IMPORTANT DECISION.

The dismissal of the Priestman case at Toronto shows that the difficulty of dealing with the bucket shops is even greater than it was supposed to be. The Abbott act was prepared with great care, and was, in the shape in which it passed in the commons and senate, believed to be efficient to meet any emergency. The opinion of the lawyers, outside of parliament, was to the effect that it could be evaded, and this fact has at last been established. Various efforts to apply the law in Toronto failed, but in connection with the Priestman case it was felt that a fair test of the law could be made. A police officer, in disguise, purchased on margin a thousand bushels of wheat, and put up and lost $10 in the transaction. Priestman professed to be an agent of Chicago parties only, and went through what was thought to be a formality in asking for advice from Chicago in regard to the investment, but Judge Rose held that there was no evidence to show that Priestman did not act as a broker, and hence did not make a contract within the meaning of the act. With regard to the setting forth that "whenever it is established that any person has made or signed any such contract or agreement of sale or purchase, or has acted, aided or abetted in the making or signing of the same, the burden of proof of the bona fide intention to acquire or to sell such shares, goods, wares, or merchandise or to deliver or to receive delivery of the same, as the case may be, shall rest upon the person charged with an offence under this act," his honour held that if he were to "read it in that way then 'such contract' would refer to any contract, oral or written, purporting to be for the sale or purchase of any shares of stock, goods, wares or merchandise. The far reaching effect of such a conclusion would be so injurious to mercantile transactions and so widening the scope of the act that he felt he would be legislating rather than interpreting if he put any such construction on the section." He ruled: "The keeping of a common gaming house is not an offence within this statute, that no punishment is provided for it and a conviction under it would be futile, because I could not inflict any punishment. There is no evidence of an offence at common law. I think there is no case to go to the jury." The effect of such a judgment will be to give new life to the bucket shop business for another year, for the act cannot be amended at the present session of parliament, and fortunes can be won and lost in a year. It is doubtful if any act can be made to meet the point to which Judge Rose has referred. It is the one thing against which parliament felt the embarrassment of legislating from the beginning. It's a pity, since there is no business so demoralizing as that of the bucket shops.

SOME NEW IDEAS.

The Toronto World must be credited with the advancement of entirely new ideas on the matriculation question. It is annoyed at the pretensions of Queen's college and observes: "While the World sympathizes with every effort, by whomsoever made, to raise the standard of education in the province, it must remind its readers that private universities like Queen's stand in a very different relation to the public from that occupied by the Provincial university and the education department. The former are responsible only to their own comparatively small constituencies, the latter to the whole province. The public have the right to demand of our Provincial university and of the education department that the standard be held high; they have no right to call Queen's to account for any cause whatever. The Provincial university would be making a bad mistake in extending to Queen's the courtesy of an invitation to act with it in provincial matters. If Queen's wishes to be recognized as a provincial institution, let her offer to hand over her endowment to the government. If it were accepted, she would be in a proper position to cooperate with the present Provincial institution in improving public education. As between Toronto university and the education department in the matter of holding matriculation examinations there may be a difference of opinion. It seems only in accordance with common sense, however, that the university should control her entrance examinations." Now in all this there is no attempt made to defend the miserable system of matriculation against which all the colleges in Ontario, save one, have repeatedly cried out. That the late address of Dr. Grant, expressing the discourtesy of the senate of Toronto university, and even of the education department, is bearing fruit we have now abundant evidence. The fact has been conspicuously exhibited that the Provincial university is responsible for the present low standard of the matriculation that Queen's and other institutions have had to come down to in the interest of uniformity, and all the efforts made to raise it have so far been in vain. The World says it is "common sense" that the Toronto university should control its own entrance examinations, which no one will dispute. But it is "common sense" that examinations should be conducted on a lower plane than the examinations of colleges endowed by private funds, that it lags behind instead of leads in higher education? It is not the position which a great college, sustained by public money, ought to occupy, and the World is the only paper in Toronto that will, by its deliverance on the subject, warrant that assumption. There is nothing delicate or injudicious in the suggested conference of college senators in behalf of a uniform matriculation. The Toronto people may act on the advice of the World and treat Queen's with contempt but it will not effect her usefulness, nor her popularity, nor her power. Her principal can command attention, and if he cannot induce the senate of Toronto university and Hon. Mr. Ross to listen to him he can next appeal to the sovereign people. As far the obli-eration of Queen's by becoming absorbed in Toronto university, and buttressing the financial foundation of that institution with its handsome endowment, 'tis a consummation never to be reached. It is a silly idea.

The Ounce of Prevention.

Under the above heading the New York World of Feb. 10th contains an editorial of which the following are a few extracts:

"Physicians and professional men of sense agree that if people would take a little of the pains to prevent disease that they do to have it cured that the civilized world would be much less like a vast hospital than it is now. * * * But the idea of a regular and stated physical examination, even of persons who are apparently well, is an excellent one. The approaches of pulmonary complaints, kidney troubles, and many of the other ills that flesh is heir to are so insidious as not to be apparent to their victims. * * * In nothing is it truer than in disease that 'an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.'"

There is a great deal of wisdom in what the World remarks. Individuals, as a rule, do not give their physical welfare attention, and it is only when alarmed by the presence of disease itself—the consciousness of failing strength—that attention is given to such matters.

Much has been said and written in recent years concerning the extreme and often times fatal danger which results from delay in the treatment of kidney disease.

Physicians admit that they cannot control advanced disease in those organs, and it is doubtful whether they can control it in any stage without the assistance of Warner's Safe Cure, which is established as the only known means which will reliably prevent and cure this class of disease.

Besides, it has been definitely ascertained that kidney disease is the real cause of ill-health in most cases where consumption, heart, brain or nervous disorders are supposed to exist, and in consequence of such belief many fatal mistakes have been committed by our best physicians in treating such disorders, which are but the symptoms of the disease, whilst they have allowed the real disease—disease of the kidneys, to escape their notice until too late.

There is no safer or surer way by which health can be preserved and disease averted than the occasional use of Warner's Safe Cure, which will benefit the "engines of life"—the kidneys, even if they are in a normally healthy state; while the good that will result in case disease is threatened, or is already present, cannot be over-estimated.

Indeed a Beautiful Story.

"The Beautiful Story," and Golden Gems of Religious Thought, written and edited by J. W. Buett, assisted by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, is a companion book to the Bible, and is so beautiful and interesting that its charms attract all; and by bringing out in clearer and stronger light the hidden beauties of the Inspired Word, leads them to read and love the Bible. Beginning with the creation of the world, and combining in picturesque narratives all the Bible's history, stories and commentaries—preserving the sequence of incident from Genesis to Revelation—"The Beautiful Story" presents a conservative and harmonious chronicle of most sublime events. The story of the creation, the flood, of Abraham, of destruction of Sodom, of Joseph, of Samson, of David, of Solomon, of the Jewish Kings, of wars and holy manifestations, and of the angels; of Esther, Jonah and Job; of Jesus and His sacrifice, of the Apostles and their miracles, and of the prosecution of the Christians, with descriptions of the Holy Land, explanations of many difficult passages of Scripture, relieve permanently doubts and misgivings. "The Beautiful Story" has 544 pages and is illustrated with 250 engravings, besides ten allegorical colored plates, costing over $5,000: Christ before Pilate, Jacob's dream, finding of Moses, Jephtha's rash vow, ascent of Elijah, Daniel in the lions' den, Jesus walking on the water, Gethsemane, Eden in the morning of creation, O' grave where is thy victory? It has many other attractions. It is the cheapest and best illustrated book ever sold in this country. Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage says of it: "I hail the publication. Its binding is sumptuous, its type luxurious, its pictures so many revelations, and its style of thought and expression captivating. 'The Beautiful Story' will have an unlimited mission for good. May God speed it on a mission of light and rescue all round the world, and after the author who wrote it, and the printers who set it up, and the publishers who started it on its beautiful way shall have closed the work of their lifetime, may 'The Beautiful Story' continue a benediction to the human race." It is sold only by subscription. A lady will present its claims in Kingston and Frontenac.

COLD IN HEAD, THE CONSUMPTION, CATARRH, 4 STAGES DEATH!

THERE is positive danger to health and life in neglecting a case of cold in the head or catarrh, and at this season, with its changeable weather, unusual moisture and sudden changes from heat to cold, there is peculiar liability to cold in the head. Neglected cold in the head rapidly develops into catarrh, and neglected catarrh just as certainly develops into consumption and leads to premature death. Medical testimony proves conclusively that a large percentage of all the deaths occurring from consumption had their origin in a neglected cold, which, by gradual stages, developed into catarrh, and then into consumption, that dread disease with which medical science is as yet unable to cope successfully. If you are suffering from cold in the head, or from any of the numerous symptoms of catarrh, such as bad breath, dull oppressive headaches, droppings from the head into the throat, hawking and spitting, copious discharges from the nostrils, loss of sense of smell, or taste becoming dull, hacking cough, or a general feeling of debility, husky voice, a wheezing or crackling sound in your chest when breathing, a feeling of dizziness, particularly when stooping, a feeling of tiredness and indisposition to exertion, a feeling of nausea in the morning when attempting to dislodge accumulations in the throat. Do not neglect them. These are but a few of the many symptoms of catarrh, and if you experience any, BE WARNED IN TIME. Do not permit them to run under the mistaken impression that the disease will eventually wear away. It will not, but on contrary will wear you away as it has thousands before. Procure at once a bottle of NASAL BALM, the only certain and safe cure ever offered for cold in the head and catarrh. This is not an assertion, but an unquestioned fact which is verified by the thousands of testimonials in our possession telling of marvellous cures. These testimonials we have received from all parts of the Dominion, and we append a few, selected at random, as fair samples of the whole:

ALEX. BURNS, Sudbury, Ont., says: Gents: I may state that I have been affected with catarrh for seven or eight years, and it was attended by consequent symptoms such as foul breath, constant droppings into the throat, hawking and spitting, partial deafness, ringing in the ears, and sickening pains in the head directly over either eye. I have used powders and douches, but all to no effect, the only relief arising from the use of such was temporary relief, followed by the usual symptoms in a more aggravated form. The results arising from the use of Nasal Balm are: sweet breath, stoppage of the droppings into the throat, consequently less hawking and spitting, clearness of hearing, and not once since I began its use have I had pain in my head. In fact it is my opinion that a careful and persistent use of the "Balm" will effect a cure in the worst case of catarrh.

Alpha H. Dalos, 'Arbert, Ont., writes: Your Nasal Balm has made a new man of me. I have never used a remedy so satisfactory.

Miss Maggie M. Martin, Terwood, Pa., says: Through a friend in Canada I became acquainted with your Nasal Balm. I have suffered for years with catarrh and it is the first remedy from which I have experienced relief, and I feel certain that it will cure me.

Miss Minnie McNamee, Mile Roches, Ont., says: Your bottle of Nasal Balm did me much good. The pain in my head disappeared before I had used the bottle and I find myself receiving the greatest benefit. I am certain Nasal Balm will cure any case of catarrh if its use is persevered in.

James H. McLeod, Mink River Road, N.S., says: I have tried other remedies for catarrh, but received little or no good from them. Your Nasal Balm is certain to be the best remedy I have tried, and all you claim for it. The fact that it is pleasant and convenient to use adds greatly to its value but its chief worth lies in being a certain cure for that unpleasant disease—catarrh.

Mr. A. Schlenzig, Toronto, says: For a number of years my wife has been badly troubled with catarrh. Dr. — here promised to cure her, but after using his remedy for six months she became worse and weaker than before, and I found that I had spent $30 for medical treatment that did no good. My wife then began to use your Nasal Balm and has improved wonderfully, and she is better and stronger than for years. Your remedy is the best in the market and you can use this as testimony.

Emilie Pelletier, Grenville, says: I can scarcely find words to tell you how highly I prize Nasal Balm. Its effects in my case have been wonderful.

A CAUTION.—Beware of imitations. If your dealer has not NASAL BALM in stock do not let him persuade you to take any other remedy which he may say is just as good, but send direct to the undersigned and it will be sent to you post-paid on receipt of 75c—50 cents and $1 a bottle.
