PRINCE WILKES.

Brilliant Career of the Champion Trotting Horse of 1883.

Many lovers of the turf will regret that such a noble horse as Prince Wilkes is to be taken away from the United States. He has been sold for $30,000 to a wealthy resident of Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic, South America. Prince Wilkes is the champion trotter of 1888, "laying away over" any of the rest. Prince Wilkes is a chestnut gelding 15.1 hands high, and is nearly eight years old. He is a remarkably handsome animal, and has four white ankles and a small star on his forehead. His most noted physical characteristics are the wonderful propelling powers of his hind legs and his resolute way of trotting mile after mile without tiring. In fact, so tremendous is the stride of these hind legs that the more legs have to be weighted to keep time with them when under full head-

PRINCE WILKES IN HARNESS.

When Prince Wilkes appeared on the turf, in 1886, horsemen marveled that a trotter with so much waste action could carry his clip and go so fast, while others predicted that he would soon break down, but the horse's wonderful physical powers have stood in such good stead that he has lowered his record each year, and is today propably faster than ever.

At Mock Farm, near Danville, Ky., Prince Wilkes was bred, his sire being Red Wilkes by George Wilkes out of Queen Dido by Mambrino Chief, and his dam" was Rose Chief by Brown Chief, a grandson of Blood's Black Hawk, a sire descended from Justin Morgan. Prince Wilkes was purchased as a weanling by George A. Singerly, and he was tåken to Ashland Park farm, near Lexington, for his early education. He made his first appearance on the turf in 1885 during the Breeders' meeting, when he won the Blue Grass stakes for 4-year-olds, in straight heats, time, 2:29, 2:2814, 2:27, distancing one of his two competitors in the first heat. The next year he entered the Grand Circuit at Rochester in the 2-27 class, and lowered his record to 2.204. At Hartford he started in the $10,000 stake, where he won third money to Oliver K. and Belle F. in that sensational contest of the five fastest heats ever trotted. In this race Prince Wilkes was the contending horse in the last three heats, finishing close up to Oliver K. in the third and fourth miles, and in the fifth had the big bay flyer beaten at the distance stand, when his driver made the mistake of touching him with the whip, when he lost his stride. This enabled Oliver K., though very tired, to get first to the wire.

Prince Wilkes did not start again that season, but in 1887 he took part in seven races, winning six of them, and lowering his record to 2:16 in a match against Belle Hamlin at Lexington, which he won in straight heats, and landed about $20,000 for his backers. The gelding had distemper the early part of that year, which prevented his being trained until late. He entered the grand circuit at Utica, and won there and at Albany. He again contended for the Charter Oak stake at Hartford, where he met the great young stallion Patron, who had trotted that spring in 2:14%, the fastest stallion record for that age. Prince Wilkes was not in perfect form, and did not get settled to his usual speed till the last half of the third heat, when he was sent off behind and made a break at the first turn. He closed up on Patron in the last half inile, which he trotted in 1:051/2, while Patron went the same distance in 1:08, the mile being in 2:18 After winning other races in the circuit, including the Free-for-all in St. Louis, where he beat Harry Wilkes and J. Q., Prince Wilkes won the match against Belle Hamlin, before referred to, and then retired for the year.

Last season he trotted nine races and won eight of them. He lowered his record of 2:14% at Cleveland, when he defeated Rosalind Wilkes. His only defeat was at Buffalo, when he was beaten by Guy. There was some crookedness about this race. A few weeks later Prince Wilkes defeated Clingstone at Chicago. At Detroit, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Nashville be beat Patron.

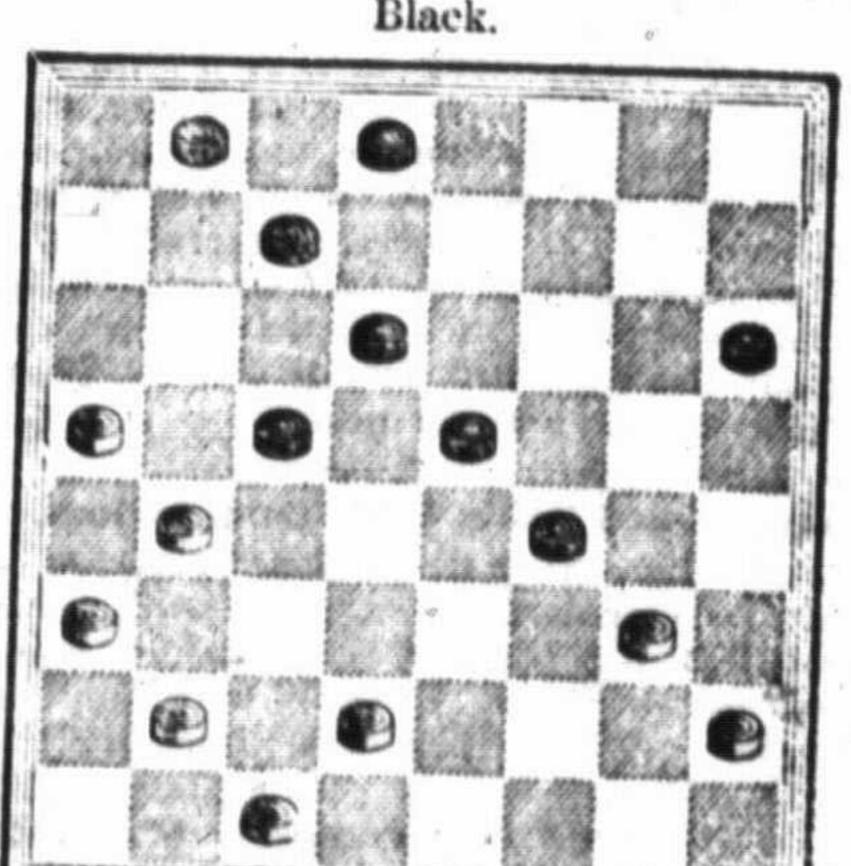

This is an unprecedented record among trotters, and entitles Prince Wilkes to be and a keg of nails. They are now searchcalled the monarch of campaigners.

AN ILLEGAL VOTE.

Remarkable Statement Regarding the Scott Act Repeal of Thursday.

OTTAWA, April 9. - A startling discovery has been made that all the Scott act repeal voting on Thursday was illegal and void. The proper lists to use are the Dominion voters' lists, but on Thursday the lists used were the new list of names set up here at the new printing bureau, which are not authorized by any law, are not revised, and are not voters' lists at all in a proper and legal sense. They are supposed to be a copy of the old voters' lists. But in any event they are at present mere proof sheets from a printing office not authorized to be used. The proof-reader has usurped the functions of the revising barrister. The lists used on Thursday bear absolutely no imprint of authority, not even a statute authorizing their setting up, as admitted by the minister of justice in the house the other day in reply to Mr. Edgar.

E. H. Bronson, M.P.P. for Ottawa, has 7 voted in Carleton county for thirty years, but when he went out on Thursday to vote against the repeal he found his name not on the list, and could not vote. His name is on the list of 1885, the only authorized list in existence, yet his vote was refused. Hon. R. W. Scott, Q.C., senator and author of the Scott act, gives the opinion that every election where the new lists were used is void. The clerk of the crown in chancery says the new lists were used in every contest on Thursday.

Work and Worry.

It is not work but worry that kills. Worry' bestows a score of wrinkles where work plows one; worry brings on a hundred gray hairs where work silvers one. It is not steady running that renders a watch unreliable, but the minute particles of dust that come between the bearing surfaces. Work does not wreck a bit of mechanism, but friction does. And worry is the friction of life. Work is a Saul that may have slain his hundreds, but worry is a David that numbers his victims by tens of thousan is. In a review of one's acquaintances, it can be noted at any time that the worker, not the worrter, attains success. The latter dies before he succeeds, and his mantle of worry rosts upon his weaker survivors, his wife and his children. The worker plods on, does the best he can and permits some one else to do the werrying. He will live to a good old age and never figure as the corpse in an item headed "Suicide." Beware of the potent demon, worry -Pittsburg Balletin.

His Collar.

Like many other musical geniuses, Chopin, the composer, gave evidence of his marvelous ability while yet a child. It is said that his progress in piano playing was so extraordinary that when he was but 12 years old his. parents and teacher thought it best to leave him entirely to his own instincts, and follow instead of directing him.

The warm approval which necessarily attended his musical course did not in the least injure his boyish simplicity and candor.
