jaw.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., March 25. - The Terre Haute madstone was yesterday applied to the leg of the eleven year old daughter of John Kirk, of Bush county, who was bitten two weeks ago by a pup which afterwards died of hydrophobia. The stone, after eleven hours, still adhered. The dog bit two sisters of the child and scratched or bit a four year old brother. The stone was applied to the boy, but would not adhere, and this confirms the impression that his injury is from a scratch. The wounds of the girls are not deep, but blood was drawn. The madstone was thoroughly saturated, and the cloth about it is soaked with the poisonous looking matter. The longest time the stone ever adhered before this application was fourteen hours and that was many years ago. The stone has an authenticated record of more than eighty years and no death has ever resulted if it
