FINAL SCENES AT THE CLOSING OF THE SESSION.

The Chancellor Installed-He Makes an Address- Awarding the Prizes-Laureating the Candidates-Rev. D. J.

Macdonnell Talks in a Vigorous Way. The events in connection with the closing of Queen's university, for the session of 1888 89, culminated in convocation hall yesterday afternoon. The attendance was very large; the inadequacy of the building was clearly shown. The ladies crowded the seats and their display of summer goods and tints, that outrivalled the rainbow, was remarkable.

The students were amusing. They sang and shouted for an hour before the ceremonies began and then were quite ready to increase the hubbub when the registrar headed the long procession that swept to the platform from the senate room. A student in the gallery got the start of the principal by a minute and created roars of laughter as he rattled off some of the unique sayings of the various professors to their classes.

"Now we will come to order" said Principal Grant when the student was winded and Rev. James Gray, of Stirling, chaplain, read the 11 chapter of Proverbs and offered

Among the distinguished gentlemen on the platform were: Chancellor Fleming, C.M.G.; Rev. J. Gray, Stirling; Rev. Dr. Wardrope, Guelph; Rev. D. J. Macdonnell, Toronto; Rev. R. J. Laidlaw, Hamilton; Rev. J. Cumberland, Stella; Rev. A. H. Scott, Perth; Rev. Dr. Campbell, Montreal; Rev. John Hay, Campbellford; Messrs. John Thorburn, Ottawa; A. T. Drummond, A. G. McBean, Montreal; J. J. Bell, Brockville; D. B. Maclennan, Cornwall; J. R. Lavell, Smith's Falls; P. C. McGregor, Almonte; Dr. Boulter, Stirling : Judge Price, R. V. Rogers, G. Y. Chown, G. M. Macdonnell, A. P. Knight, and the professors of the various affiliated colleges and of Queen's university.

Dr. Grant, who occupied the chair, said Queen's had been without a head for a day, but he intended putting one on again, and intimated that Sanford Fleming, "C M.G., was the person. The name was received with applause. The declaration of office was accepted and then John R. Lavell, B. A., Smith's Falls, and G. Y. Chown, B. A. Kingston, adjusted the robes of office, while a heartless youth intimated that the chancelor could put on "his own duds. Chancellor Fleming was asked for a speech and he delivered the one published yesterday.

At the conclusion of the address the chancellor turned to Dr. Grant and said : "And now it is my pleasant duty at this stage of the proceedings to call upon the chairman of the board of trustees, to unveil the portrait of the principal, which will hereafter remain a prized posse-sion of the university."

Rev. Dr. Wardrope, Guelph, in the absence of the Hon. Mr. Morris, unveiled the picture. The familiar face, in oil, created applause. Dr. Grant glanced at the portrait, and a naughty medico suggested : "That's the handsomest man you have seen. The students sang "For he's a jolly good fellow."

The successful winners of scholarships were read and the cards handed over. When Mr. T. L. Walker walked up to secure the tiowan prize in natural science, for the best collection of Canadian plants, Dr. Grant remarked on Senator Gowan's interest in Queen's. He mentioned the many instances in which he had given money to the college. "When he comes among us, and I hope soon to see him here, you will know what kind of a man he is," said Dr. Grant.

Envelopes were broken by the chancellor and he made the announcement that the following had won prizes, thus :

When Mr. Macdonnell began speaking 'te was much approved by the inane remarks of students in the gallery. He persisted, however, and by withering sarcasm and parrying replies soon subdued the untamed element. When he concluded his earnest, brilliant address he had so won the admiration of the audience that he was stormed with applause.

Principal Grant said that it was almost two years since he had attended a previous convocation. At that time Queen's had reached the great crisis in her history but the dangers had been surmounted. The same might be said of his life. Since then all that had happened had been good. He asked the assemblage to rise and sing the grand old doxology, "Praise God from whom all blessings." The chaplain concluded the exercises of the day.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Milk Question.

KINGSTON, April 23 .- (To the Editor): I see by your paper that a bill is before the council relating to the sale of milk, got up, presumably, by the medical health officer, who, it appears to me exceeds his duty by going beyond his limits, (while overlooking or closing his eyes, and, I might add holding his nose, when passing the slaughter houses and piggeries which infest the upper portion of the city) in going into the country and inspecting the milk dairies, "strain ing at a gnat and swallowing a camel." With all deference to that worthy body, the board of health, I would draw their attention to the clause relating to the dipping of milk from the top of the can, instead of the present method. I would like to ask if the present method is not an improvement over what they propose. It is, as an alderman remarked like throwing away pumps and going back to the old way of dipping with buckets. If they want milk, hair, dust and flies they can have it as it will be impossible to keep them out when removing the lid at every custom er's house; also there will be sour milk as it is a well-known fact that a body of milk will sour in the warm weather unless kept cooled with ice; with the new system there will be no place for a tube of ice in the can. Their plea is that now the customer served last gets the best milk, it that is the case it will be simply reversed. ONE INTERESTED.

The Old |Graveyard.

KINGSTON, April 24 .- (fo the Editor) By the reports of the several vestry meetings within the city, with the exception of St. James, a wail appears to have gone forth deploring the disgraceful condition of the old burial ground at the head of Ordnance street, accompanied by a desperate and magnanimous resolution to hand it over to the charge of the corporation to be cared for by converting into a public park. Now, state of the grounds the better, unless intended as a confession of their own reprehensible negligence. The dealing with it would be like a man having means neglecting his brother, and in sympathy for his misfortunes, hand's him over to a poor house for protec tion, thus, by a cheap way, getting rid of a trouble and shirking a duty. The plan of one resolution adopted is to transfer this graveyard to the corporation for the purpose of a park, and burying the gravestones, with the moral lessons upon them, under the earth, thus seemingly with a view to obliterating all traces of its being a burial ground, which is to be forgotten and light ly trodden over, until in time it is most far some other purpose, and the discount is made by the upheavel of the navy's pick that the bones "of our dear brother" lie underneath. In keeping with the utilitarian ideas which prevail, why not make use of these gravestones to pave the walks with for all the respect which the public might be taught to observe towards the deal of which they are a memorial?

The ground is promiscuously filled with the remains of those who have helped to build up the city, with those of soldiers and officers of rank in the British army, withal, those of our own church people who have died in Christian hope of a resurrection, awaiting the sound of the archangel's trump and left to our sacred keeping. Is it fitting then that they should be left to the contingency of a public park in the craze for city improvements, irrespective of the Christian sentiments which should surround, them, without any of the manliness to make some sacrifice to protect and guard them from the proposed desecration !

This ground consecrated to the dead was a gift from the crown over sixty years ago, and held in trust ever since by the rector and his successors of St. George's parish church, as a place for burial for the members of the Church of England, and, therefore, every member should feel an interest in it, assist in its maintenance, and not allow it to be diverted from the original pur pose for which it was given. The cost of fencing, planting some trees, and putting it in order cannot amount to much, and besides, jointly with the Presbyterians, a caretaker might be engaged to look after it. These things being done at the outset very little outlay would be required for some time until further improvements could be [75] to $1 per pair is asked; turkeys $1 to. table. ISAAC RADFORD'S TROUBLE IN THE WINNIPEG COURTS.

The Documents in a Forgery Case Not Forthcoming-Radford Thinks the Government Should Come to His Aid as he is offer a Criminal.

Isaac H. Radford, formerly of Kingston, is now in Winnipeg as private prosecutor in the Gillette forgery case. At the police court, when it came to the charge in which Mr. Radford held the evidence, and in which he was the principal witness, the crown attorney was obliged to ask for a remand. The drafts and papers in connection with the case, upon which the damaging evidence lies, were sent by Stone, Newman & Reesor, Fargo, Dakota, to the manager of the Bank of British North America, with iastructions not to deliver them until a bill of 8514 19, contracted by Radford, on behalf of the Manitoba government in cornection with the case, was settled. Radford states that he offered to pay half the amount of the bill if the Manitoba government would pay the balance, but the crown positively refused to pay out any money to liquidate the claim, and consequently the papers remain in the bank manager's hands. Mr. Radford contends that the government was responsible for the contraction of the debt, stating that he was acting under power of attorney from them in engaging the lawyers at Fargo. Radford says in the land transaction with Gillette the latter defrauded him out of $1,700; then Radford paid a reward of $100 for Gillette's arrest and all expenses connected with holding him at Fargo, besides getting the extradition papers through at Washington and the expenses of these trips to Manitoba, in all about $3,100, exclusive of the $250 which Ranford offered to pay if the government would go halves with him in the release of the necessary papers. He is prosecuting I think the least said about the disgraceful Gillette in the interests of justice, but he finds that the province of Manitoba does not show a disposition to assist, and he does not feel like putting his hand into his pocket any deeper.

> 'In Fargo we prove I under oath three different aliases aga not to there " said Mr. Radford. "He ladge | a complaint with the chief of police under the name of McAulay for the receivery of some jewelry, swore his writ of habeas corpus under the name of W. B. Allen, and was proved to be the man who went nuder the name of Gillette in Winnipeg, and got that money. I also discovered several other aliases of his while in, Boston and other eastern points. I have traced a connection between him and Pear son, of Albany, who gave the forged drafts to Cole, all as Pal'man, now in prison for at tempting to utter for which he was arrested, and have discovered evidence to show that he is connected with a well organized band, from one member of which I could have received $5,000 while to Dakota, to go home and attend to my own bust, e.s.

Many people think the Kingston students are very unmannerly at convocation proceedings, but the Toronto bhoys beat them. At Trinity college convocation, Tuesday, firecrackers were exploded in the hall, which speedily became filled with smoke, and one exploded under the form of Dr. Temple. The atmosphere at last became so suffocating that fadies and children had to leave the hall. It was first desired by some that the noisest of the students be expelled, but it was finally resolved to treat the matter as

"innocent skylarking."
